ALLIES BATTLE TO RETAKE WONJU

Sen. Taft, Discounting Threat Of Another Great War Soon, Urges Middle Course Policy

Proposes 10-Year Program With Emphasis On Arms Buildup Instead Of Huge Army

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) declared today that creation of a great American land army would weaken the United States as an "arsenal of democracy" in the struggle against Communism.

Instead, Taft proposed a 10-year middle course policy aimed at the fastest possible mobilization without crippling the economy.

Countering President Truman's call yesterday for the defense of Europe as the keystone of American security, Taft again urged a mighty buildup of U. S. air and sea weapons rather than emphasis on ground troops.

In a luncheon speech at the National Press Club, Taft cautioned against "panic" fears of World War III. He differed sharply with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York on Dewey's call for a 100-division army that might involve upwards of 5,000,000 troops.

Would Use Chiang's Troops

The Ohio lawmaker said he favors the complete release of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese Nationalist forces to fight the Chinese Reds, and he made these other points:

1. New taxes for defense are likely to cut everyone's income to about 90 per cent of what it is now.

2. Youths from 18½ years old may have to be drafted for a minimum of two years in the armed forces.

3. Price-wage controls will involve "real sacrificies of freedom on the part of many."

Once again, as he did in a major policy speech to the Senate last Friday, Taft discounted the threat of another great war soon.

Obviously alluding to Mr. Truman's statement yesterday that Russia is bent on a step-by-step conquest of the world, Taft said he does not believe the Russians are ready to launch any such all-out aggression.

Tax Bill Hearings Set

Taft's lengthy speech, adding a new chapter in the swelling debate over foreign policy, came amid these other developments:

1. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and congressional tax managers reached tentative agreement to begin consideration of a big new tax bill on Feb. 1.

2. Construction of a 60,000-ton aircraft carrier, at an estimated cost of $235,000,000 was unanimously approved by the House Armed Services Committee.

3. Senate administration leaders planned a move to sidetrack a resolution by Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) proposing a ban on the dispatch of U. S. troops to Europe without congressional approval.

McKeldin Will Take Oath Today

ANNAPOLIS Md., Jan. 9 (AP) — State Circle was festooned tonight for the inauguration of Maryland's fourth Republican governor.

Theodore R. McKeldin takes the oath of office at noon tomorrow in the Senate chamber. Thus the former mayor of Baltimore and Maryland's best known Republican will commence a four-year term.

The State House rotunda was adorned with yellow and black pennants. Outside, the east portico on which McKeldin will stand to deliver his inaugural address was bright with state and national colors.

A loud speaking system will enable inauguration visitors to hear McKeldin for blocks around.

Thousands Expected

National Guardsmen, bands and Republican rooters will march in the inaugural parade past a tiny reviewing stand erected on the south side of the State House. Military police will assist state, Baltimore and local officers in handling the throng.

The Naval Academy Band will play and the Arion Singing Society will chorus from the east entrance to the Capitol for three-quarters of an hour before Gov. Lane, Governor-elect McKeldin and their escort proceed from the executive mansion at 11:45 a. m.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury of the Court of Appeals will administer the oath to McKeldin at noon.

Two Receptions

Legislative officers and the principals will be in top hat, cutaway and striped pants.

There will be two receptions after inaugural ceremonies. Governor and Mrs. McKeldin, assisted by Secretary of State and Mrs. John R. Reeves; Vice Adm. Harry W. Hill, Naval Academy superintendent and Mrs. Hill; Lt. Gen. J. A. Van Fleet, Second Army commander, and Mrs. Van Fleet, and Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, state adjutant general, will receive guests in the old Senate chamber.

Later the McKeldins will hold open house in the mansion.

Thousands Of Germans Sterilized By Nazis Demand Compensation

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 9 (AP)—Thousands of Germans sterilized by the Nazis have organized to demand compensation and to fight any future attempt at any compulsory sterilization law.

The organization claims that 3,500,000 people were sterilized by Hitler in his efforts to "purify" the "master race."

There are more than 2,000 in the new "Central Association of Sterilized People in West Germany" and more are joining every week. Chairman Bruno Koeniger says thousands of others are deterred from joining by feelings of embarrassment.

Koeniger's association demands equal recognition with concentration camp prisoners and war veterans as deserving public assistance.

Parents Donate Dead Boy's Eyes To Save Girl's Sight

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9 (AP)—The eyes of a little boy were removed a few minutes after he died and have been donated by the child's parents to help save the sight of a teen-age girl unknown to them.

The father and mother, Revner and Norma Koolgaard, were at the hospital bedside last night when seven-year-old Stephen died.

He did not regain consciousness after he was hit by an automobile last Saturday as he rode his bicycle near the Koolgaard home in Upper Providence Township, a Philadelphia suburb.

A University Hospital doctor mentioned to the grieving parents the possibility of using Stephen's eyes to save another's sight.

The Koolgaards readily consented.

"I didn't regard it as a gesture," Koolgaard said today. "I believe Stephen would have wanted it that way."

Surgeons removed the child's eyes immediately so that they could use the healthy corneas — the "front windows" of the eyes—in a delicate transplanting operation needed by a girl in the hospital.

Painter Admits Torso Slaying

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—A torso slaying that looked for a time like "the perfect crime" was reported broken today by the confession of a stony-faced house painter.

Police said Pasquale Donofrio, 38, admitted strangling and carving up his common-law wife, Dorothy Martin, 37, one-time Hudson Valley apple blossom queen.

The dismembered body of the country girl who met misfortune in the city was found Dec. 4 in two dime lockers in a Brooklyn railroad station. The body—with hands and teeth missing—remained unidentified more than three weeks.

Police quoted Donofrio as saying he wrapped his arms around her neck following an argument during a boisterous drinking bout Nov. 25 in the Brooklyn flat they shared.

He was booked on a homicide charge and held without bail for hearing Friday.

An anonymous tip sent 12 police early today to a Brooklyn rooming house, near the crime scene. They nabbed Donofrio as he fled in pajamas across a rooftop.

Capehart Would Vote To Declare War On Red China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Sen. Capehart said tonight he would vote for a declaration of war against China to give American boys fighting in Korea every chance to go after the Chinese Communists who are killing them.

The Indiana Republican made that reply to a question asked him on a radio debate by Sen. Lehman (D-Lib-NY).

Lehman had asked Capehart if he would vote to declare war on China.

Capehart said he would vote for such a declaration. He said that if he had anything to do with it the United States never would have had troops in Korea in the first place.

Later he told reporters he wanted to emphasize that the U. S. should not stand by and permit the Chinese to kill American boys and then deny the boys the right to go get them.

New Censorship Rules Clamped On Korea News

Violators To Face Ouster Or Trial

TOKYO, Jan. 9 (AP)—Censorship restrictions on battle news from Korea were clamped down hard at Eighth Army headquarters today.

The new rules threaten ouster or even court-martial for a correspondent who strays out of line.

Among other things, corespondents are not permitted to use the word "retreat" in connection with the withdrawal of U. N. forces. The pullback, according to security officers in Tokyo, is a planned and orderly withdrawal—not a retreat.

No Official Explanation

(Army sources in San Francisco said "retreat" and "withdrawal" are often used synonymously in military parlance but some authorities make a sharp distinction. By their definition, a retreat, while orderly, is forced by enemy attack. A withdrawal is voluntary and is made for tactical reasons, such as to shorten lines or to find a better battlefield.)

There was no official explanation of the crackdown at this time. Correspondents in Korea learned that the new list of regulations was an attempt to compile all previous instructions to newsmen. However, the new rules went considerably further than anything previously in effect.

Absolute Censorship

Stories from Korea will not be alowed to mention identity of units, numbers of troops or their type, the strength, efficiency, morale or organization of U. N. forces, armament or equipment of any kind, or "plans of the army — real or possible."

Information which would "injure the morale of our forces or our allies" or which would "embarrass the United States, its allies or neutral countries" also was banned.

Desperado Still Eludes Officers

Officers ran down reports that the 24-year-old dishwasher desperado was in half a dozen states but the FBI said the last certain point on his blood-spattered trail was still in the Lower California, Mexico, desert.

That point is where the automobile of Robert H. Dewey, one of eight persons Cook is suspected of killing, was found abandoned Sunday.

It was stained with blood and in it was the badman's shirt—a bright red one he had been wearing when he was transformed by events from a Blythe, Calif., dishwasher and petty ex-convict into the frantically hunted killer suspect.

"We know from that shirt he was there," said FBI Agent E. C. Richardson, who is coordinating the manhunt from here.

Broadcast To Launch 1951 March Of Dimes

WYTHEVILLE, Va., Jan. 9 (AP)—The 1951 March of Dimes campaign for $50,000,000 will be launched Sunday night over a national radio network from this scene of the nation's worst 1950 polio outbreak.

Basil O'Conor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., will speak from this Southwest Virginia town which had 186 cases and 17 deaths of the state's respective total of 1,197 and 62.

Top Officials Considering U. S. Sales Tax

Truman Says Big Levy Hikes Needed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — A nationwide sales tax designed to raise $10 or $15 billion dollars a year is under discussion among high officials, Sen. Anderson (D-NM) said today.

Anderson disclosed this in a speech before the Maryland Farm Bureau at Baltimore after President Truman asserted that the nation must be taxed "until it hurts" to finance the huge defense program.

Anderson said:

"I was in a gathering in Washington in the past 10 days at which high and responsible officials discussed the possibility that there would be such a gap between receipts and expenditures in our budget that we would have to resort to a nationwide sales tax designed to bring in ten or fifteen billions of dollars annually. I don't know whether that will come or not but I say it's a possibility."

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) suggested a sales or transactions tax probably would have to be considered if the nation is to be put on a pay-as-you-go basis as it presses its defense preparations.

Aiming at possibly $10,000,000,000 in new revenue—the third big increase since the Korean war started, Congress leaders arranged to start work Feb. 1 on the problem of how to raise the money.

Byrd told newsmen:

"I feel certain that, if the budget is balanced, Congress not only must cut all non-essential government spending and increase the existing sources of revenue, but also enter new fields of taxation — probably such as a retail sales or transactions tax."

Mr. Truman's grim statement that "it is necessary to tax until it hurts" was made in a conciliatory letter to Byrd, an ardent economy and pay-as-you-go man, with whom he has clashed frequently on fiscal policy. The Senator made public the letter.

Obviously offering an olive branch to Byrd in the spirit of his state of the union message call for cooperation, Mr. Truman addressed his letter "Dear Harry," and told Byrd:

"I am very highly pleased with your pledge of support in the present emergency. I don't think there has ever been any serious difference of opinion between us on the operations of the government except in some policy approaches on which we naturally would not agree."

Except for his sales tax suggestion, Byrd did not propose any specific plan for raising the money if the national budget hits $75,000,000,000 a year or more as now suggested.

Present discussions center on about $10,000,000,000 a year for the tax increase, which the lawmakers will take up next month.

U. S. Dependents Urged To Leave Hong Kong

HONG KONG, Jan. 9 (AP) — The U. S. Consulate General today advised all American dependents to quit this British crown colony due to "the deterioration of the situation in the Far East."

Consul General Waler P. McConaughey insisted the warning was "more or less precautionary." He saw no actual emergency in the offing.

Nervous Americans, however, have watched the Chinese build up their armed forces this month to more than 45,000 on the border of this uneasy colony. Many Americans already have left.

Tot Facing Blindness Sees Snowbank

Four-year-old Carolyn Purcell, Atlanta, Ga., exclaims with delight as she looks at a snowbank at Chicago's Midway airport yesterday. The tot, whose mother, Mrs. Frank Purcell (right), faces the decision of death or blindness for the child, is en route to Rochester, Minn., and the Mayo Clinic for an examination. Doctors say the girl has cancer in both eyes, one of which must be removed immediately. Murray Stillwaugh (left), of Chicago's Medinah Shrine Temple, was one of a group of Shriners who met the girl and her mother.

Congress Asked To Help States In Redistricting

Prompt, Fair Job Urged By Truman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Truman asked Congress today to lay down some definite standards to guide the states in revising the boundaries of congressional districts. The outlines of some now resemble pieces of an fantastic jig-saw puzzle.

In a special message, Mr. Truman pointed out that under the tally of the 1950 census seven states stand to gain a total of 14 seats in the House of Representatives and nine states are due to lose 14.

Up To Individual States

Redistricting is up to the individual states. The President said it should be done promptly and fairly, not later than the spring of 1952, "so that the congressional elections of that year may give fair representation to all citizens of our country."

He suggested that Congress could help a lot by setting out desirable standards in legislation, and keeping a running check on the states to see that they comply.

He advocated these two main standards:

1. Each state entitled to more than one House member should divide itself into districts, thus holding down the number of congressmen-at-large.

Maryland Gains One Seat

2. Each district should be composed of contiguous and compact territory and contain as nearly as practicable the same number of persons.

The seven states which are due to gain representatives are California, 7 seats; Florida 2, Maryland 1, Michigan 1, Texas 1, Virginia 1, and Washington 1.

Those to lose seats are Pennsylvania 3, Missouri, New York and Oklahoma 2 each; and Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee, 1 each.

MP Opens Hand After Handshake, Finds $100 Bill

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — A silk-toppered stranger stepped up to a young military policeman today, extended his hand and said:

"How are you, soldier?"

Cpl. Horrise D. Crownover took the proffered hand and felt something pressed into his right palm.

The stranger smiled and disappeared into the mid-Manhattan crowd.

VFW Chief Raps Reserve Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Omar B. Ketchum, director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said today most reservists are "like fleas on a hot skillet" because they are subject to call on such short notice.

Testifying before a House Armed Services Subcommittee investigating reserve policy, Ketchum said defense chiefs should be able to say well in advance just what reserve units will be needed and when.

He proposed 90 days as "fair notice."

Ketchum joined with Clarence G. Adamy, director of Amvets, in citing cases of reservists suffering hardship—discrimination in employment, for example—because of uncertainty whether they would be called to active duty.

"The average man just can't put his wife, babies, furniture and bills in storage on two weeks' notice," Adamy told the lawmakers. "All this could be avoided by a long-range program."

In other developments:

1. The Navy announced it will order 47,000 enlisted reservists to active duty during April, May and June. The revised quota is 32,000 more than the Navy had expected to call during the three-month period.

2. The Navy said it will accept only 21,200 volunteer recruits during the rest of January because the training centers at Newport, R. I., Great Lakes, Ill., and San Diego, Calif., have reached their manpower limits.

Austin Outlines Program To Meet Crisis In Korea

Rules Out Invasion Of China Mainland

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 9 (AP)—Americas 1 h eUUf.cLc'UN.—(AP)—America's chief U. N. delegate, Warren R. Austin, tonight outlined a four-point program to meet the Korean crisis, but ruled out any direct war against the Communist-held China mainland.

Austin said the high strategy of American policy is to stand fast by the principles for which the U. S. entered the Korean war, while continuing to welcome any honorable and peaceful settlement.

"We must never let the aggressor, be he large or small, convert temporary military successes into defeat of those principles," Austin said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Association of American Colleges.

No Invasion Of China

"That is the high strategy. For the day to day tactics we must rely upon consultations of the United Nations and decisions of the commanders, secure, however, in the knowledge that no responsible authority proposes to march into the morass of the China mainland."

Austin said the present discussions at Lake Success were not on high strategy, but on the methods to meet "the new invasion launched by the Chinese Communist regime."

Austin said the United States is trying to line up support for a program featuring these points:

1. A finding that the Chinese Reds have flouted U. N. authority and committed aggression in Korea.

No Aid For Aggressor

2. A reaffirmation of U. N. purposes in Korea, calling for the withdrawal of the Chinese Communists and for all U. N. members to refrain from assisting the aggressor.

3. A call for each member to support action decided upon by the U. N. in proportion of its ability.

4. A move to activate immediately the newly-created Collective Security Committee to consider the means to meet existing aggression and prevent further aggression.

Brice And Mahaney Are Confirmed As Chairmen Of Maryland Agencies

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 9 (AP)—Arthur H. Brice, long-time Eastern Shore Democratic leader, today was named chairman of Maryland's Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

Brice, 64, replaces David H. Wallace, just 30 years his junior. He has been motor vehicles commissioner since 1949.

Wallace reportedly has agreed to become executive director of an oyster industry trade association.

The Senate confirmed Brice as chairman for the remaining four years of Wallace's six-year term by a vote of 23 to 5. Only Democrats opposed him. The 10 Republicans present endorsed him.

Action of the appointment, held up since last Thursday while leaders of both parties dickered over what posts would be assigned before Republican Theodore R. McKeldin takes over as governor, came swiftly in an open Senate session.

It took considerably longer for senators to confirm William H. Mahaney as chairman of the Department of Employment Security.

Meeting behind locked doors for an hour and a half, they endorsed Mahaney by a reported one-vote margin with three Democrats and 10 Republicans siding against him.

There had been factional contention over the Baltimore countian first named to the post in 1949. Lane proposed him for the duration of a term expiring in 1955.

The office became vacant when Russell S. Davis, former chairman, was made state employment commissioner.

Senate President Della (D-Balto 6th) announced all but one of the Governor's appointments had been confirmed. The exception was a minor Baltimore County official who recently resigned.

Anti-Ike Demonstration Staged By Paris Reds

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP) — Some 4,000 Communists staged a noisy anti-Eisenhower demonstration in the heart of Paris today, but failed in plans to tie up the city with a strike.

A concentration of 3,000 Paris policemen arrested about 200 of the demonstrators and kept the others on the move. There was plenty of pushing and shoving, but no serious disorder.

Communist-led workers apparently had little urge to tangle with police, who blocked off all approaches to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's temporary headquarters in the Hotel Astoria near the Arc de Triomphe.

Counterblows Force Enemy Back 3 Miles

Ominous Chinese Buildup Continues

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 10 (AP)—Furious Allied counterblows yesterday drove the enemy back nearly three miles on the vital central front near the fallen transport center of Wonju.

A field dispatch said the counterattack appeared designed to recapture Wonju. The city fell to the Reds Monday. It controls highways leading into Southeastern Korea.

As the counterattack gained momentum, the U. N. forces ran into enemy mortar fire but casualties among the attackers were light.

Three North Korean divisions were bearing the weight of the counterblows about four miles south of Wonju.

The attackers strove to stem the tide of Chinese and Korean Communists rolling in ever increasing waves down the mountain roads in Central Korea.

Reds Move Artillery South

Associated Press Correspondent John Randolph, with the U. N. columns falling back from Seoul and now more than 60 miles south of the 38th parallel, said the Red buildup "appeared to be planned for the strongest possible attack when the drive begins."

Red artillery was moving south. Tuesday an F-80 Shooting Star jet swept down through the clouds and mist and blasted Chinese field pieces south of Seoul.

This was the first report that Chinese artillery had been dragged south of the ice-jammed Han River, which flows past Seoul.

Two U. N. battalions turned two miles south of Wonju and attacked a North Korean force.

Six miles southwest of Wonju another fierce action forced back the enemy. Associated Press Correspondent Don Huth at Eighth Army headquarters said the U. N. force had partly regained about one-half mile of territory lost to the Reds Monday.

Eighth Army headquarters said this struggle also was still in progress.

Polio Victim In Iron Lung Moved 70 Miles To Baltimore Hospital

The youth, stricken last October, is so afflicted he cannot move nor survive for more than six minutes outside his iron lung. A portable lung was not capable of doing the work, so the bulky stationary lung was moved.

He was brought to the hospital school, known through the East for its speciality in treaing paralysis victims, after an original plan to move him to the Polyclinic Hospital at Harrisburg, Pa., was upset. The bed allotted to him at Polyclinic had unwittingly been given to another boy.

Young Fassnacht was accompanied on the trip by Dr. Page M. Schildnecht of Lancaster, Tommy's parents, four volunteers to operate the iron lung mechanism manually in case of generator failure, and power linesmen to tap into electric lines along the road.

"K" Day For Cultists Ends Without Heavenly Portent

KEREMEOS, B. C., Jan. 9 (AP)—Flickering lights shone from an isolated stone farm house tonight as "K" day drew to a close without the heavenly portent expected by hymn-chanting members of a strange religious sect.

For 15 days the 35 members of the "Children of Light" have awaited a mystic change. Some said it would be the end of the world. Others thought it would be the second coming of Christ.

This was "K" day. K, the cultists said, stands for the kingdom of God. But if there was any manifestation within the cottage—there was none without.

And it appeared that the heavenly peace expected by the group might be replaced by some very worldly police action.

It seeks the removal of a 16-year-old youth from the house. The boy's mother says he has been hypnotized.

"What I saw and heard was enough to get action taken to get Bobby Mueller out of there," said McFadzen.

Flag For Europe Ideas Pouring In To Council Group

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

The council's secretariat at Strasbourg reports it already has received more than 100 proposals for a banner for the 15-nation organization which celebrated its first birthday last year. More are pouring in every week.

Secretariat members are classifying all these ideas for a special committee from the council's consultative assembly which is expected to choose an emblem sometime in 1951.

Ideas on file range from the now-familiar "E for Europe" flag of the European Movement, a private organization promoting European unity, to a red, white and blue banner copied exactly from the American flag with the colors reversed.

The 13 stripes are blue and white and there are 15 white stars on a red rectangle. The 13 stripes refer to the council's 13 original members—perhaps a historical coincidence—and the stars stand for the council's present membership.

Winston Churchill, in his role as chairman of the European Movement, has made the green and white "E" flag familiar but not too popular as a flag. It is simply a green E on a white background, and even members of the movement agree it is not particularly attractive.

Another flag being pushed is the banner of the European Parliamentary Union, whose secretary, Count Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi, has been active in European unity drives for many years.

The Count petitioned assemblymen to adopt the Parlimentary Union's red, gold and blue flag as the emblem for the Council of Europe. It is a blue field, with a gold circle toward one end, with a red cross atop the circle.

The Count's petition said the gold circle represented the sun of bright new hope and the red cross represented the badge of the Crusaders. Even his opponents in the flag issue concede a banner has to have a little red in it to make it snappy.

The problem of a flag for the council has received fresh impetus in recent weeeks with the "invasion" of Heligoland by groups of German students in protest against Britain's use of this former German naval base as a target for bombing runs.

The students who camped on the island said they were raising the "European flag" there, and urged that the isle be placed under the control of Europe. Since the council has no flag, they apparently meant the old "E and Europe" banner.

While this may be the nearest thing to a European flag which exists, not many people are happy about it. If any European flag is going to be raised anywhere, members of the Council of Europe want it to be attractive.

Navy Jet Fighters Set Speed Record

QUONSET POINT, R. I., Jan. 9 (AP)—Two jet fighters yesterday set a new speed record between Jacksonville, Fla., and the naval air station here.

The planes are F9F carrier based Grumman "Panther Cats," the latest type Navy fighter now being used in Korea, an air station spokesman said. They were piloted by Lt. Dixie Mays, 29, Clarksdale, Miss., and Lt. Percy L. Liles, 30, Goldsboro, N. C.

Cost Is Heavy For Snow Removal In Local District

Snow removal from county roads continues to be one of the largest items of expense of the County Roads Department, according to the two-weeks report of J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the department, for the period ending December 15.

A total of $3,610.31 was spent for snow removal in the span. During the same time the cost of labor was $4,289.92, materials, $1,095.22 and equipment, $1,277.31.

The entire roads' cost was $6,662.45 for the period. Very little road work was done, due to the snow removal and bad weather which prohibited normal road repairs.

A number of complaints were received this morning concerning county roads.

N. R. Van Meter, Margaret Wagner, Mary Devine and Betty Mooney, residents of Pershing Drive in the Fairgo section, appeared before the board to request repairs to their road. They said the thoroughfare is a quagmire and children going to and from school must slog through deep mud.

The board promised to make repairs as soon as the weather permits.

Floyd Buser, Ralph Boggs and Clark Hamilton appeared to ask the board to fix several bad places on the Oliver Beltz Road in the eastern section of the county.

The four-mile stretch was termed in bad condition, but if several places where the mud and ruts are wheel hub deep were fixed farmers and others could traverse the road with some safety, it was stated. Many springs and oil pans on cars have been broken, they said.

Boggs said he has a large pile of rocks on his property which he would give the county to use as a base for the bad places in the road.

County officials indicated th would use the rock and then pl shale or other material on top provide a passable surface.

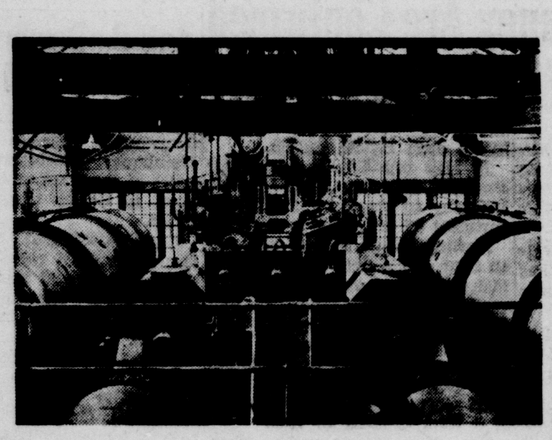
Celanese has the same sort of Budget Problems you do

A family has so much income every year. So does the company. Part of the family income goes to buy food. Part of the company's income buys raw materials. If you own your own home, part of your income goes for taxes and insurance. So does part of the company's. You pay people who furnish you with such things as electricity, water, refrigerators, automobiles and clothing. The company pays people who put effort, energy and thought into the manufacture and sale of its products.

Celanese income, like that of other producers, comes from selling what we make. Out of our income must come the cost of raw materials, wages, modernization, maintenance, local and federal taxes, insurance, and all other business expenses. But all these do not set the price.

The price has to be a figure that customers are able and willing to pay. Otherwise customers buy elsewhere, and with fewer people buying a product, fewer people are needed to make it.

Cost of production is important to every employee. Unless a company watches its cost of living it's possible to price the product out of the market—and its employees out of jobs.



Only by living within its income, or by borrowing money that has to be paid back somehow out of future income, can a business get the money for the development of the better machines and better processes its employees need to compete successfully with other workers making similar, or substitute products.

People like to live in a well kept home, and they like to work in a well kept plant. Celanese spends thousands of dollars every year to provide comfortable working quarters and to keep the plant clean and in good condition. Anybody can do better work in a well-cared for plant, with well-cared for machines.

Synthetic Drugs Make U. N. Control Of Narcotics Traffic More Difficult

GENEVA — (AP) — International control of narcotics is becoming increasingly difficult because of development of new synthetic drugs and failure of various governments to provide production and consumption statistics, the Permanent Central Opium Board reports.

The board is a United Nations agency responsible for the international control of narcotics under a convention drawn up in 1925. The board's annual report stressed that the 1925 agreement does not cover most of the synthetic drugs which are now being produced in quantities greater than those of the conventional drugs such as opium, morphine and cocaine, which are under the board's control.

In addition, the report declared, many governments have failed to meet their obligations to provide detailed information on the narcotics covered by the convention.

No statistics of any kind were received from the Bahrein islands, China, Liberia, Nepal, Saudi Arabia and Oman, the report said, while there were "serious gaps" in the information supplied by Czechoslovakia, Peru, Poland and the Soviet Union.

The government of Bolivia, the report said, although providing a few statistics, "failed to send a reply to any of the questions put to it by the board."

The board placed embargoes on the export of narcotic drugs to the Belgian Congo, Bulgaria, Hungary, India and Yugoslavia during the past year. These countries had exceeded their import quotas under the agreement during 1949.

The report said the drug control situation in Germany caused some anxiety as a result of a lack of coordination "even between the western zones" and warned of a resulting danger of illicit drug traffic.

"Some sporadic information of interzonal trade is reported," the board said, "but it is not complete. Indeed, the board fears that the authorities in the zones are not always informed of the amounts of narcotics which arrive from other zones, or that the narcotics exported always reach their destination in other zones. This kind of situation may lead to illicit traffic."

The report expressed concern also at reports of offers for sale of considerable quantities of opium by the Chinese Communist government.

"The board has been informed," the report said, "that large quantities of Jehol opium, amounting in one case to 500 tons and in another case to 200 tons, are being offered by the Chinese government on the market.

"So far as the board is aware, this is the first occasion on which raw opium has been offered by China on the licit traffic.

"The existence of such large available stocks, offered for sale but not declared to the board, must be a matter of concern."

Science Scoffs But There's Evidence Dowsing Works

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Kenneth Roberts, the author, in a new book, "Henry Gross And His Dowsing Rod" (Doubleday) tells of a dowser who talks to his stick and it answers by bending — a bend means yes—no motion means no.

Gross does this not only where the water is, but miles away from the water. Further, he does it sometimes from maps.

He has done it not once, but many times, Roberts says. Once it was a map of Bermuda, which had only rainwater for drinking until 1950. Gross, in Kennybunk, Maine, 800 miles from Bermuda, dowsed the map and pinpointed springs that geologists had said could not exist on that island.

Last year three of these springs were drilled and brought in, producing the water previously said to be non-existent in Bermuda. Roberts documents all this, with names, companies, supporting businessmen in Bermuda, and scientific men who said it could not be done. The springs were brought in respectively Feb. 11, March 10 and March 23, 1950.

Roberts takes out after the geologists and other scientists with "closed minds" who say it is impossible—say it in the face of 42 of these remote control wells found, drilled and producing in 1950. Most of the wells are in Maine, where Henry Gross is a game warden. He does this dowsing free of charge, usually paying himself for the gasoline for the trip to the farmers' land.

One remote well is that of Raymond Harper, Princeton, N. J., right next to Einstein's house. Roberts says that Gross by request dowsed Harper's land while Harper was visiting at Robert's home in Kennybunk. At that time Roberts was doubtful of his friend's purported ability to dowse at a distance or from maps.

Not until after the Bermuda wells did Roberts ask Harper to look. The spring was found in the exact location, and at the exact number of feet—seven—which Gross said to dig. The same prediction located a spring on Einstein's place, but Einstein was not told.

Gross points his rod in the direction for remote dowsing. He asks it questions. He names the place and asks if there are "veins" (of underground water). A down-dip means yes. He asks if there are one—two—three and so on—stopping when lack of dip means no. He gets the distance of the veins from house or other location by the same method, also the depth of veins. He asks whether the vein contains good drinking water, and so on.

The answers are precise, finally in feet and half-feet, both for distances and depths, and for points where veins join or cross, and their sources in water welling up from deep underground.

The Way Things Look

The Wall Street Journal the other day undertook to boil down all the economic information they could get into a useful forecast for Americans generally.

The artcle was two columns long, and wide measure at that, so any attempt to summarize this summary is bound to be inadequate. But it makes certain points that are worth getting a good grip on.

For instance, it suggests that 1951 may be a great deal like 1942—a year that brought much heavier taxes, gasoline rationing, conscription on a huge scale, a stock market slump and a night club boom, and black markets.

Of course, everybody should know by this time that taxes will be higher. Defense spending is zooming, and no attempt is being made by the White House to reduce non-essential spending. But this article notes that taxes will be felt not only directly but in the form of price increases. It says bluntly there will be more inflation, so that the dollars not taxed away will shrink further, and that economic controls will not solve the problem.

That's the straight of the matter, and the American people ought to realize it. But this article is more enlightening than most on this same subject because it points out that there is a real basis for that hope. It observes that the defense program in 1942 took a third of the nation's output and will take only a sixth—unless it continues to grow—in 1951. And the nation's production capacity has grown.

Statistics reveal that the U. S. now generates more electric energy than it did nine years ago, produces more materials, has more manpower, grows more food and fiber, manufactures more goods.

Although the economy is tighter, there is room to move around and get in position for defense. If there is wise management at Washington, this country need not become a totalitarian state.

Russia Spurns Peace

There is nothing to support a forlorn hope that Russia would be favorable to world peace, even if it could be obtained on its own selfish terms.

An official military publication, the Army Information Digest, is authority for the statement that Russia is completely geared for war under a program which begins with the youngest children in school. These are taught the meaning of military terms, and given a foundation which will make it easier to assure actual military service at the earliest possible age.

The Digest says Russia's present armed strength begins with 4,500,000 men under arms. Of this number 3,000,000 are actually in the army, trained and equipped. All males who reach the age of 19 are subject to conscription, and actual military service runs to five years. Only those over 50, or physically unfit, are exempt from military service.

Russian women also are subject to military service, with more than 2,000,000 in combat organizations in the last war.

During all the periods of training Russian soldiers are fed Communist propaganda, and they know little else politically. The Digest says the Russian economy is devoted solely to preparation for war, the inference being that the goal is infliction of Communist rule on the entire world.

There isn't a single straw in the wind that indicates Russia desires peace, even on appeasement terms.

A woman tells her troubles to a doctor. But when man gets into trouble he needs a policeman or a lawyer.

Cabinet Rumors

With Americans searching for leadership in these perilous times, one possibility is that leadership might be promoted by an infusion of new personages into the Cabinet. This would have the advantage of making improved advice available to the President.

Opposition to Secretary Dean Acheson of the State Department, it seems reached the point where Acheson was to be permitted to resign. But those who oppose him pressed their attacks so hotly they ran into a road block created by the President's well known obstinacy. It is still probable that Acheson will go, but probably not in the next week or two.

Other members of the Cabinet rated as contributing little to the wisdom of the President's official family are Secretary Snyder of the Treasury Department, Secretary Brannan of the Agriculture Department, Secretary Donaldson of the Post Office Department and Secretary Chapman of the Interior Department.

Some or all of these men may be replaced—or none of them may be. But many Americans are convinced it would be of benefit to the nation if these posts could be filled by men of high capacity who never were pally with political left-wingers.

History would be more esteemed by everybody if it repeated only its happier phases.

Near East Ill Will

Other parts of the world may be dismayed at the possibility of war, but not the Arab states of the Near East. If Arab newspapers reflect the vews of their readers, they advocate a general Arab attack on the new state of Israel. That may serve to distract citizens' attention from the pressing economic problems of the Arab states, Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Syria and Jordan. They need badly the business and technical skill which Israle could furnish, while Israel for her part is in desperate want of the agriculture products which the Arabs could offer.

Some of the more responsible Arab statesmen would be willing to ajourn this feud with Israel. Their constituents, however have been so worked up with anti-Israel arguments that they are not willing to settle down to peace. In justice, it must be admitted that the Arabs have grievances also, particularly in connection with the many Arab residents of Palestine who were summarily evicted to make room for the new Jewish immigration from Europe.

As with the United States, both sides find that military expenditures cramp the governments' ability to improve the living conditions of their peoples. Observers of the situation hope that the present hostility will produce nothing more dangerous than bickering.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Deep Depression

MANY MEN and women who commit suicide do so because they are abnormally depressed. It is obvious that the severity of the condition was not recognized because after the news of the tragedy reaches the family its members frequently admit that the deceased had been moody and blue for some time prior to taking his life. Had the signficance of the depression been recognized the catastrophe might have been averted.

It is natural to become blue from time to time thru the usual vicissitudes that bring on unhappiness. These include broken love affairs, sickness in the family, politics, world affairs, and the loss of a cherished one. But the period of discouragement is shortlived and in time the majority become more optimistic. True melancholy presents a more difficult problem. The depression becomes so deeply entrenched that it has a profound influence on every aspect of existence. The victim worries about conditions that should not be given a second thought. This "much ado about nothing" offers one of the first clews that the emotional state is far from normal.

The individual is gloomy and downhearted most of the time, cries easily, and feels inferior and unworthy to be alive. It is this feeling of inadequacy and hopelessness that leads to attempted suicide. Insomnia and lack of appetite make matters worse. Weight loss follows and the mind is so cloudy from lack of sleep that rational thinking is impossible. As a result, the feeling of inadequacy increases.

These persons need expert care because the majority are not in a condition to overcome the depression by themselves. One of the worst bits of advice is to recommend a trip or a vacation, which usually adds to the confusion and makes them more apprehensive. Furthermore the melancholic cannot be cheered up or reasoned with; it is useless to tell him to forget his troubles.

Home care also is inadvisable even tho spontanous cure occurs occasionally. It is up to the responsible members of the family to take the bull by the horns and come to the rescue of the helpless victim. After all, with proper care, the outlook is excellent. The sufferer needs to be placed where he can be protected against visitors and obtain rest, good food, and careful nursing. Shock treatment and other forms of psychotherapy are useful. As soon as the change in mood comes on, improvement begins but one of the most common mistakes is to take the patient home too soon. Unless he is completely well, symptoms are likely to return and the months of treatment are wasted.

We do not know why some are subject to depressions. The condition is prone to occur among the most intelligent and the list of victims includes many of our most talented men and women. Some are perfectionists and become upset when little things go wrong. There is a belief among physicians that a metabolic disturbance lies behind these mood changes. At any rate, early recognition and treatment are important in saving some of our best and most productive workers.

TOMORROW: Survival of victims of coronary thrombosis.

SNEEZING

Mrs. G. writes: Could a woman who is three months pregnant harm the baby by sneezing when she has a cold?

REPLY

No. The baby is well protected from strain of this nature. However, one sneeze after another, day in and day out, might led to miscarriage. This would be the exception rather than the rule.

BLOOD TYPE MATE

N. W. writes. Does a woman with type O blood have to marry a man with the same type in order to have children?

REPLY

Fortunately, no, but even if this were so, you would have a wider choice than A, B, and AB blood types because O is the most common group. The blood type has nothing to do with pregnancy except in relation to the RH factor. These groups are incompatible in a small percentage of the population.

CHINESE NEW YEAR

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Taft's Blistering Speech Followed White House Rebuff; Sen. McCarran Browbeats Justice Department; General Eisenhower Gives Good Advice

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Only a handful know it, but the raging arguments between President Truman and Sen. Robert A. Taft could have been avoided.

A few weeks after his big election victory in Ohio in November, Taft sent word to the White House he would be glad to sit down with Mr. Truman and talk over the problems of defense with the view to reaching a closer cooperation between the Administration and the GOP leadership.

Senator Taft's position, as expressed by such nonpolitical members of the Adiminstration team as Undersecretary of Defense Robert Lovett, was that he had not made up his mind on foreign policy and wanted to hear all sides. In fact, friends of Taft said that he was so anxious to attain the stature of invalid Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, that he was willing to drop isolationism if he could be shown it was against our best interests.

This was reported to President Truman by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also by Secretary of Defense George Marshall. They urgently felt the Senator should be invited to the White House.

The White House staff, however, argued against it. Sensing some political trick, most of the Presidential advisers felt that Truman should not open his doors to Taft unless the Senator agreed, in advance, to support a bipartisan foreign policy.

President Truman, who has always had a sneaking admiration for Taft, listened to the arguments. At one moment he was inclined to throw protocol to the wind, call Taft to his office, take down his hair and say, "Bob, we're in a jam in the world. We need your help!" But he was talked out of it.

Finally, after some three weeks of bickering within the White House circle, a compromise was reached. Taft would be invited in, but only as one of a group of Congressional leaders summoned to the White House for a formal conference.

Net result was that the rebuffed Taft angrily told the Republican conference he was opposed even to "consulting" with the Administration. And, in his foreign policy speech last week, he accused the President of violating the Constitution by sending troops to Korea.

King of The Justice Department

Nevada's barrel-chested, silvermaned Sen. Pat McCarran is the worst tyrant in the Senate, and he doesn't care who knows it.

Even in the presence of a dumbfounded visitor, McCarran telephoned Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford and gave him a humilating tongue-lashing.

"Hello, Ford. What about that young fellow I referred to you for a job?" demanded the Nevadan.

Ford mumbled an explanation about the tight Justice Department budget.

"That's no excuse," snorted McCarran who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has almost life-and-death power over the Justice Department. "If you haven't got any money left to put him on, you certainly know where to come for a deficiency appropriation. Who controls your budget?"

Both McCarran and Ford knew the answer to that question. For McCarran is also chairamn of the Appropriations Subcommittee that holds the Justice Department's purse strings.

Meekly, Ford promised an opening for McCarran's friend in another two months.

"Two months from now is too late," snapped McCarran, his silver hair bristling. Then he bluntly ordered: "Ford, put him on the first of the month."

Timidly, Ford agreed.

"That's better, Peyton," chortled McCarran. "Now let's make that a deal, say, 'cross my heart.'"

Ike's Advice

Sitting in the Washington apartment of his good friend, humorist George E. Allen, Ike listened to predictions that the British Empire was falling apart, that the French would not fight, that the U. S. A. was hopelessly divided and without leadership, and that Russia would seize Europe before he could organize its defenses.

Finally Eisenhower rose and punched out these words: "Anyone who has ever lived with our boys in action knows that we are still the most dynamic nation in the world. But we've lost faith in ourselves. What we need is to prove to ourselves and the world what we can do. That way we will strengthen our allies and make aggression by the enemy impossible. I know we can do it."

This caused George Allen to reminisce: "Do you remember how pessimistic I was when you first went to England to start a second front? I told you Hitler was going to bottle up the Mediterranean, knock Russia out of the war and invade Ireland.

"Well, you gave us this same advice then," concluded Allen, "and you were absolutely right. I'll string along with you now, too."

"Where Do We Get the Money?"

Tall, whip-tongued GOP Congressman Bob ("Where are you going to get the money?") Rich retired from Congress the other day after 20 years of almost uninterrupted sermonizing on government economy. Even fair deal foes joined in the applause as the colorful Pennsylvanian bowed out with this valedictory poem on his favorite theme:

"A New Year's resolution that would do the country the greatest good
"Would be to economize in government spending, as you should.
"Colleagues, as the New Year begins for 1951
"The best solution I could offer, by gum,
"Is that Congress would be wise to economize.
"Now I wish you joy, pleasure, health, happiness and sich,

Tight Squeeze

War Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson is caught in a squeeze between his new duties as mobilization boss and his old ties with General Electric. He may be forced to crack down on the electric companies in New England, because aluminum and steel plants have been driven out of New England by the high power rates.

Also, the Aluminum Company of Canada is urging Wilson to decide in favor of expanding Canadian aluminum production, at the expense of American expansion—largely because public power projects must be built to supply extra power if more aluminum plants are built in the United States. It is no secret that the electrical industry is against public power projects.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

A Billion Dollars

A FRIEND writes:

"The word 'billion' flows glibly from the pens of journalists and the tongues of radio commentators and the public accepts it without considering what a staggering sum it represents. Webster defines 'a billion' thus: a thousand million. In short, instead of saying Congress wants 70 billions in 1951, we would say, Congress wants 70 thousands millions of dollars. What would you think of this?"

The idea is a good one, but editors and others will complain that it uses up too much room. That is a matter of perspective. It used to be that if a man had $1,000,000, he figured he had about $60,000 a year and was a very rich man. I receive from my various labors more than that each year, but I am not a rich man.

In fact, when it comes to savings, I am a poor man because I can save practically nothing after I have paid federal and state taxes and the high cost of living.

Furthermore, I receive inflated dollars and pay inflated dollars and therefore those who pay me and those whom I pay are kidding each other because we are using dollars when actually we are using half-dollars or less, although the Treasury still calls them dollars. Labor kids itself by asking for more of the same, but always actually getting more tokens of less money.

Harry Truman talks about billions as though they were nickles and grew on trees. This romantic attitude would make no difference were it not that his policies are stripping this country of its natural resources and killing the initiative of our most able men, who measure the value of their earnings not by what they can spend but by what they can save.

His predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, knew what a million dollars meant, by birth, inheritance, environment and habit of mind. It seemed a paltry sum to him. True, we have become glib about it and scatter billions in our speech as he did in government expenditures. It is difficult to show the results of his efforts to get rid of these billions.

In fact, I have been trying to find out what happened to the $50,000,000,000 (pardon me, I mean the $50 thousand million) which we have in more recent years spent on the national defense and for which there is nothing to show so far as any of us, dead or alive, can discover.

We shall soon enough be in the trillion and zillion dollar class and that will be too difficult to discuss or write about.

Why not be realistic? Why not devalue our currency to what it really is? That would abolish the dollar and make our standard of currency about 42 cents. We might call the new money a Hopkins in honor of that notable spendtrift. Instead of the $ sign, we could us an H. The British might do the same with the pound, naming it after John Maynard Keynes.

It would be realistic, which I understand is a virtue because Stalin is supposed to be realistic.

Anything Stalin does is supposed to be perfect, including the general use of the lie.

Now, to be even more realistic, we might as well stop buying anything in the grocery store but demand the free use of the enormous stores of food held by the government, and much of it rotting. In that way, we should not need money at all, but would get a card from a revivified OPA.

Then my friend's idea could be carried even further. We should not only drop the word, million, but arithmetic altogether. In fact, we lost all sense of arithmetic long ago, because after we add a column of earnings, we must deduct those earnings which we are only permitted to handle but not to use or to keep. Then it comes out minus, which is supposed to be plus.

If you understand how it works,

Truman Speech Termed Aid To Cause Of Unity

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—President Truman found himself, in his message to Congress on the "State of the Union," compelled by circumstances beyond his control to confine himself to generalities and abstract statements on the world sitation.

At the very moment that he was speaking, there was in progress within the secret realm of diplomacy some very important exchanges of views between the United States Government and the other governments of the free word to obtain universal support for a resolution to be adopted in the UN General Assembly condemning Red China as an aggressor and proposing united action by UN members.

Likewise, on the very day the President was scheduled to address the Congress, he was unable to reveal the future steps which will be taken in a military way in Korea because these steps are still not crystallized. The tide of battle there, which is adverse at the moment, could result in a stalemate that would encourage the chances of a cease-fire agreement in a few weeks or it could result in such a concentration of American forces within a narrow perimeter as to make the prime question one of endurance in the belaguered area, supported by sea and air power.

Well Conceived

So with both the political and the military fronts virtually closed off from public discussion during these critical days, Mr. Truman had to be content with a proclamation of general purposes which to many listeners did not sound as significant perhaps as it really was.

Broadly speaking, the Truman message was well conceived and well developed. It promulgated clearly the American concept of anti-communism and of defense of Europe. For the first time America declares that Red China is a "puppet government" and places directly upon the Soviet government in Moscow the responsibility for "formenting" revolution in China these last few years.

This is an important disclosure from an official source as high as the Presidency of the United States. It is the forerunner of another pronouncement which may be expected soon—Namely, that physical control of Chinese territory is maintained by the Communist only because of external aid from Russia and does not warrant admission of the Red Chinese regime into the United Nations.

Indeed, once the Communist faction in China is declared an aggressor and once the United Nations forces are prevented by military action from achieving their objectives in Korea, the opportunity of Communist China to take her place in the family of nations may be said to have been completely lost so far as both diplomatic recognition and admission to the UN are concerned.

Perhaps the most interesting straw in the wind is the speech of Sir Gladwyn Jebb, spokesman from Great Britain in the UN, who hints that a break with Communist China may be forthcoming and that, when this step is taken, all the members of the UN should "leap together." This is but another way of saying, that, as between continued support of the Communist China regime and a break-up of the UN as a result of the Korean debacle, the British are ready to go along with the position of the United States.

Contribution To Debate

The denunciation of Communist China as an aggressor is long past due but it takes time for more than 50 nations to exchange views and to come to conclusions.

Mr. Truman's speech is sharp in denunciation of Soviet Russia. His phases may have been heard before but they have not been assembled in quite the same positive way. The Truman speech is a distinct contribution to the debate on world policy. The restraint which the President used with reference to the domestic political situation will help the cause of unity. For he puts on the spot those who would yield to partisan spirit. What is important in this regard, however, is that the Democrats in Congress who are attacking individual Republicans as partisans should not be misled into thinking that the dissatisfaction with foreign policy is itself political or a matter of political ambition for certain personalities. For the truth is the unhappiness in America over the Korean adventure is not confined to any political party.

Savings Bond Purchaser Deserves Consideration

By MARK SULLIVAN

THE United States Treasury is preparing another drive to sell savings bonds to the people, meaning ask the people to loan more money to the government. The Treasury needs to. It is now generally recognized that the cost of the present war and preparedness for more cannot be paid wholly out of taxes. While "pay as we fight" is a worthy aspiration and is likely to be fulfilled in considerable part, it will not be possible to pay the whole cost out of the taxes raised by any practicable rate, however high. The Treasury will need to borrow large amounts.

In preparing a drive to ask the people to buy more savings bonds, the Treasury encounters a difficulty. The people are showing less disposition to buy these bonds. Month after month last year the people bought fewer bonds than they cashed in. To put it another way, the Treasury was obliged, month by month, to pay out more money to redeem old bonds than it took in by selling new ones. This went on even during the months when the Treasury was conducting its especially vigorous and highly organized bond-selling drive last summer. In July the Treasury was obliged to pay out some $50,000,000 more to redeem old bonds than it took in by selling new ones. Going into the red to pay off old bonds while making a drive to sell new ones is, as a fiscal operation of the government, worse than merely futile.

Dollar Value Down

Conceivably the reason some people have been buying fewer savings bonds might be lack of money to pay for them. A more probable and generally accepted reason is that the people have been disappointed in their experience with the bonds. True, a person who in 1940 bought a ten-year bond got back from the government in 1950 the exact number of dollars promised on the date promised at the rate of interest promised. But in terms of goods, the bond buyer's experience was not so satisfactory.

When a bond buyer in 1940 put a dollar into a bond, he in terms of goods put in, for example, five dozen of eggs. When the government returned his dollar in 1950 it returned, in purchasing power, barely two dozen eggs. That experience has been common. In 1940 a dollar would buy three pounds of butter; in 1950, less than two pounds. Of bacon the fall of the dollar in purchasing power was from four pounds to less than two. And so on as to many items of food, clothing, building material, most of the things consumers buy.

It is little wonder if bond buyers felt disappointment. And it would be understandable if the disappointment took on some resentment when the bond buyer came to realize that the fall in the purchasing power of his saved dollars had been caused in large part by policies and practices of the same government that had sold him the bonds. He saw the prices of food made higher than they would otherwise be by government price support of farm crops, which included, in the case of potatoes, purchase of great quantities at artificial prices fixed by the government followed in 1947 by destruction of them, and in other years by sale at normal prices for uses other than food. He saw the government buy up great quantities of butter and of eggs and hold them off the market. He saw the government, by one device or another, cause the prices of nearly all foods to be higher than they would normally have been.

May Propose Incentive

Herein lies the real problem of the government and the true answer. Faced by falling off of purchases of savings bonds the Treasury is said to be considering a device, reported by Albert Clark in the "Wall Street Journal," a slight increase in rate of interest on existing bonds provided the holder does not cash them in but continues to hold them after the end of the ten-year term. But any increase of interest would be slight compared with the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar if this goes on at a pace like that in the past. The real answer is to stop the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar—to enable the bond buyer to feel assured that his saved dollars, when he gets them back in old age or upon retirement, will buy him as much food or other goods as they did when he saved them.

In the bond buying drive expected to be launched by the Treasury, it will of course make the usual promises it makes and keeps about the amount to be paid back, the date of payment, rate of interest and the like. It could check the present falling off in purchases of savings bonds by an additional promise—to the effect that the government will follow no policy or practice likely to cause the purchasing power of the dollar to go lower.

The purchase of savings bonds by the people is a valuable contribution to the operation of government, the savings bond buyer is a buttress of government finance. Of all the groups that compose our society, the saviegs bond buyer has an especially strong claim to consideration by the government, a claim based on simple justice to the bond buyer and on the interest of the government in having a sound fiscal system.

The Way Things Look

The Wall Street Journal the other day undertook to boil down all the economic information they could get into a useful forecast for Americans generally.

The artcle was two columns long, and wide measure at that, so any attempt to summarize this summary is bound to be inadequate. But it makes certain points that are worth getting a good grip on.

For instance, it suggests that 1951 may be a great deal like 1942—a year that brought much heavier taxes, gasoline rationing, conscription on a huge scale, a stock market slump and a night club boom, and black markets.

Of course, everybody should know by this time that taxes will be higher. Defense spending is zooming, and no attempt is being made by the White House to reduce non-essential spending. But this article notes that taxes will be felt not only directly but in the form of price increases. It says bluntly there will be more inflation, so that the dollars not taxed away will shrink further, and that economic controls will not solve the problem.

That's the straight of the matter, and the American people ought to realize it. But this article is more enlightening than most on this same subject because it points out that there is a real basis for that hope. It observes that the defense program in 1942 took a third of the nation's output and will take only a sixth—unless it continues to grow—in 1951. And the nation's production capacity has grown.

Statistics reveal that the U. S. now generates more electric energy than it did nine years ago, produces more materials, has more manpower, grows more food and fiber, manufactures more goods.

Although the economy is tighter, there is room to move around and get in position for defense. If there is wise management at Washington, this country need not become a totalitarian state.

Russia Spurns Peace

There is nothing to support a forlorn hope that Russia would be favorable to world peace, even if it could be obtained on its own selfish terms.

An official military publication, the Army Information Digest, is authority for the statement that Russia is completely geared for war under a program which begins with the youngest children in school. These are taught the meaning of military terms, and given a foundation which will make it easier to assure actual military service at the earliest possible age.

The Digest says Russia's present armed strength begins with 4,500,000 men under arms. Of this number 3,000,000 are actually in the army, trained and equipped. All males who reach the age of 19 are subject to conscription, and actual military service runs to five years. Only those over 50, or physically unfit, are exempt from military service.

Russian women also are subject to military service, with more than 2,000,000 in combat organizations in the last war.

During all the periods of training Russian soldiers are fed Communist propaganda, and they know little else politically. The Digest says the Russian economy is devoted solely to preparation for war, the inference being that the goal is infliction of Communist rule on the entire world.

There isn't a single straw in the wind that indicates Russia desires peace, even on appeasement terms.

A woman tells her troubles to a doctor. But when a man gets into trouble he needs a policeman or a lawyer.

Cabinet Rumors

With Americans searching for leadership in these perilous times, one possibility is that leadership might be promoted by an infusion of new personages into the Cabinet. This would have the advantage of making improved advice available to the President.

Opposition to Secretary Dean Acheson of the State Department, it seems reached the point where Acheson was to be permitted to resign. But those who oppose him pressed their attacks so hotly they ran into a road block created by the President's well known obstinacy. It is still probable that Acheson will go, but probably not in the next week or two.

Other members of the Cabinet rated as contributing little to the wisdom of the President's official family are Secretary Snyder of the Treasury Department, Secretary Brannan of the Agriculture Department, Secretary Donaldson of the Post Office Department and Secretary Chapman of the Interior Department.

Some or all of these men may be replaced—or none of them may be. But many Americans are convinced it would be of benefit to the nation if these posts could be filled by men of high capacity who never were pally with political left-wingers.

History would be more esteemed by everybody if it repeated only its happier phases.

Near East Ill Will

Other parts of the world may be dismayed at the possibility of war, but not the Arab states of the Near East. If Arab newspapers reflect the vews of their readers, they advocate a general Arab attack on the new state of Israel. That may serve to distract citizens' attention from the pressing economic problems of the Arab states, Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Syria and Jordan. They need badly the business and technical skill which Israle could furnish, while Israel for her part is in desperate want of the agricluture products which the Arabs could offer.

Some of the more responsible Arab statesmen would be willing to ajourn this feud with Israel. Their constituents, however have been so worked up with anti-Israel arguments that they are not willing to settle down to peace. In justice, it must be admitted that the Arabs have grievances also, particularly in connection with the many Arab residents of Palestine who were summarily evicted to make room for the new Jewish immigration from Europe.

As with the United States, both sides find that military expenditures cramp the governments' ability to improve the living conditions of their peoples. Observers of the situation hope that the present hostility will produce nothing more dangerous than bickering.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Deep Depression

MANY MEN and women who commit suicide do so because they are abnormally depressed. It is obvious that the severity of the condition was not recognized because after the news of the tragedy reaches the family its members frequently admit that the deceased had been moody and blue for some time prior to taking his life. Had the signficance of the depression been recognized the catastrophe might have been averted.

It is natural to become blue from time to time thru the usual vicissitudes that bring on unhappiness. These include broken love affairs, sickness in the family, politics, world affairs, and the loss of a cherished one. But the period of discouragement is shortlived and in time the majority become more optimistic. True melancholy presents a more difficult problem. The depression becomes so deeply entrenched that it has a profound influence on every aspect of existence. The victim worries about conditions that should not be given a second thought. This "much ado about nothing" offers one of the first clews that the emotional state is far from normal.

The individual is gloomy and downhearted most of the time, cries easily, and feels inferior and unworthy to be alive. It is this feeling of inadequacy and hopelessness that leads to attempted suicide. Insomnia and lack of appetite make matters worse. Weight loss follows and the mind is so cloudy from lack of sleep that rational thinking is impossible. As a result, the feeling of inadequacy increases.

These persons need expert care because the majority are not in a condition to overcome the depression by themselves. One of the worst bits of advice is to recommend a trip or a vacation, which usually adds to the confusion and makes them more apprehensive. Furthermore the melancholic cannot be cheered up or reasoned with; it is useless to tell him to forget his troubles.

Home care also is inadvisable even tho spontanous cure occurs occasionally. It is up to the responsible members of the family to take the bull by the horns and come to the rescue of the helpless victim. After all, with proper care, the outlook is excellent. The sufferer needs to be placed where he can be protected against visitors and obtain rest, good food, and careful nursing. Shock treatment and other forms of psychotherapy are useful. As soon as the change in mood comes on, improvement begins but one of the most common mistakes is to take the patient home too soon. Unless he is completely well, symptoms are likely to return and the months of treatment are wasted.

We do not know why some are subject to depressions. The condition is prone to occur among the most intelligent and the list of victims includes many of our most talented men and women. Some are perfectionists and become upset when little things go wrong. There is a belief among physicians that a metabolic disturbance lies behind these mood changes. At any rate, early recognition and treatment are important in saving some of our best and most productive workers.

TOMORROW: Survival of victims of coronary thrombosis.

SNEEZING

Mrs. G. writes: Could a woman who is three months pregnant harm the baby by sneezing when she has a cold?

REPLY

No. The baby is well protected from strain of this nature. However, one sneeze after another, day in and day out, might led to miscarriage. This would be the exception rather than the rule.

BLOOD TYPE MATE

N. W. writes. Does a woman with type O blood have to marry a man with the same type in order to have children?

REPLY

Fortunately, no, but even if this were so, you would have a wider choice than A, B, and AB blood types because O is the most common group. The blood type has nothing to do with pregnancy except in relation to the RH factor. These groups are incompatible in a small percentage of the population.

CHINESE NEW YEAR

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Only a handful know it, but the raging arguments between President Truman and Sen. Robert A. Taft could have been avoided.

A few weeks after his big election victory in Ohio in November, Taft sent word to the White House he would be glad to sit down with Mr. Truman and talk over the problems of defense with the view to reaching a closer cooperation between the Administration and the GOP leadership.

Senator Taft's position, as expressed by such nonpolitical members of the Adiminstration team as Undersecretary of Defense Robert Lovett, was that he had not made up his mind on foreign policy and wanted to hear all sides. In fact, friends of Taft said that he was so anxious to attain the stature of invalid Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, that he was willing to drop isolationism if he could be shown it was against our best interests.

This was reported to President Truman by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also by Secretary of Defense George Marshall. They urgently felt the Senator should be invited to the White House.

The White House staff, however, argued against it. Sensing some political trick, most of the Presidential advisers felt that Truman should not open his doors to Taft unless the Senator agreed, in advance, to support a bipartisan foreign policy.

President Truman, who has always had a sneaking admiration for Taft, listened to the arguments. At one moment he was inclined to throw protocol to the wind, call Taft to his office, take down his hair and say, "Bob, we're in a jam in the world. We need your help!" But he was talked out of it.

Finally, after some three weeks of bickering within the White House circle, a compromise was reached. Taft would be invited in, but only as one of a group of Congressional leaders summoned to the White House for a formal conference.

Net result was that the rebuffed Taft angrily told the Republican conference he was opposed even to "consulting" with the Administration. And, in his foreign policy speech last week, he accused the President of violating the Constitution by sending troops to Korea.

King of The Justice Department

Nevada's barrel-chested, silvermaned Sen. Pat McCarran is the worst tyrant in the Senate, and he doesn't care who knows it.

Even in the presence of a dumbfounded visitor, McCarran telephoned Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford and gave him a humilating tongue-lashing.

"Hello, Ford. What about that young fellow I referred to you for a job?" demanded the Nevadan.

Ford mumbled an explanation about the tight Justice Department budget.

"That's no excuse," snorted McCarran who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has almost life-and-death power over the Justice Department. "If you haven't got any money left to put him on, you certainly know where to come for a deficiency appropriation. Who controls your budget?"

Both McCarran and Ford knew the answer to that question. For McCarran is also chairamn of the Appropriations Subcommittee that holds the Justice Department's purse strings.

Meekly, Ford promised an opening for McCarran's friend in another two months.

"Two months from now is too late," snapped McCarran, his silver hair bristling. Then he bluntly ordered: "Ford, put him on the first of the month."

Timidly, Ford agreed.

"That's better, Peyton," chortled McCarran. "Now let's make that a deal, say, 'cross my heart.'"

Ike's Advice

Sitting in the Washington apartment of his good friend, humorist George E. Allen, Ike listened to predictions that the British Empire was falling apart, that the French would not fight, that the U. S. A. was hopelessly divided and without leadership, and that Russia would seize Europe before he could organize its defenses.

Finally Eisenhower rose and punched out these words: "Anyone who has ever lived with our boys in action knows that we are still the most dynamic nation in the world. But we've lost faith in ourselves. What we need is to prove to ourselves and the world what we can do. That way we will strengthen our allies and make aggression by the enemy impossible. I know we can do it."

This caused George Allen to reminisce: "Do you remember how pessimistic I was when you first went to England to start a second front? I told you Hitler was going to bottle up the Mediterranean, knock Russia out of the war and invade Ireland.

"Well, you gave us this same advice then," concluded Allen, "and you were absolutely right. I'll string along with you now, too."

"Where Do We Get the Money?"

Tall, whip-tongued GOP Congressman Bob ("Where are you going to get the money?") Rich retired from Congress the other day after 20 years of almost uninterrupted sermonizing on government economy. Even fair deal foes joined in the applause as the colorful Pennsylvanian bowed out with this valedictory poem on his favorite theme:

"A New Year's resolution that would do the country the greatest good
"Would be to economize in government spending, as you should.
"Colleagues, as the New Year begins for 1951
"The best solution I could offer, by gum,
"Is that Congress would be wise to economize.
"Now I wish you joy, pleasure, health, happiness and sich,

Tight Squeeze

War Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson is caught in a squeeze between his new duties as mobilization boss and his old ties with General Electric. He may be forced to crack down on the electric companies in New England, because aluminum and steel plants have been driven out of New England by the high power rates.

Also, the Aluminum Company of Canada is urging Wilson to decide in favor of expanding Canadian aluminum production, at the expense of American expansion—largely because public power projects must be built to supply extra power if more aluminum plants are built in the United States. It is no secret that the electrical industry is against public power projects.

These Days

A Billion Dollars

A FRIEND writes:

"The word 'billion' flows glibly from the pens of journalists and the tongues of radio commentators and the public accepts it without considering what a staggering sum it represents. Webster defines 'a billion' thus: a thousand million. In short, instead of saying Congress wants 70 billions in 1951, we would say, Congress wants 70 thousands millions of dollars. What would you think of this?"

The idea is a good one, but editors and others will complain that it uses up too much room. That is a matter of perspective. It used to be that if a man had $1,000,000, he figured he had about $60,000 a year and was a very rich man. I receive from my various labors more than that each year, but I am not a rich man.

In fact, when it comes to savings, I am a poor man because I can save practically nothing after I have paid federal and state taxes and the high cost of living.

Furthermore, I receive inflated dollars and pay inflated dollars and therefore those who pay me and those whom I pay are kidding each other because we are using dollars when actually we are using half-dollars or less, although the Treasury still calls them dollars. Labor kids itself by asking for more of the same, but always actually getting more tokens of less money.

Harry Truman talks about billions as though they were nickles and grew on trees. This romantic attitude would make no difference were it not that his policies are stripping this country of its natural resources and killing the initiative of our most able men, who measure the value of their earnings not by what they can spend but by what they can save.

His predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, knew what a million dollars meant, by birth, inheritance, environment and habit of mind. It seemed a paltry sum to him. True, we have become glib about it and scatter billions in our speech as he did in government expenditures. It is difficult to show the results of his efforts to get rid of these billions.

In fact, I have been trying to find out what happened to the $50,000,000,000 (pardon me, I mean the $50 thousand million) which we have in more recent years spent on the national defense and for which there is nothing to show so far as any of us, dead or alive, can discover.

We shall soon enough be in the trillion and zillion dollar class and that will be too difficult to discuss or write about.

Why not be realistic? Why not devalue our currency to what it really is? That would abolish the dollar and make our standard of currency about 42 cents. We might call the new money a Hopkins in honor of that notable spendtrift. Instead of the $ sign, we could us an H. The British might do the same with the pound, naming it after John Maynard Keynes.

It would be realistic, which I understand is a virtue because Stalin is supposed to be realistic. Anything Stalin does is supposed to be perfect, including the general use of the lie.

Now, to be even more realistic, we might as well stop buying anything in the grocery store but demand the free use of the enormous stores of food held by the government, and much of it rotting. In that way, we should not need money at all, but would get a card from a revivified OPA.

Then my friend's idea could be carried even further. We should not only drop the word, million, but arithmetic altogether. In fact, we lost all sense of arithmetic long ago, because after we add a column of earnings, we must deduct those earnings which we are only permitted to handle but not to use or to keep. Then it comes out minus, which is supposed to be plus.

If you understand how it works,

Savings Bond Purchaser Deserves Consideration

By MARK SULLIVAN

THE United States Treasury is preparing another drive to sell savings bonds to the people, meaning ask the people to loan more money to the government. The Treasury needs to. It is now generally recognized that the cost of the present war and preparedness for more cannot be paid wholly out of taxes. While "pay as we fight" is a worthy aspiration and is likely to be fulfilled in considerable part, it will not be possible to pay the whole cost out of the taxes raised by any practicable rate, however high. The Treasury will need to borrow large amounts.

In preparing a drive to ask the people to buy more savings bonds, the Treasury encounters a difficulty. The people are showing less disposition to buy these bonds. Month after month last year the people bought fewer bonds than they cashed in. To put it another way, the Treasury was obliged, month by month, to pay out more money to redeem old bonds than it took in by selling new ones. This went on even during the months when the Treasury was conducting its especially vigorous and highly organized bond-selling drive last summer. In July the Treasury was obliged to pay out some $50,000,000 more to redeem old bonds than it took in by selling new ones. Going into the red to pay off old bonds while making a drive to sell new ones is, as a fiscal operation of the government, worse than merely futile.

Dollar Value Down

Conceivably the reason some people have been buying fewer savings bonds might be lack of money to pay for them. A more probable and generally accepted reason is that the people have been disappointed in their experience with the bonds. True, a person who in 1940 bought a ten-year bond got back from the government in 1950 the exact number of dollars promised on the date promised at the rate of interest promised. But in terms of goods, the bond buyer's experience was not so satisfactory.

When a bond buyer in 1940 put a dollar into a bond, he in terms of goods put in, for example, five dozen of eggs. When the governmen returned his dollar in 1950 it re turned, in purchasing power, barel two dozen eggs. That experience ha been common. In 1940 a dolla would buy three pounds of butter in 1950, less than two pounds. C bacon the fall of the dollar in pur chasing power was from four pound to less than two. And so on as t many items of food, clothing, build ing material, most of the thing consumers buy.

It is little wonder if bond buyer felt disappointment. And it woul be understandable if the disappoint ment took on some resentment whe the bond buyer came to realize tha the fall in the purchasing power o his saved dollars had been cause in large part by policies and prac tices of the same government tha had sold him the bonds. He saw th prices of food made higher tha they would otherwise be by govern ment price support of farm crop which included, in the case of pota toes, purchase of great quantities a artificial prices fixed by the govern ment followed in 1947 by destructio of them, and in other years by sal at normal prices for uses other tha food. He saw the government bu up great quantities of butter an of eggs and hold them off the mar ket. He saw the government, by on device or another, cause the price of nearly all foods to be higher tha they would normally have been.

May Propose Incentive

Herein lies the real problem o the government and the tru answer. Faced by falling off of pur chases of savings bonds the Trea sury is said to be considering a de vice, reported by Albert Clark in th "Wall Street Journal," a slight in crease in rate of interest on existin bonds provided the holder does no cash them in but continues to hol them after the end of the ten-yea term. But any increase of interes would be slight compared with the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar if this goes on at a pace like that in the past. The real answe is to stop the fall in the purchasin power of the dollar—to enable the bond buyer to feel assured that his saved dollars, when he gets them back in old age or upon retirement, will buy him as much food or other goods as they did when he saved them.

In the bond buying drive expected to be launched by the Treasury, it will of course make the usual promises it makes and keeps about the amount to be paid back, the date of payment, rate of interest and the like. It could check the present falling off in purchases of savings bonds by an additional promise—to the effect that the government will follow no policy or practice likely to cause the purchasing power of the dollar to go lower.

The purchase of savings bonds by the people is a valuable contribution to the operation of government, the savings bond buyer is a buttress of government finance. Of all the groups that compose our society, the saviegs bond buyer has an especially strong claim to consideration by the government, a claim based on simple justice to the bond buyer and on the interest of the government in having a sound fiscal system.

Afghan-Pakistan Bitterness Over Border State Growing

NEW DELHI—(AP) — Afghanistan and Pakistan are under increasing pressure to settle an argument over a would-be nation which exists now only in some people's minds.

The "nation" is Pakhtoonistan. If it came into being, it would reduce Western Pakistan to about half its present size. Afghanistan is all for it. Paksitan is understandably indignant. India is an interested spectator.

Pakhtoonistan, as proponents see it, would be an independent homeland for tough, trigger-happy Pathan tribesmen. It would stretch from Chitral state, in northwest frontier province, through Baluchistan to the Arabian Sea. It would have an area of 60,000 square miles inhabited by some 7,000,000 tribesmen and a number of other people. All of it would be south of what Pakistan considers its border with Afghanistan.

Afghanistan, supporting the Pathans, and Pakistan, bent on keeping its present frontier intact, have been arguing about Pakhtoonistan since the partition of this subcontinent in 1947.

The British suggested a conference on the question in 1949. The United Nations made a similar recommendation. The Shah of Iran offered to mediate. Now the United States, interested in keeping Asia as peaceful as possible, has urged "non-officially" that a quick solution be sought.

Pakistan says it's all in favor of a conference. So does Afghanistan. The trouble is, they want to talk about different things. Pakistan insists it won't talk about changing its borders. Afghanistan replies that's just what it wants to discuss.

The border in question is the Durand Line, drawn by the British in 1893. Afghanistan claims as its northern border and points out it has been recognized by Afghanis.

"With this history, Pakistan can never agree to discuss any claim of Afghanistan on our territory," said Ismail Chundrigar, governor of the northwest frontier province, in Karachi recently.

"The Durand Line," Najib-Ullah Khan, Afghan ambassador to India, told a press conference here, "was based on a treaty signed with Great Britain. With the withdrawal of British power from the Indian subcontinent, the Durand Line no longer has any legal existence."

Pro-Pakhtoonistan forces have other arguments. They say the area was practically independent when the British ruled India and that Modammed Ali Jinnah, founder of Pakistan, promised Pakistan would not interfere with the freedom of the northwest frontier province. They claim Pakistoonistan has the factors essential for an independent state: Common race, language, and culture.

The Pakistanis reply that the tribesmen were quite willing to become part of Pakistan, which, like Afghanistan, is a Moslem state. They point to the hospitals, schools and roads that are being built in the tribal areas and to irrigation projects getting underway. The Pakistanis consider the Pakhtoonistan movement the work of a few troublemakers with no real backing from the tribesmen. Many of these "troublemakers" are in Pakistani jails.

Reds Reportedly Boast Of Ability To Sabotage Defense Mobilization

NEW YORK — (AP) — Newsweek magazine says the Communist Party, at its recent national convention, boasted of its ability and readiness to sabotage defense mobilization.

The magazine says carefully screened delegates were told the party has the "machinery and forces to initiate and lead" such sabotage.

Newsweek does not give the source of its information, which is to appear in its Jan. 8 issue.

The convention last week was closed to press and public. The only official news from it came in handouts from party headquarters at the end of each day's session.

Party leaders, Newsweek says, called for "carefully executed slowdowns . . . in opposition to the planned speedup of workers, particularly those in war industries."

Adds Newsweek:

"To carry out the sabotage of the defense program, the party boasted that it had 22,000 dues-paying members (45 per cent of the entire membership of 48,000) in basic industries."

The magazine quotes the party itself as saying its members in basic industry were "schooled in our party's theory and tactics" and prepared for "a revival of militant trade unionism" through the 11 Communist-dominated unions recently ousted from the CIO.

Despite Communist pleas of poverty, Newsweek quotes party leaders as boasting of "a reserve fund of several million dollars to carry on our work no matter what course events take."

The magazine says a convention resolution called for intensification of the "crusade for peace," recognition of Communist China, admittance of Red China to the United Nations and outlawing of the atom bomb.

The party, Newsweek adds, also took credit for the "get our boys out of Korea" movement.

Radio, Bath Tub Used In Suicide

NEWPORT, N. H., Jan. 9 (AP)—A suicide by electrocution, in which a radio set and a bath tub filled with water were employed, was reported by a medical referee.

Dr. John Monroe said Mrs. Grover Gillingham, 53, wrote a suicide note Saturday, then plugged in a radio and stepped into the tub.

The water, he explained, acted as an "excellent conductor and the current went through her body and caused her death."

AVERAGE COLLEGE STUDENT APPEARS TO BE DRESSING CONSERVATIVELY BUT SOME NEW FADS HAVE STARTED

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

In the case of the girls, they're most likely to wear sweaters and skirts, saddle shoes and as many articles of plaid as they can afford. Blue jeans, levis and sloppy dressing are passe.

In the case of boys, they're sticking to white buckskin shoes, preferably dirty, gray flannels or blue jeans and corduroy jackets.

There are, however, a few college fads being launched around the country, as witness:

Lehigh has adopted, almost as a uniform, blue jeans, sweat shirts and corduroy jackets of maroon or bright green.

Radcliffe girls are pretty dressy above the hemline, but wear thick white socks and sneakers or loafers below.

At Stephens College in Missouri—and at the University of Kentucky — almost every student packs a ukelele. University of Southern California girls affect small scarfs knotted tightly around the throat.

Hood College, Maryland, girls are wearing long flannel nightshirts. The co-eds at the University of Kentucky like short hair with no curls worn with long pendant earrings. The Kentucky men are wearing black colonel-type string ties with their (dirty) white buckskins.

Princeton lads as well as those at the University of California are found mostly in khaki pants or blue jeans.

But for student fads and fancies, Tuskegee Institute in Alabama takes any prizes. Here is a sampling:

Women students go in for colorful ties worn with blouses with French cuffs and man-style collars, stockings with designs on heels and ankles, carry bright-colored umbrellas. The men have discovered berets, plaid linen caps, levis worn with flashy key chains, pastel colored dress shirts—and they carry large- old-fashioned black umbrellas.

Do you walk as beautifully as a Powers Girl? Today's quiz will help you find any flaws in the steps you take!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

DO YOU WALK in "beauty like the night" and like the Powers Girls? If you've been practicing the walking instructions given in this column from time to time, you should be able to do so. And if you take the following quiz, you'll know just how well you are doing.

Place "T" for true or "F" for false after each statement.

True Or False?

1. Your posture is not an important factor in walking. 2. Your body weight must roll from the center of the heel through the middle of the foot to the ball with every step. 3. It is physically impossible to tilt the pelvis if the knees are flexed (bent).

4. To walk like a model, you must walk an imaginary straight line. 5. Relaxed muscular action contributes to a shoddy walk. 6. You maintain the same posture when ascending the stairs as when walking on a level surface. 7. You should go up and down stairs on tiptoe.

Now, check the beauty of your walk!

1. False: Posture is the most important element in a beautiful walk. Remember: Pull your head out of your neck, your neck out of your shoulders, your waist out of your hips and tilt your pelvis so that your hips are tucked under! 2. True. 3. False. It is physically impossible to tilt your pelvis if your knees are tensed (right).

The Model Way

4. False: (I'll bet I caught you on that one!) Models do not walk on one imaginary straight line—at least, not the good models. Walk on two close, parallel lines. 5. False: Keep your shoulders, arms and knees relaxed if you want smooth flowing motion. 6. True: Hold the body erect and the chin parallel to the floor.

7. False: Not unless you are trying to reduce the calves of your legs! In any other case, put your foot flat on the tread with your weight well forward on the ball of your foot. Let the levers in your knees elevate you evenly from one step to another.

How did you do? If you are having any problems in attaining a beautiful walk, drop me a card in care of this newspaper and I'll make them the subject of a future column.

By the way, what became of Henry the Morgue? I have not heard his name mentioned for a long time. It is his chief assistant, Harry Dexter White, whom we read about. White's fame is eternal, having been preserved in one of Whittaker Chambers's pumpkins.

Straight-Line Silhouette Is In Cards For Spring

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The string bean silhouette, softened by tendrils of drapery, scarfs or fanciful collars, is in the cards for spring.

This fact was made clear to some 150 visiting fashion editors attending the opening day of New York's hectic week of spring style previews.

The editors, representing newspapers throughout the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, learned, moreover, that it will cost more to be well-dressed this year, and that wise women will buy conservatively wth an eye to making their clothes last for the duration of the national emergency.

Setting the theme of well-bred understatement was the collection of Herbert Sondheim, opening the round of showings with a group of timeless styles in handsome fabrics. They are notable for simplicity of cut—the kind of clothes, spectators agreed, that will not go out of fashion in the near future.

Sondheim applies the scarf-drapery treatment effectively on simple sheath dresses, to break the severe straight line. Detachable over-skirts and contrasting fabrics and colors accomplish the same effect.

Capri, also among the early starters, adds interest to the straight-line silhouette by the addition of starched white cape collars to slim, dark tailored dresses. Stoles, scarfs and removable matching capes also are employed.

From the early showings emerged the general outlines of the mode for spring, slim and tailored for daytime, bouffant and bare-topped after dark, with skirt lengths slightly shorter than last fall.

WASHINGTON.—EUPHEMIA Virden, daughter of former Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Virden, is now secretly married to that Daily Worker reporter she has been romancing . . . When the story broke in this column in 1948 that young Miss Virden, the daughter of a high-up Commerce Department official, was working for the Soviet News Agency Tass, her father resigned from his government job . . . Heartbroken over his daughter's unsavory connections, his last hope must have withered when he heard that she had married the Daily Worker reporter . . . The fellow has a grown-up son, had been married about 18 years, and got a divorce to marry Euphemia Virden.

Speaking of hWite House Aides, the youngest White House Aide of all times, six-year-old Richard Feeney, has been another Holiday casualty . . . Had a bad cold and couldn't tend to his duties at the Executive Mansion . . . The squeezable little aide, son of Commander and Mrs. Joseph Feeney of Chevy Chase, Md., has his own official title . . . Just about as official as you can get, too! . . . Harry Truman, President of the United States himself, conferred the title on Master Richard.

"Rickey," that's his nickname, was playing on the White House grounds one afternoon, waiting for his father who is a real, honest-to-goodness, grown-up aide . . . The President strolled by on his way to Blair House . . . Rickey had already made his acquaintance, so with the unperturbed assurance of most children he struck up a conversation . . . Asked the President why the squirrels on the White House lawn were so thin, while the ones in Lafayette Park, directly across the street, were so fat.

Apparently the White House guards do not allow strangers, passers-by or ordinary visitors to feed the squirrels.

But Richard Feeney, the youngest White House aide on record, has a special dispensation.

The President designated young Richard "Official Squirrel Feeder of the White House."

Some months ago, the little boy who's in the first grade at the Blessed Sacrament Church, was attending services in his home town with his mother . . . He slipped away quietly to offer his total wealth (35) cents to the parish priest with the request, "Will you say a mass for the President?"

"Of the United States!"

"Do you know the President?"

"Of course, don't you?" said Ricky.

The priest had to admit he didn't, but agreed to say the mass. . . And Rickey Feeney still prays for the President every night.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth living up to her ward in the Austine Poll as frankest woman in Washington . . . Alice never pulls her punches and she let Justice Felix Frankfurter have it square on the snozz!

The Justice, who last year appeared as a character witness for Alger Hiss, was especially brilliant during a dinner an evening or so ago . . . When he began slicing up Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Alice jumped in to do battle . . . Most of the ringsiders conceded the bout to Alice when she rose and said "Good night, Mr. Justice. No matter what you say I will not turn my back on General MacArthur!"

At the newspaper women's party for new women in Congress a couple of beagle-eyed gals at one table were sniffling over a hot lead:

What has happened to the 19 or 20 Communist Party cards of witnesses who were subpoened in the Hollywood hearings of a few years ago? . . . Has the House Committee on Un-American Activities still got them? . . . Or have they been lost? . . . Strayed? . . . Stolen?

Medal Of Honor Given Relatives Of Five Heroes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Into the hands of the relatives of five infantry soldiers missing or dead on Korean battlefields President Truman placed today the Medal of Honor, telling them this is "the greatest honor that can come to any man."

And, in kindly tone, he told these wives or widows or parents "I know you'd rather have your boy back."

These are the men who didn't come back:

Sgt. First Class Charles W. Turner of Boston, killed as he stood on the bullet-swept top of a tank, firing at the enemy and calling directions for the tank's 75 millimeter gun.

First Lt. Frederick F. Henry of Clinton, Okla., who stayed alone in a foxhole to fight off the Communists so his platoon could withdraw to safety. He wasn't seen again.

Maj. Gen. William F. Dean of Berkeley, Calif., who commanded the 24th Division until he stayed behind while his division withdrew. He fought enemy tanks, directed the withdrawal, helped carry wounded, then went out to find more wounded GIs. He has been missing since that July day at Taejon.

Pfc. Melvin L. Brown, the 21-year-old lad from Mahaffey, Pa., who held off the Communists when they attacked his outfit, enabling his unit to get into position and finally drive off the Reds. That was near the "walled city" of Hasan. Brown fired all his ammunition. Then he threw all his grenades. Although wounded seriously, he hauled his entrenching shovel from his pack and beat off the Red soldiers as they sought to climb onto the wall where he stood. He is missing.

Master Sgt. Travis E. Watkins, Gladewater, Tex., was with a unit surrounded by the enemy for four days. He took leadership, made sallies from the protective foxholes to snatch weapons and ammunition from the enemy dead, killed at least 11 Communist soldiers himself and then, wounded and dying, ordered the men to leave him and start back for the main lines.

PRESIDENTIAL GREETING—President Truman shakes hands with Sgt. Christopher Henry, wounded brother of a hero missing in Korea, at a ceremony in Washington yesterday. Standing beside Sgt. Henry's stretcher is Miss Betty Southam, sister of his brother's wife. Seated in background are relatives who received Medals of Honor for soldiers killed or missing in Korea. Left to right are Mrs. William F. Dean, wife of the missing major general; Mrs. Frederick F. Henry, wife of missing first lieutenant; Mrs. Travis E. Watkins, widow of Master sergeant killed in action; Mrs. Hazel O. Turner, mother of Sgt. First Class Charles W. Turner, killed in action, and Edward D. Brown, father of Pfc. Melvin L. Brown, missing in action.

U. N. artillery and Allied warplanes supported the counterattack.

Censorship forbade mention of the units involved in the fight north of Chechon but it is possible to say that the first French blood shed in Korea was lost in the fight for Wonju.

A French battalion along with a Dutch unit is attached to an American division in Korea.

The French troops got into the fight north of Wonju. Later they were surrounded and had to fight their way out of the trap. One officer was killed and several enlisted men were wounded.

Low hanging clouds, which spilled snow and rain over most of the peninsula during the day, hampered air attacks. Some instrument-guided aircraft found military targets and worked them over.

B-29s dumped more than 100 tons of bombs on the northern Red capital of Pyongyang for the second consecutive day. The Superforts used their radar-eyes to locate objectives.

Etna Eruption Renewed

The volcanologist's office reported new activity from a cone 7,346 feet above sea level. Large clouds of volanic ash and small stones were blown high into the sky.

Second Worst Polio Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said today 1950 was the nation's second worst polio year with 33,344 persons afflicted. The worst year was 1949 with 42,375 cases.

Allies And German Generals Open Talks

BONN, Germany, Jan. 9 (AP)—Allied and German generals opened secret talks here today over adding West German troops to the Atlantic pact command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, whose expeditionary armies finally crushed Hitler's Wehrmacht against the Soviet anvil less than six years ago.

A dozen military and civilian experts joined at the luxurious Petersberg hotel overlooking the Rhine in a three-hour conference whose object, a communique said, was "to explore the part which Germany might assume for the maintenance of peace and in the common defense of Europe." That means defense against Russia.

An Allied delegate said the meeting, to be followed by another next Tuesday, was "useful and friendly."

Italy Gets Go Sign

ROME, Jan. 9 (AP)—The United States has given Italy the go sign on a $416,000,000 program of employment and factory expansion to turn Italy's industries into an arsenal for the Atlantic pact powers, reliable sources said tonight.

GOP Senators Unable To Agree

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Senate Republican policy makers were unable to agree today on a proposed new system for assigning members to committees.

Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) said the GOP policy would meet again tomorrow (4 p. m. EST) to consider a plan by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) intended to assure every Republican senator of a place on at least one major committee.

The group met for an hour and a half today behind closed doors without reaching a decision.

Sen. Millikin (R-Colo.), chairman of the conference of all 47 GOP senators serving at this session, said he doubted that the McCarthy proposal would accomplish its purpose even if approved.

The final decision will rest with the full conference which is to meet Thursday but the Policy Committee was asked to advise the GOP conference before it acts.

East Shivers; Mercury Climbs In Midwest

[By The Associated Press]

The cold-plagued Midwest got a taste of clear, springlike weather Tuesday while the East shivered in the tail end of a cold snap.

The mercury pushed well above the freezing mark in the central part of the country. Even higher temperatures were forecast for Wednesday.

At noon Tuesday, St. Louis had a reading of 50 degrees, Tulsa, Okla., 51; Kansas City, 46, and Jacksonville, Fla., 49. Chicago had a 40 degree temperature at 2 p. m.

Albany, N. Y., had an overnight low reading of eight degrees below zero and Burlington, Vt., -4. The cold extended deep into the southeast with Jacksonville, Fla., reporting a low of 26, New Orleans 24 and Miami 36. San Antonio, Tex., had a low of 28.

Royal Trip Planned

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP)—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will visit Gibraltar, Malta, Aden and Ceylon on their way to Australia and New Zealand early next year, Buckingham Palace said tonight.

Gen. Eisenhower Flies To Brussels

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 9 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower came to this old European battleground today with a demand for strong troops and a promise that, with them, western civilization can be preserved without fighting.

Brussels was the General's second major stop on a tour that began Sunday in Paris and will ultimately take him to all the countries banded together in the North Atlantic alliance against aggressive Communism.

About 4,000 French Communists demonstrated against Gen. Eisenhower in Paris after he had left his Hotel Astoria headquarters there, but failed in their advertised plans to tie up the city with a strike. Italian Communists stepped up their anti-Eisenhower campaign by threatening strikes when he visits Rome. Belgium's Communist press denounced his mission without calling for demonstrations.

In Brussels, as in Paris, Gen. Eisenhower was welcomed by government officials and by American military and diplomatic personnel.

His flight from Paris was of itself a demonstration of the special problem that Europe presents. In less time than it takes to fly from New York to Washington, he flew across the bitterest battlefields of two world wars.

The press has warmly welcomed him, and welcomed as well President Truman's statement that defense of Europe was a necessary part of the defense of America.

Row Between Sen. McCarthy And Pearson Flares Anew

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) challenged the Army today to tell whether Columnist Drew Pearson is being allowed access to secret military messages at the Pentagon—and if so, why.

The Army said it is investigating.

This latest flareup in the continuing row between the Senator and columnist grew out of a Pearson column Dec. 30, which purported to show that the Chinese Communist army fighting in Korea is a good deal smaller than had been reported. Pearson attempted to prove this by printing what he said were cables from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters.

In a letter today to Secretary of the Army Pace, McCarthy declared: "If someone is actually stealing secret decoded messages from the Pentagon and handing them to Pearson the lives of many of our young men and the security of this nation are in grave danger."

McCarthy first criticized the Dec. 30 column in a Senate speech last Friday in which he said that if the cables as published are authentic, then someone in the Pentagon decoding room "is guilty of high treason."

Pearson retorted that before using the messages, "I consulted the Pentagon which assured me there would be no security risk provided the dates of the cables were changed and a few words omitted. This was done."

Decree Hits Hungary's Industrial Workers

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 9 (AP)—Industrial workers will not get wages for rejected manufactured goods in the future, the government ordered today.

If the worker spoils material "because of being careless or inattentive" compensation must be deducted from his wages, the decree ordered.

The regulation was issued to assure "raising or productivity, reducing of cost of production and further consolidating of working discipline," the decree said.

Bread Now 20 Cents

BALTIMORE, Jan. 9 (AP)—The price of a standard loaf of bread here has gone up a penny, to 20 cents.

Fairchild Strike Move is Awaited

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 9 (AP)—Neither side had a thing to say today as the strike of 4,700 production workers at Fairchild aviation division rounded out its second day.

Management and union sources, declining to be quoted directly, indicated they are buckling down to wait each other out and that it might be a long time.

The next move is expected to come from the Air Force or the Federal Conciliation Service in Washington.

The production workers, members of the CIO-United Auto Workers and about 90 per cent of the force at Fairchild's four plants here, went on strike yesterday morning after their contract expired.

The company had offered a flat increase of 12 cents an hour, bringing the minimum wage for a classified production work to $1.27.

Kimble To Back Bill To Change School Board

Senator Named To Nominations Group

Senator Robert B. Kimble is preparing a bill to introduce in the General Assembly providing a new system for naming members of the Allegany County Board of Education.

Senator Kimble gained no ground with the measure when he introduced it during the 1949 and 1950 sessions. The bill calls for a five-member board to include three from the county majority party and two women.

The measure, which did not survive the session, was introduced in 1949 when Governor Lane replaced the only Republican on the board with a Democrat. Allegany county is proponderantly Republican.

A resolution, asking investigation of the problem of all county school boards, was sent to the Legislative Council, but this was referred to a committee which held one brief meeting and made no decisions.

Senator Kimble yesterday was named a member of the Committee on Executive Nominations.

Action in the Senate yesterday included:

SB41—by McLaughlin—To provide that opening and closing hours of places which sell alcholic beverages in Washington County may be according to Daylight Savings Time when the county is on daylight time. At present, they must abide by Standard time throughout the year. (McLaughlin, Hoff, Sybert)

Resolutions adopted — HR1 — by McNulty—Requesting the Maryland Director of Civilian Defense to report to the House what has been done by the civil defense agency and what plans it has to protect the public peace, health, safety and property of the people of the state.

John A. Harden Enlist In Air Force

John A. Harden, 20, of 301 Grand Avenue, this city, enlisted in the U. S. Army Air Corps yesterday. He will be sent to Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, for basic training. Harden attended the University of Maryland for two and one-half years.

Juvenile Court because of the age of the youth.

Welba Casteel indicated he would plead guilty to two charges of passing bad checks after Judge Harris indicated he was not arraignable on the indictments. David M. Steele, county parole and probation officer, was ordered by the court to investigate further into the case.

Arch Taylor, 61, of 106 North Mechanic Street, pleaded guilty to larceny, the third of four counts on the indictment against him. He is charged with breaking into the home of Fort Cumberland Lodge No. 176, IBPOEW, taking $35 from a cash box. The state dropped the other three counts. Jack Robb is attorney for the defendant.

Judge Harris indicated he would pass sentence Saturday on the three who pleaded guilty.

Bakery Dispute Is Unsettled

A dispute affecting a local bakery and its Uniontown, Pa., outlet has entered its fourth day with little to report on a possible understanding.

Teamsters Union, Local 453, here has been picketing Ort Brothers Bakery since Saturday. The local is seeking to obtain a contract for the driver-salesmen employed there.

Last night, at a meeting of the firm's driver-salesmen in the bakery, a local attorney officiated as a neutral election official in conducting a vote on the driver-salesmen organization.

The attorney reported to company officials that the results were unanimous, 22 to 0, in opposing organization there by the Teamsters Union.

C. E. Stutzman, business agent, in commenting on the balloting said his union will not recognize the vote.

An Ort official said the driver-salesmen had asked a representative of the company and union be present at the balloting last night.

An official of the bakery appeared, the attorney reported, but left when the union representative was not present.

Stutzman said: "We could not meet in the bakery as we cannot cross a picket line. I am willing to meet with the drivers and company in the Teamsters office here anytime."

To Be Or Not To Be, That Is The Question Among Senators

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 9 (AP) — Modest senators debated proper inaugural dress today and, for once, the Democratic majority offered to yield to the Republican minority.

Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) opened the sartorial clinic. He asked Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) for advice on tomorrow's inauguration of Republican Theodore R. McKeldin as governor.

Accepted fashion calls for leaders of both houses to be fitted out in cutaway, striped trousers and silk hats.

The discussion went like this:

Kimble: "I hear we are supposed to wear grey spats and wish to inquire whether the Senator from Calvert intends to do so and whether we shall be required to carry a cane."

Goldstein: "I suppose we should convene at 11 o'clock and get all that adjusted, namely, high hat, stiff collar and what-have-you. I think I'll just keep these same old clothes I have on (a neat blue suit in which he was married two years ago). I doubt if they've got a pair of spats in Baltimore to fit my pedal extremities.

Kimble: "We usually do what you of the majority compel us to do, so we'll dress accordingly."

Goldstein: "It seems to me we are compelled to wear what the minority wears in this case. The very nice General (William C. Purnell, chairman of the Republican governor's inauguration committee) was here last night to tell us all about it. It's best to follow what a general says, especially for the buck private."

He still balked at grey spats.

House Minority Leader Boone (D-Baltimore County) said later he'd dress as Goldstein dresses.

"Maybe we'll be independent," he added.

Board Authorizes More Welfare Aid For County

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday authorized Mrs. Elinor M. Westerfeld, director of the Allegany County Welfare Board, to place into effect on February 1, the more liberal welfare payments as set up by the State Department of Public Assistance.

Commissioner James Orr made a motion to authorize the new standards and Commissioner William H. Lemmert seconded the motion. Commissioner James Holmes was not present yesterday as he is ill

The cost of the new program for the county is expected to be $12,000. The county will receive an additional $48,000 from the state and federal governments, so that actually there will be $60,000 more available for the six months starting February 1 for payments to the aged, blind, dependent children and others eligible under the welfare program.

Mrs. Westerfeld pointed out that many persons who are employables have inquired if they would be eligible. She said these persons would not come under the program.

Mrs. Westerfeld said the new system would give increases for subsistence needs. At present one person receives $29.50 per month but under the new program the grant would be raised to $32. A person living with another would get a grant of $28 instead of the present $26.75. A person living with two other persons now receives $22.50 but would get $24 under the new plan. A person living with three or more persons now gets $21 and would obtain $22 under the plan.

Mrs. Westerfeld explained that a welfare recipient living with others who have income does not receive as much as a person living by themselves.

Two persons living alone now receive $52.50 and would get $56. Two persons living with one other person would get $48 instead of the current $45. Two persons living with two other non-welfare persons now obtain $42 but would get $44 under the plan.

Other changes would be made in the various categories.

A new category has been added. Aid to persons totally and permanently disabled will be made after a doctor fills out a form citing the case. The forms will be submitted to the State Department of Health for study and certification.

Ten To Enter Army Service January 22

Three Allegany county draft boards received orders yesterday to send 63 more men to Martinsburg W. Va., this month for pre-induction physical examinations.

Ten others are scheduled to enter Army service on January 22.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator here, said Board No. 27 will send 20 registrants January 29 for tests. Accompanying them will be 13 from Board No. 29, bringing the total of local men examined since the start of Korean hostilities to approximately 450.

The January 29 contingent will leave Queen City Station at 5:55 a. m., and return to Cumberland the same day, Fahey reported. No meals will be furnished.

James was transferred from Baltimore.

Doctor Draft Set

Records show 96 countians, excluding the area covered by the Mountain City board, have been drafted into the armed forces since the outbreak of the Korean war last June.

Fahey also observed that doctors, dentists and veterinarians under 50 years of age, and not now registered, will be required to sign for the draft January 15 at Selective Service headquarters in the Union Street County Building.

According to Fahey, between 40 and 50 medical men will be required to register from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday.

Liebau is a native of Somerset County, Pa., and has been connected with Queen City Dairy since 1921. He taught school for five years and at one time was with Kenneweg Company. He also operated his own dairy farm at one time. He is a member of the Rotary Club.

Virgil Fox, Organist, To Be In Cumberland January 17

Virgil Fox, organist, since 1946 at Riverside Church, New York, will appear January 17 at Centre Street Methodist Church under auspices of the Cumberland Choral Society. A crowded auditorium was so enthralled by the great organist's performance here last year that requests have been pouring in for a return engagement.

The great Skinner organ of one hundred and one stops in the classic Greek chapel, holding 3000, of Girard College, Philadelphia, was the scene of Virgil Fox's first recording session for Victor Red Seal records. In the hush of this vast, columned temple, Virgil Fox captured the serene and soaring melodies of Johann Sebastion Bach's "Come Sweet Death" and "Arioso," that have become legend in his concerts from Coast to Coast.

Works of other periods followed, and immediately after World War II he recorded an entire album comprising many of the works on his present nationwide tour. This album was done on an organ of two hundred stops at the amazing medieval castle of John Hays Hammond, Jr., which stands on the north shore of Boston, at a place where the land points out to the sea to the rock called "Norman's Woe" immortalized in the "Wreck of the Hesperus." Here in a setting of treasures of an ancient world set in halls of stone and gothic arches, Virgil Fox captured masterpieces of Mozart, Mendelssohn, Bach, Dupre, and an American piece "Dreams" by Hugh McAmis.

Many of these will be included on the Cumberland program which is open to the public free. A collection will be taken.

Fort Hill Cagers Win Sixth Straight Over LaSalle, 37-32

Explorers Held To One Goal By Sentinels' 1st Platoon

LaSalle Spurt Against 2nd Stringers Makes Contest Close Finish

Fort Hill High School moved up front in the city championship basketball race last night by defeating LaSalle High School's Explorers, previous conquerors of Allegany High School, before a near capacity crowd at SS. Peter and Paul gym. The score was 37-32.

A garrison finish on the part of Coach Art Slocum's outfit in the final minutes of play made it close score but it was Fort Hill all the way and the Hilltoppers were never in danger at anytime during the 32-minute tilt.

Two Platoon Pays Off

Major John J. Cavanaugh, coach of the Sentinels, used his two platoon system and it paid off as the Scarlet and White held the upper hand from opening to closing whistle.

Fort Hill's No. 1 team saw action in the first and third periods and it completely outclassed the Explorers and outpointed the North Centre Street School team, 22 points to 7. LaSalle outscored Fort Hill's No. 2 combination 25 to 15 but nine of those markers came in the last three minutes of play after Fort Hill had amassed a 13-point lead at 36-23. In fact, the Sentinels held a 13-point advantage at three different stages of the game—in the third quarter at 28-15 and in the final period at 32-19 and 36-23.

Connolly Starts Rally

With about three minutes left to play Doug Connolly started LaSalle's last ditch rally with a field goal. He added a foul. Then Moran and Marty Mullaney banged in shots to cut Fort Hill's advantage to six points at 36-30. Poling hooped a free throw for Fort Hill and Mullaney's double-decker was the last score of the game.

In the opening quarter LaSalle was limited to a single field goal and trailed at the whistle, 12-3. The Explorers did much better against the second platoon of Fort Hill in the second heat and were on the short end of an 18-11 score at intermission.

Blanked From Field

LaSalle failed to score a single field goal in the third period, was outpointed 10 to 4, and went into the final stanza trailing 28-15. One field goal in two periods was all the Blue and Gold could muster against Fort Hill's first team. The only time in the game that LaSalle showed anything at all was in the final period when the Explorers rolled up 17 points to the opposition's 9.

LaSalle made only 9 baskets in 54 shots while Fort Hill connected for 14 in 62 attempts. At the foul line LaSalle meshed 14 of 24 while the victors dunked 9 of 16. Thirty-four personal fouls were called—19 on Fort Hill and 15 on the losers.

Mullaney Tops Scorers

Starkey Joins Army

We Know They'll Fight

Flyers Hold 12-6 Edge

Want Four Officials

By C. V. BURNS

Skeets Starkey

The former Ridgeley High School athlete who was graduated from the amateur ranks in 1949 with a 30-13 record and has gone undefeated in 15 starts as a professional while under the managerial wing of Peter J. "Bunny" Buntag of Pittsburgh, enlisted in Pittsburgh and passed his physical examination last Friday. He was slated for induction yesterday.

"Skeets" is a 170-pounder now and should develop into a heavyweight while under the care of Uncle Sam.

Born at Fort Ashby, W. Va., Starkey is 21 years old and will mark his next birthday in July. His parents live at Wiley Ford.

The promising light-heavy fought his last pro match in McKeesport on December 15, stopping Billy Bradley of New Castle, Pa., in two rounds. He won 10 of his 15 pro bouts via the knockout route.

The Wiley Ford lad was among a group of youngsters that Bob "Sparky" Chisholm handled when the latter revived amateur boxing in Cumberland at the close of the Second World War.

Many of those boys who boxed here during the winter of 1945-46 are now in the army or navy.

Jack Klosterman, the Deetz Brothers ("Tiny" and Jimmie), Earl Smith, Glenn Campbell, Melvin Washington, Don Miller, Garford "Punchy" Albright and Starkey all threw leather for Chisholm and they are now under contract to Uncle Sam.

Albright was in the navy in the 2nd World War. Now he's in the army.

Robert "Doc" Dougherty who was helpful in training the local simon pures is also sporting an army uniform.

Bill Campbell, another former local leather pusher, met death in a jeep accident while in the service.

There's one thing we know for sure about this group of young men.

They'll fight.

The Cumberland Spas' next opponent in All-American Pro League play will be Altoona and those who have followed the local league games of the past few years know that the Flyers always have been a thorn in the side of Cumberland teams.

Altoona will play host to Bill Keegan's club Saturday night. Then the teams come here for a Sunday night contest.

In the past three years Altoona and Cumberland have met 18 times and the Pennsylvanians have romped off with 12 victories.

Only once did the locals hold the Flyers even and that was in 1947-48 when each team won two games. In 1948-49 the Blair Countians won five of eight games and last year the Flyers beat the Dukes' championship aggregation five times in six starts.

Altoona has won four and lost six games here and has never dropped a decision to Cumberland on the Altoona court, winning eight consecutive contests there.

Veterans on the Altoona roster are Mike Bytzura, Don Asmonga, the minor league baseball pitcher, Walt Miller, Fred Paine and last but not least, Bobby Artman, player-coach, who is also tutor of the University of Pittsburgh freshman cagers.

The Spas will be playing at home for the first time in three weeks on Sunday. Their last engagement here was on December 24 with Johnstown.

We think it would be a nice thing for the fans to turn out and renew acquaintances with the league's long-time-no-see outfit.

● — ● — ●

Saturday night at Altoona, the Spas will play in the third game of a tripleheader.

They'll meet the Flyers at 9:30. At 6:30 Potomac State meets Altoona Undergraduate Center and at 8:00 the Johnstown Clippers oppose Beaver Falls' Tommies.

At a meeting of the West Virginia Football Officials' Association the other day in Clarksburg a motion to ask the state high school athletic association to recommend four officials for all Class "A" school games was carried. The state college athletic conferences will be asked to take the same action.

W. Gordon Eismon of Charles Town, who is well known in this section, was named a vice president of the association and John R. Shelton of Keyser and Daniel R. Staley of Westernport were elevated from associate to active members.

Patrick A. Tork, of Fairmont, was elected association president.

● — ● — ●

Dr. "Skip" Hughes' St. Francis College cagers of Loretto, Pa., who trimmed the Spas here in November, closed a successful road trip in New York State on Saturday night. The Frankies whipped St. Francis (Brooklyn) 74-71 and Iona 72-66 to make their record for the season six wins and one loss.

Fred L. (Joe) Doringer, head of the Fairmont Black Diamonds in the days Cumberland was in the Middle Atlantic League, will scout for the Pittsburgh Pirates again this year.

Bradley Braves, Columbia Face Rugged Tests

Top Quint Comes East, Lions Meet Princeton

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Bradley, with a brand new lease on college basketball's No. 1 ranking, and Columbia, newest member of the first ten, face rugged tests this week that may jepardize their standing.

The Bradley Braves carry their 15-game winning streak—the season's longest—against St. John's of Brooklyn in Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

St. John's is a speedy, sharp-shooting outfit that has won ten of its 12 games. Eleventh ranked nationally, the Redmen gave Kentucky a scare before losing, 43-37. Their other defeat was a one-point loss to Kansas.

Tigers Battle Lions

Columbia's surprising Lions, who have won 17 straight games over a two-year period, face unbeaten Princeton, 20th in the latest standings, in an Ivy League fray in Columbia's gym. Princeton has an 18-game streak going, carried over from last year.

Columbia broke into the Associated Press top ten at the No. 8 position today, thus causing the only disturbance in the standings. The Lions replaced Villanova, which tumbled to 16th after bowing to Fordham last Saturday, 52-44. Columbia walloped Cornell Saturday, 85-45.

All other nine teams in the first ten held their berths, with Bradley strengthening its bid for the regular season championship it won a year ago.

Speaky Melchiorre and Company poled 126 first place votes from the 252 sports writers and broadcasters who cast ballots in the weekly poll. They amassed a total of 2320 points on the basis of ten for a first place vote, nine for second, etc.

Aggies Hold Second

Oklahoma A. and M. held second with 20 first place votes and 1811 points. Hank Iba's "possession" specialists play Tulsa Thursday and Drake Saturday.

Then follow, in the standings, Kentucky, Long Island University, St. Louis, Indiana and North Carolina State, in that order. After Columbia come Kansas State at No. 9 and Wyoming at No. 10.

The fourth and fifth teams—undefeated Long Island and twice-beaten St. Louis—clashed tonight in the Garden.

Kentucky, beaten only by St. Louis in the Sugar Bowl semifinals, will play Alabama Thursday and Notre Dame Saturday. LIU has a Thursday game with Ithaca and St. Louis has a date on the same evening with Detroit.

Here are the leading teams, with points given on the basis of 10 for first place, nine for second, etc. (first place votes and team records in parentheses, records do not include tonight's games):

Ogre Returns Box-Car Odds

Winner At Tropical Pays $62.60 In 7th

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP) — Irene Martin's Ogre, winner on opening day at 38 to 1, again paid off at box-car odds as he took the measure of nine other three-year-olds in the featured Chalet Mar Purse at Tropical Park today.

A chilled crowd of 9,272 saw this outsider subdue the leaders through the short stretch and blaze to a length and a half victory over Valley View Farm's Badger. Ridden by Tommy Lyons, Ogre paid $62.60, $17.70, and $10.20.

Third was D. J. Schneider's Elixier, while Roman Miss took fourth. Brookmeade Stable's Blue Helmet, the favorite; F. W. Hooper's Officious, winner of his debut here, and Greentree's Blinker Light, launching his winter campaign, all tired in the race, after trying to run down Badger, the pacemaker.

Betting on the event was $112,781, largest single race pool of the meeting. The time for the six furlongs was a fair 1.12 2-5.

Ted Atkinson, Greentree's first string rider, launched his 1951 saddle debut today, but missed with three mounts, including Blinker Light. He was warmly cheered by the fans.

Joe Culmone, after riding 14 consecutive losing mounts, came through with a winner on Grass Fire, $3.30 in the fifth. It was his first marker since scoring on Empty Sea in the ninth race last Thursday.

Bobby Permane, the comeback kid, accepted a mount today for the first time in two years, when he handled Feather Stitch, a longshot, in the third event. However Feather Stitch was outrun all the way, as Good Story, $10.50, proved best in the field of a dozen routers.

Permane skyrocketed to prominence at this park about five years ago when he rode five winners on three consecutive days. Bobby suffered serious injuries in a spill at Gulfstream Park two years ago. He launched his comeback last summer.

Layne To Meet Brion At Garden Feb. 9

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — Rex Layne, upset conqueror of Jersey Joe Walcott, and Cesar Brion of Argentina will meet in the ten round main event at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 9, it was announced today by Al Weill, matchmaker of the International Boxing Club.

Layne, of Lewiston, Utah, moved high into the heavyweight picture Nov. 24 when he gained a ten round decision over the veteran Walcott who was a 1 to 5 choice.

In his last start, Brion was outpointed by Joe Louis, the former heavyweight champion, in a Chicago ten rounder, Nov. 29.

Fishing Shanty

DESIGNED AND BUILT by Jack Schweigert, Roscommon, Mich., sportsman, a new, portable ice fishing shanty has nearly all the comforts of home. A neighbor, Howard Brighton, demonstrates the shanty, made of light plywood. It can be folded up into an 18x20x30-inch box with sled runners attached. Under the seat is a place for a gasoline lantern for heat. A fish box is built into the base. (International)

Brion, Gatica Are Unfrocked By Peron Order

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (INS)—Argentina recalled two ambassadors from the United States today in obvious displeasure over the way its boxers have been losing American bouts. The whole thing made sense, in a nutty sort of way, inasmuch as the ambassadors were the boxers.

A flat order from the Juan Peron government in Buenos Aires decreed that heavyweight Cesar Brion and lightweight Jose Gatica be dismissed from the foreign service.

This was the first public inkling that Brion and Gatica were in the foreign service to begin with, but a check of the Argentine consulate in New York disclosed that this indeed was the case.

Brion, Gatica and Gatica's manager, Nicholas Preziosa, who also was unfrocked by the Peron order, all were in the U. S. as "administrative employes" of the Argentine embassy.

The whole trouble was that the puglistic emissaries from the Pampas did not enjoy diplomatic immunity. Not enough, at any rate, to keep ambassador Brion from losing a decision to an embarrassingly-awful Joe Louis in Chicago a little over a month ago. Nor enough to keep the lithe Gatica from getting knocked colder than a smelt by Ike Williams in precisely one and a half minutes' time last Friday night in New York.

Navy And Hoyas Open Grid Series In 1952

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) —Navy has made another move toward reducing the strength of its future football schedules by agreeing to meet Georgetown in 1952.

The Hoyas, once an eastern power but relatively a weak sister in recent years, theoretically replace Rice or Northwestern, both of which will be dropped.

The first meeting in the new series between the Middies and Georgetown is set for Oct. 11, 1952 at Annapolis.

It is possible to install a television combination with a telephone so that the speakers can see each other.

Uncle Miltie Is Rated No. 1

Assigned 126 Pounds For Experimental

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — Uncle Miltie, a Pennsylvania-bred bay colt which ran in claiming races as a two-year-old last season then developed into one of the top juvenile stake horses, was given the No. 1 rating today for the Experimental Free Handicap of 1951.

The list of Experimental weights is prepared each January by Campbell who attempts to predict on the basis of the horses' juvenile form what they will do as three-year-olds in the classics such as the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Two Experimental free handicaps will be run at Jamaica in April, affording the first New York test of the weight assignments. The experimental No. 1 is over the six furlong route, and No. 2 is a mile and one sixteenth.

Ball May Remain As Skins' Coach

McMillin Is Latest Under Consideration

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — George Preston Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, said today A. N. (Bo) McMillan is being considered as a coach of the pro football Redskins.

But Marshall, a hard man to bring down in a conversational broken field, hastily added that:

1. Several coaches are under consideration along with McMillan, and

2. His coach still is Herman Ball, who headed the team last year, and there's a strong possibility that Ball will coach next year, too.

McMillin recently resigned as coach of the Detroit Lions. He has been in Manhattan, Kas., meeting with the Kansas State College Athletic Council.

Kansas State is looking for both an athletic director and a coach. McMillin coached there from 1928 to 1933.

Marshall said the man who will decide finally who is to succeed Ball is Ball himself.

When a reporter guffawed at this, Marshall said:

"Now there's nothing funny about this. Herman is a sort of an athletic director. If he can find a man who can improve the situation (The Redskins finished last), he'll hire him. If he can't, he may coach another year himself."

College Teams Clash Tonight

Ohioans Face Bobcats, Potomac At Shepherd

Coach Kenneth Babcock's Frostburg quint will play host to Steubenville (Ohio) College on the Mountain City court at 8 o'clock.

Frostburg Teachers have failed to win a game in six starts. Potomac State's record is 6-4.

A pair of teams that have failed to win a game this season will come together tonight when Paw Paw High plays the West Virginia Deaf School at Romney. The Mountaineers have lost six games while the Silents have dropped four.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (INS)—Joan Fontaine and Joseph Cotten can put on their traveling boots again. This team which made "September Affair" in Italy and Hollywood will be reunited in "Sound Of Years" to be made in France and Hollywood!

Joan Fontaine

Nice free trip on Hal Wallis comes up in the spring when Joan and Joe will be packed off to Paris for exteriors.

Story, from a novel by Merriam Modell, as a romantic drama about the havoc wrought between a married couple when the wife's 16-year-old daughter by a former marriage comes to live with them.

I've already had a sneak look at "September Affair" and the love scenes between Joan and Cotten are really something!

More poll stuff: I must say the Foreign Press Association of Hollywood is tossing a swank jaunt when they announce the winners of their "world's favorite movie star" poll on January 27. They are footing two days of celebrating free at the Tennis Club in Palm Springs.

Gloria Swanson is the winner of Murray Sices' poll of stylists for the outstanding little woman of the year—meaning five-feet-five and under. Runnersup were Perle Mesta, Helen Hayes and Edith Piaf.

Still another contest, conducted by Country Gentleman magazine, of our farmer exhibitors, puts Jimmy Stewart on top for the males (and they haven't yet seen "Harvey") and June Allyson for the girls.

Anna Magnani hasn't given up hope of being permitted to bring her little son, a polio victim, to America so that he can be treated by Sister Elizabeth Kenny.

If all doors are shut against the youngster, Magnani will come here, herself, I am told, to learn about the Kenny methods and, if possible, induce a specialist in this form of treatment to return to Italy with her.

Too bad she may make her first trip here on a wave of indignation against "The Miracle"—a deplorable film she made with Rossellini.

Buff Cobb, Jr., and her husband, Mike Wallace, have a radio show at the Chez Paree. They quiz incoming and outgoing celebs. Peggy was on their show.

The Duke of Windsor laughs at the very idea of doing a TV show with Wally. He says they will not do a "Mr. and Mrs." show, nor will he sell the rights to his life story to television. Well, he should know.

Betty Gene Towne, daughter of the Gene Townes, marries James Ekins in Beverly Hills Sunday. Reason for the hurried ceremony is that the groom has been called to the service.

While I've been in the East I heard that Katharine Cornell is going to make a picture later this year, but don't say I said so. Everytime I do, she telephones denying it to the high heavens.

Louis Bromfield's daughter, Ellen, married Carson Geld in the Little Church Around the Corner Saturday. Louis flew to New York for the wedding and while he's in the big town will do a Broadway musical.

From home I hear that Linda Darnell's appearance at the opening of "Halls Of Montezuma" on the arm of her estranged husband, Pev Marley, created a lot of excitement. When questioned Linda said they were merely talking about a settlement.

From Hollywood comes word that Doris Duke and Roger Valmy are as close as ham and eggs—and here I thought Roger was happily married. Or is this just one of those friendship things?

Eddie Lowe, who has never got Lady Thelma Furness out of his system, is now seeing her practically every day. Thelma has no more worries since her son, Tony Furness, came into a ten million dollar inheritance.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

WASHINGTON (INS)

ON THE EVE of the President's state of the disunity speech the capital of the free world lay shrouded in a blanket of actual and figurative fog.

My mother, a lifelong Democrat in a city whose million inhabitants are still not considered mature enough to be trusted with the vote, called up to bawl me out for something Westbrook Pegler had written about Mrs. Roosevelt. She seemed impatient with my evasive answer, a symptom of the distracted times.

Everybody appeared to know exactly what the President was going to say, which must have brought a snort of rage from the President himself—who was still rewriting the speech into shape at the Blair House. Gwen Cafritz had a few people in.

Sen. Clinton Anderson, whose reflexes may not be among the sharpest in the land, was talking about the President's letter-writing—which is now old hat in chit-chat circles. The Senator said in effect that taking pen in hand was the busy man's only way of letting off his steamy rage, and that it was better than the liquidation which dictators might resort to in similar pets.

We called Paul Hume, the music critic of the Washington Post, to ask him which he preferred, letter or rack, and a man on the desk said he had gone on to a concert. "Won't be back until all hours," the man on the desk said. Was it a controversial concert like, say, Margaret singing? No, the man said, nothing hot like that. Just the Israel Philharmonic's American debut, under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky.

The well-fed bon vivants of the town licked the wounds they had suffered the night before at what will be Washington's only full-blown public dinner during the period of the emergency—that of the Touchdown Club. And they prepared to plunge on later in the day to the capital's main Sunday event, the cocktail parties, populated by the same faces, same people, same small talk and large fears.

This pregnant day's small talk mainly concerned Sen. Taft's appearance on "Meet The Press," during the dismal afternoon. One excited man from NBC felt that it had been seen and heard by 25,000,000, but when we asked him what Taft had said he scratched his head and answered, "same thing as the other day—big air force, big navy, little army."

The Senator had declined, not always with thanks, repeated invitations to lay his hide upon this most exposed grill. He would appear, he told Larry Spivak, if he could choose his reportial prosecutors, and he did. First head to roll was that of May Craig, a head that features an old-fashioned topknot coiffure. The Maine newspaperwoman (a fine reporter) has a voice and a steel-trap mind that both bear a sharp likeness to the sound and attitude of every exasperated wife in history who has confronted a mate crawling back to the nest after a long evening at the Elks club.

A big conversational piece was the Senator's new smile. Just as Herbert Hoover's speeches have lightened up, so has the Senator's face. He is smiling in public for some of the first times in his sobersided and industrious life, but he hasn't quite got the knack of it. It worried an admirer:

"He turned it on wrong," he said. "Bad timing on the new smile. He'd be saying something real serious, like we're all going down the drain if we don't watch out, and then he'd remember that he should smile more, and he'd smile. Couldn't get the smile in 'sink.'"

Sen. Kefauver had a quiet day, making up a list of questions to ask Frank Costello when the Senate Crime Commission gets its audience with him in the near future. Everybody in Washington seems to take for granted that Kefauver will be the next vice presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket, but Mr. Barkley doesn't appear to have heard the reports. Sen. Ferguson was still sore about the doubletalk Nehru had given him in New Delhi.

The capital seemed relieved that Gen. Eisenhower had arrived in Paris, and that beautiful Roz Courtright had arrived at the Statler for her singing engagement. Called Roz Courtright and learned she had two new Christian Diors. "You'll never understand what a new dress means to a girl when she's singing," she said. "You're not afraid if the dress is new."

Her arranger, Syd Bass, won't be with her this time. Mrs. Bass wrote a piece for "The Daily Worker." It marked the era of rearmament, the time of alertness in the nakedly exposed capital.

Called Maj. Don Gentile, the handsome, tremendously decorated ace of aces of World War II. He had been more or less grounded as a jet test pilot at Wright Field after the death of Maj. Dick Bong, by conservation authorities in the Air Force, and sent to school at the University of Maryland.

"Getting my B.S. this month," he said happily, above the indignant sound of a crying youngster in the growing Gentile family. "Going back to work in jets, at Selfridge Field. What's the difference between fighting in them and in the Spits, '47's and '51's I flew? Not much difference. Just wider turns."

It seemed to epitomize the day.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Ethel Butterworth's neighbor was finding it more and more difficult to retain her sylph-like shape. Miss Butterworth suggested horseback riding. The neighbor's first response was, "As far as I'm concerned, horses are strictly for glue." Later she allowed herself to be convinced to the point where she bought a $250 saddle, and an imported English costume.

Assisted to the back of an old nag, the daring equestrienne mumbled, "Giddy-ap." The nag reluctly broke into a slow trot. The equestrinne screamed with terror, and fell off. Miss Butterworth, stiffling her laughter, cried, "Get back on the horse before he thinks you're afraid of him." But the neighbor had had enough. "I'm through," she declared. "What do I care what a horse thinks, anyhow?"

"Hay fever," George Fuermann of Houston has decided, "is an unpredictable affliction. One time the eyes will have it, another time the nose."

Clancy fell off a six-story-high scaffolding and lay unconscious on the ground as a hastily summoned ambulance clanged to the spot. A crispy efficient interne made a cursory examination and pronounced authoritatively, "This man is dead." Just then Clancy regained consciousness and indignantly protested, "Ye're a liar. Oi am not dead." A friend kicked him in the pants and murmured, "Be quiet, ye fool; sure and the doctor knows best."

One of the suburban branches of a big Chicago department store advertised a special sale of nylons and the aisles were jammed with jostling women ten minutes after the doors opened the next morning. At 9:11 the phone rang in the general manager's office, and a lady said, "I want ten pairs of those nylons, and you can send them C.O.D." "What's your name and address, madam?" asked the manager. "Never mind the name," the lady told him. "Just bring the package to the front of your store. You'll find me in the public phone booth there."

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

We Televise A Witch

TODAY is the day the British Broadcasting Corporation proposes to televise—or attempt to televise—a ghost, specifically the spectre of Catherine Howard, fifth wife of Henry VIII. She's the girl, you'll recall, who lost her head in 1542 for alleged misdeeds in the boudoir which were never sufficiently proved to my satisfaction.

John Crosby

I wish the BBC luck in this enterprise and I'm very sorry that I can't be there to watch the operations in Hampton Court Palace. I devoutly hope someone asks Miss Howard just what did go on back in 1542, whether the accusation was just or unjust. After all, a girl who has been dead for upward of 400 years has nothing to gain or lose one way or another and can be expected to tell the truth.

• — • — •

Over here, we have televised a lot of people who have resembled ghosts in more ways than one except that they lacked the finality and dignity of death. We have, however, televised a witch, specifically Miss Lilli Palmer who started her own program on CBS (6:45 p.m., EST Thursdays) last week. Ponds, the face cream, brings—as they say—this program to you and to me, which I believe, makes Miss Palmer the first sponsored witch in the history of sorcery.

Miss Palmer, as I suppose everyone knows, plays the role of witch in the play, "Bell, Book and Candle" with such enormous authority that the critics almost uniformly mourned the fact that, at the end of the play, she loses her witchhood and assumes womanhood.

The critics, if I understand them correctly, felt that this assumption of womanhood was a long step down in the social scale. It's a rather odd point of view for the critics to take and, I imagine, a rather difficult one to explain at home.

Still, after watching her initial performance, I'm inclined to agree with them. Miss Palmer is such a tempting morsel that if she isn't a witch she ought to be one. Hers is an exquisitely modelled face abounding in sharp corners at the tip of the nose, the edge of the lips, the edge of the eyes; a catlike, alert, vixenish face which instantly commands attention. In fact, everything Miss Palmer does commands attention. She endows with great, though mystifying, importance, her walk, her movements, her gestures.

As a matter of fact, a kinescope of her projected show which belted around town for a while before Miss Palmer settled on CBS opened with a shot of her back. She was painting. "I paint a little," she announced, her opening line. It takes great confidence in one's personal electricity to open a new TV show with a view of one's rear. Unhappily, this was abandoned for a more conventional approach, a shot of Miss Palmer singing "Auf Wiedersehn." "Hello, let me introduce myself. I'm Lilli Palmer. Here's my fireplace. My window, My room."

Over the fireplace was a picture of George Bernard Shaw and Miss Palmer fell to discussing her last meeting with G.B.S. when she obtained permission to play Cleopatra in his "Caesar and Cleopatra." From there she went on to quote Euripides whom she described as a local G. B. S. in Greece 2,000 years ago.

Right away, you get the idea that Miss Palmer is a woman whose center of intellectual gravity is of higher density than, say, Dorothy Kilgallen's. Both mentally and physically, I should say, Miss Palmer is going to be rough competition for the Faye Emersons in the television dodge.

• — • — •

Presently, Miss Palmer introduced her guest—Miss Pamela Brown who is accused but is innocent of witchcraft in the play, "The Lady's Not For Burning." I lost the thread of their conversation because I was much too interested watching the interplay of two expert actresses trying to focus the center of attention on themselves. That's about all there is to the program. Tomorrow night the guest will be the movie director Robert Siodmak, who was born in Memphis but became famous as a movie director in Germany. And next week, Miss Palmer may conceivably produce Catherine Howard, depending on how well things work out with the BBC today.

Oh! one other thing, Miss Palmer was born in Germany from which she fled to Paris when Hitler became a nuisance. Presently, Hitler and his legions overran Paris and she took to her heels again, this time to London. Immediately, the bombs started dropping there. Now she's in New York. Considering her prior record, it's my suspicion that it is very bad luck for any city to have possession of Miss Palmer. In her favor, I'll admit that she is the most beautiful bird of ill omen anywhere around.

Courtesy Meter Proves Successful

The courtesy parking meter installed two weeks ago inside Police Headquarters has proven successful, according to Lt. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the Traffic Bureau.

More than 67 motorists who received tickets for parking overtime beside street meters visited the police station within an hour of issuance, deposited a nickel each in the "good will" device and had the tags excused.

The project was originated by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long to curb "alibis and gripes".

Lilya pointed out the meter had a poor showing for several days after its installation December 27. However, the device has realized more than $3.35 since then.

Yesterday's Answer

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

A C Q O N I A Y G, N K A L I, G H G Y I, M C S O C Y T C L A C G S, N K G G J N I U G K A S G G M H I U — J T J G.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: WAS NEVER SUBJECT LONGED TO BE A KING, AS I DO LONG AND WISH TO BE A SUBJECT —SHAKESPEARE

I take this means of expressing my sincere appreciation to the many friends and neighbors for the kindness and assistance given me during the illness and bereavement of my beloved wife, Virginia J. Percy. I also express my sincere thanks to the minister, pallbearers and those who donated cars and sent floral tributes, cards of sympathy and helped in any way to lighten my burden.
James Boyd Percy

We wish to thank our neighbors, friends and relatives for their sympathy and helpfulness following the recent loss of our husband and father, Albert G. McCauley. We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, cards of sympathy and helped in any way to lighten our burden.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Is good work often appreciated?

Answer: Oftener, at least, than the person who is looking for appreciation realizes. But again, that sort of person does not always do as good work as he thinks he does, because his bitterness at the "ingratitude" of those he works for tends to make him unconsciously sabotage his own efforts. How good your work is does not depend on how much effort you put into it, and you cannot judge its quality by your own standards alone. Do your best for the sheer joy of it, and there's better than an even chance you will win recognition.

Are phobias caused by childish frights?

Answer: Never fundamentally, though memories of a shock or fright may determine the form they take. For in a true phobia what the person consciously fears is always a substitute or symbol for what he really is afraid of. In Freud's early, classic case, the boy he called "Little Hans" had a neurotic fear of being bitten by a horse which proved under analysis to have replaced an earlier terror of his father. One advantage of the substitution is that it is easier to avoid snakes or mice than something that is part of your life.

Will "tests" show you your true self?

Answer: That depends on the degree to which your conscious mind is involved in them. To ask someone to tell how he feels or what he likes best may reveal nothing but his capacity for self-deception, since the average person's conscious personality consists largely of attitudes assumed to conceal his true feelings from himself and other people. (The "go-getter," for example, may be hiding his own wish to be dependent.) The best tests are the "projective" ones like "ink blots" in which you don't know what you reveal.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

PROMOTION OF HONORS

ANY observant student of developments knows that an honor or honors in a particular suit will gain in real trick-taking value if other honors of the same suit are opposite, in the partner's hand. That is sometimes startlingly true of such cards as queens and jacks. Consequently every bid made by your partner of a suit in which you have one or more such honors may add to the value of your own holding in the suit, sometime enabling you to make an additional bid after you had felt your complete story had been told.

	♠ 9 ♥ K J 10 3 ♦ K J 9 6 3 ♣ Q 4 2
♠ A 6 5 3 ♥ A 5 4 ♦ 8 7 5 ♣ 9 7 5	N W E S	♠ 7 4 2 ♥ 9 6 2 ♦ A 10 4 2 ♣ A 8 3
	♠ K Q J 10 8 ♥ Q 8 7 ♦ Q ♣ K J 10 6

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♥

South was sadly off key when he passed that. There was a whole flock of reasons why he should have bid 3-No Trumps. First, his fear about making full use of his partner's first-bid diamonds should have been eliminated when he heard the hearts, which could make good entries into a No Trump dummy. Second, his queens in both red suits added immensely to the value of North's holdings as you can see. Third, North's reverse bidding, with the higher hearts shown after the lower-ranking diamonds, betokened quite a hand for a man who had passed originally. To tell the truth, that bid advertised a better hand than North really had, though South didn't know this.

It happens that three-odd can be made easily in either the hearts or No Trumps, with the defenders scoring nothing but their four aces. But that is not the point. You bid games on the basis of what promises to happen, whether it actually does or not, since bridge is not a mere adding machine but a game full of delightful uncertainties.

South thought North should have bid 2-Hearts on his first turn over the 1-Spade, and that after the 2-Spades North should have called 3-Diamonds. That, said South, would have caused him to show preference with 3-Hearts. In that case, North probably would have raised to the unmakable 4-Hearts, though he might have tried 3-No Trumps. Who knows?

Woman Phones Husband In Germany

A young mother, anxious to convey a person-to-person Happy New Year's greeting to her soldier-husband in Germany, paid $20 Monday for a trans-Atlantic telephone call.

The salutation went to Pvt. Arthur J. Hook, 27, stationed at Frankfort, from his wife, Mrs. Mary Monnet Hook, Route 1, Oldtown. They talked for five minutes.

Mrs. Hook explained she placed the call last Monday but had to wait for a "clear line."

It was 6:55 p. m. in Germany when the telephone rang at the home of Mrs. Hook's aunt, Mrs. Myrtle Lange, 311 Broadway, where she had been waiting. The Hooks three-month-old daughter, Mary Lou, was with her, but she did not "talk" to her father.

As for Mrs. Hook, she said conversing with her husband "was well worth the cost". A World War II veteran and member of the Army Reserve, Pvt. Hook was recalled to duty last October 9. He trained at Camp Campbell, Ky., and Fort Dix, N. J., before going overseas in December.

Applications For City Housing Are Made Here

Authority Completes Annual Report

Numerous applications for project occupancy have already been received by the Housing Authority of the City of Cumberland, even though construction has not started.

The report states:

"In order to be eligible, prospective tenants must be families of low income, living under unsanitary and unsafe housing conditions. This calls for a careful examination of all facts reported by the applicants and a comparison with the eligibility requirements in the case of each family.

"Because of changes in income, as well as changes in the size of families, such examinations must be made at frequent intervals.

"It is realized that with the growth or shrinkage of a family, income will most likely change The Public Housing Administration has no intention of providing standard housing facilities for those who can afford to occupy commercially-rented homes. So if a family's income increases beyond the standards of low-rent tenants, that family is ineligible to remain in a project.

"It is felt by the authority, in light of the wage structures in principal manufacturing firms and establishments in Cumberland, that a top admission rent of $38 will accommodate families of lowest paid regularly employed male workers, who earn in the neighborhood of $1.15 per hour.

"Inasmuch as an average gross rent of $27.91 will be required to meet standards of feasible operation, it is apparent that the authority will be able to serve a substantial number of families who will pay rents less than $27.91 as well as those who can pay more than this amount. In this way, the broadest representative group of low-income families will be served and the intent of the housing act will be best served."

The report reviews the work of the past year and notes there are upwards of 2,751 substandard homes in Cumberland. It is proposed to provide 300 new units. Preliminary plans for 125 units in South Cumberland are awaiting federal approval. Plans for an additional 25 units have been held up pending a selection of a site. These units are for colored families.

"The difficulty in selecting a site for the colored project has been due in large part to the restrictions imposed by the Public Housing Administration with regard to suitable access streets and utilities, relative closeness to schools, shopping centers and public transportation," the report states.

"In addition to that, unfortunately, vigorous protests have been lodged by residents in the immediate vicinity of various sites being tentatively considered for the location of the colored project. Some other sites had to be withdrawn from active consideration because of the high cost for the acquisition of land. In view of all of this, it was necessary to appeal to the Public Housing Administration for an extension of time in completing the plans for 150 dwelling units by December 31, 1950. The PHA subsequently extended the time for completing a development program for the colored project to March 30, 1951."

A financial report shows that $7,341.86 has been expended for overhead including $5,125 for non-technical salaries and wages. Interest amounts to $310.42; planning costs $2,458.63; site acquisition $1,762.75, and non-dwelling equipment $13,181.06.

Civil Defense To Be Discussed

Mayors or representatives of incorporated towns will meet Friday to discuss community aspects of the civilian defense program.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said he has been invited to a meeting at 7:30 p. m. at the American Legion Home, Main Street, Frostburg.

William G. Barger, LaVale, director of the county's civilian defense program, in a letter to the mayors said appointment of a civil defense officer for each town will also be discussed. These appointments would be made at a later date by the individual mayors.

Mayor Post said that City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson is the city's civilian defense chairman and plans for a local program have been under consideration.

Barger recently said that Cumberland and the area is not considered a prime target for atomic bombing but that conversations with state officials have stressed setting up the section as an evacuation center for refugees from larger, nearby cities in event of an attack.

Market Surges Forward To Best Level In 20 Years

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—In the midst of a Washington debate over higher taxes, the stock market surged ahead to a new high for 1950-51 and the best level in more than 20 years.

The market bounced over just about every obstacle put in its path and lost only a portion of its most extended gain in the final hour when profit-taking appeared in considerable volume.

Prices were up from a few cents to more than $1 a share and in some instances beyond $2 a share.

The most active issues were found among the steels, motors, rails, aircraft, and air lines, and most of the leaders in these groups were higher.

In Washington President Truman sounded the tax keynote with his statement that the nation must face higher taxes "until it hurts."

Chiefs from the Treasury and Congress tentatively agreed to begin consideration of a new tax bill Feb. 1 with plans to raise as much as $10,000,000,000 a year in new money.

Sen. Taft, however, said at least $15,000,000,000 in new taxes must be raised.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 60 cents to $90.70, a new high for the past year and the best since Oct. 4, 1930. The industrial component of the average was up 80 cents, rails 50 cents and utilities 20 cents.

The market was broad with 1,203 individual issues traded. Of these, 686 advanced and only 280 declined. Again there was a generou group touching new highs—192 issues—with only three issues falling to new lows.

The volume of trading was especially heavy with a total of 3,780,000 shares, just a million more than yesterday.

New York Central had a sharp advance of 1⅛ at 23⅜ and was the most actively traded issue in the list. One block of 40,000 shares changed hands at an advance of 1¼.

City Orders Properties To Be Torn Down

Engineer's Office Notifies Owners

The City of Cumberland yesterday issued orders for the razing of several properties at the scene of the fatal Christmas night fire on Wineow Street and for a North Mechanic Street structure.

In a letter to the Maryland Homes Company regarding buildings located at 152, 154 and 156 Wineow Street, Rizer said the houses had been condemned and notified the owners to remove the damaged structures as soon as possible.

He added he would be glad to meet with the owner of the properties and the fire chief to discuss the action.

His communication pointed out that Acting Fire Chief William L. Lindner, on December 29, advised him that No. 152 should be removed and that the other two properties should be condemned, saying they had been damaged by fire in such a way that they cannot be repaired.

In the second action, Rizer notified Joseph H. Reinhart that he had made an inspection of a property at 600 North Mechanic Street and found it unsafe for occupancy.

The city engineer added he has been informed the building was condemned for occupancy by both the Cumberland Fire Department and the County Health Department.

The owner was ordered to raze the building and notified not to rent it for occupancy.

Razing of the other property damaged by the Wineow Street fire is already under way. The owner, Walter Twyman, received a permit to demolish the building last Tuesday.

Tri State Roads Clear Of Ice

Most of the roads in the Tri State Area are clear of ice and snow as the result of higher temperatures yesterday.

In Constitution Park the lowest temperature in the morning was 13 degrees and the highest in mid afternoon was 38 degrees. The unofficial downtown temperatures were a low of 22 degrees and a high of 39 degrees.

In the city there is about one inch of old snow still on the ground, according to Robert Golden, local weather observer.

Temperatures last night at 10 o'clock at Deal, Pa., were 16 degrees with clear skies, and five inches of snow still on the ground. At Thomas, W. Va., it was 28 degrees with six inches of snow covering the ground.

West Virginia State Police at Romney said roads there were clear but icy in spots and they asked motorists to use caution in driving.

Program Planned For PBX Operators

Some 100 private telephone switchboard operators and management representatives from their places of employment will be guests of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company tonight at a program designed for their benefit.

Richard Harman, manager of the Cumberland office of the telephone company, said a program, planned to be constructive, will be built around a discussion of private branch exchange problems.

Although the meeting, scheduled to be held at the Elks Club starting at 7:30 p. m., will be social in nature, it will have as its theme, "Tone of Service," Harman said. For instance, courtesy in switchboard operation will be one of the points to be considered.

A. C. Bogert, telephone traffic supervisor from Baltimore, and Miss E. C. Roeder, traffic service advisor from Baltimore, will lead the discussion.

A new movie designed to help private branch exchange operators will be shown before refreshments are served. The movie's title is "The Invisible Receptionist."

Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn announced yesterday that a meeting of all auxiliary police who were connected in any way with the Civilian Defense progarm during World War II will be held Tuesday, January 16, at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall Auditorium.

Chief Flynn said immediate efforts will be taken to reorganize the department and appoint captains in various districts of the city.

Plans also call for a course of instruction for those who will take part in the civilian defense program.

Chief Flynn has had a number of conferences with William G. Barger, LaVale, director of Allegany County's civilian defense program in working out plans for the Auxiliary Police Department's part in home defense. Chief Flynn will be responsible for setting up a police system, composed of both the Cumberland Police Department and the Auxiliary Department, capable of meeting any emergency that might arise here.

Juvenile Court Plan In W. Va. Proposed

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 9 (AP)—Freshman Senator Clarence E. Martin, Jr., (D-Berkeley) said today he would introduce a bill in the legislature convening tomorrow to create a separate domestic Relations and Juvenile Court for Berkeley, Jefferson and Morgan Counties.

This would relieve a large burden of work now handled by Circuit Judge D. H. Rodgers, the Martinsburg attorney said.

The bill would call for a separate judge on a full-time basis paid by the state rather than the three counties, which make up the present 23rd District Court.

County Commissioners Seek Aid For Local Surplus Foods Program

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners are soliciting the aid of Senators Herbert R. O'Conor and John Marshall Butler and Rep. J. Glenn Beall to secure the reinstatement of the Surplus Foods Program and its continuance in distressed areas, it was revealed yesterday in letters mailed to the members of Congress.

William H. Lemmert, president of the board of commissioners, said after a meeting yesterday, the county has set up a program to help needy families as reported by the local welfare agencies and unless steps are taken to remedy the situation the commissioners "are faced with the possibility of discontinuance of the program."

Letter Reveals Status

The letters reported the commissioners had received certifications from relief agencies for surplus foods for 1,462 families in the county, amounting in the aggregate to 3,942 persons and the board has been informed by the Department of Budget and Procurement of the State of Maryland that butter and cheese have been removed from the list of available foods with the possibility that dried milk and dried eggs may also be removed.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, said yesterday after a meeting with the commissioners and a delegation of citizens favoring retention of the program "the only reason for cutting off surplus foods here is because the bulk of cheese and butter has been removed from the list. The board of commissioners is very disappointed in the action being taken but cannot do anything about the situation without additional help."

Commodities On Hand

Lemmert revealed the county has on hand enough butter and cheese for distribution during the month of January on a basis of one-half pound of both cheese and butter for each person. This is a cut down on the normal average of 1½ pounds of butter per person, he said. Lemmert also stated the cost of shipment and distribution of potatoes is prohibitive and therefore the county does not include potatoes on the list of surplus foods.

Officials of Mountain District, American Legion, and Major Elmer Wall, of the Salvation Army, met with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday morning in an effort to determine if the surplus food program for the needy of the county may be continued.

The county board informed the group the commissioners wish very much to continue the program, but the whole plan hinges on the ability to obtain surplus foods from the Commodity Credit Corporation, the federal agency in charge of allotting the products.

City Is Cooperative

Major Wall said both the City of Cumberland and the county commissioners have been very cooperative and in his 30 years service with the Salvation Army he has not seen any greater interest displayed in the plight of the poor. The system of distribution as set up by J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the County Roads Department, was termed excellent.

Thomas B. Finan, Howard M. Spiker and Patrick J. Carroll of the American Legion, pointed out that unemployment is still high in this area and perhaps if the proper government officials were informed on the acute need, some foods could be obtained for the winter months remaining.

Local Soldier, Wounded In Korea, Is Home On Leave

He is Pfc. Charles A. L. Butler, 22, of Cresaptown, who served with the Medical Company, Eighth Regiment, First Cavalry Division.

Pfc. Butler served in Korea only 11 days. On August 2, while enroute to the front near Kunchon, he was injured by mortar shell fragments which struck his head, shoulder, and left foot.

Taken immediately to a hospital in Korea, he was soon sent to Japan. Remaining there only 11 days, he was flown to the United States and has been at Walter Reed Hospital for the past four months.

Today, his left side is paralyzed as the result of a nerve wound, but he reports that he is improving, doctors telling him time is his greatest cure. He expects to leave here Friday, returning to Walter Reed Hospital for more treatment.

Pfc. Butler has been in the service 30 months, serving with the occupation forces in Japan for 20 months. His only comment on the experience in Korea was that there were plenty of C rations for everyone there.

PFC. CHARLES BUTLER

He is the son of Mrs. Lucy Helbrig, Cresaptown, and Charles Butler, Lamont Street, Cumberland.

Potomac Edison Plans Building Improvements

Union St. Property Will Be Enlarged

Potomac Edison District Manager H. W. Price announced yesterday that work is now underway on a PE building improvement program here.

This program will include a single story addition to the Union Street Office Building and a Central Billing Department Office addition to be located in the Union Street PE Substation building.

The project will provide space for additional billing machines. Also several working areas for addressograph and bill-printing machines will be expanded.

A new office will be constructed for Norman Fearnow, utility company central billing supervisor.

To be of brick construction, the new billing additions are scheduled for completion the early part of this year.

Price stated that the increasing number of customers resulted in the need for expanded working facilities.

The John I. Vandegrift Company yesterday secured a permit from the City Engineer's office for the construction.

Cost of the project was estimated at $10,000.

15 Local Pupils Are To Attend United Nations

Ten County Schools Are To Participate

Allegany County High School Forum made plans to send a group of 15 high school students to the United Nations in New York at a meeting held yesterday at the Board of Education, Miss Mary J. Sowerby, chairman of the education committee of the AAUW, said last night.

Ten county high schools are represented in the forum, Miss Sowerby stated, and the meeting yesterday covered plans for a radio skit, a panel discussion of the subject "Can We Make the United Nations the Answer to World Peace?" and a trip by a group of students to the United Nations sometime in April.

The forum is sponsored by the AAUW in cooperation with the Board of Education and last year sent four students from the county to New York to attend a forum sponsored by the New York Herald-Tribune and attended by 16 foreign students. The local group plans to send the students to the United Nations this year, Miss Sowerby said.

The group plans to leave for New York early in April, Miss Sowerby stated, and will be accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Kruzon, president of the AAUW, and a business representative of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad which is helping to make arrangements for the trip.

Arrangements were also made at yesterday's meeting for a radio skit to be presented by two of the students who attended the forum last year. Those participating will be Joe Tom Butler, a graduate of Allegany High School now attending Frostburg State Teachers College, and Alta Shay, former Bruce High student now at Potomac State Teachers College. The subject of the radio skit will be the "United Nations."

Also discussed at the conference were ways and means for the students to make the trip to New York in April, she said.

Attending yesterday's meeting were representatives from Allegany, Barton, Beall, Bruce, Carver, Central, Fort Hill, LaSalle, and Ursuline along with Miss Sowerby, Miss Winifred Green, co-chairman of the AAUW educational committee, and Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools.

Robert Little Ebert will be moderator of the public forum planned for February 21 in the city hall council chamber, Miss Sowerby said, and the next discussion meeting is planned February 8, at the Board of Education.

Two Frostburg Brothers Now Missing In Korea

Cpl. R. E. Shannon Is Latest Casualty

Word that a second son is missing in action in the fighting in Korea has been received by Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Shannon, 170 McCulloh Street, Frostburg.

Cpl. Robert E. Shannon, 20, has been missing in action in Korea since December 6, according to word received Monday by his parents from the Department of Defense.

On August 10 and Mrs. Shannon were notified that his brother, Pvt. Joseph Michael Shannon, 18, had been missing in action since July 27.

This is the first report in this county in which two members of one family have been reported missing in the Korean fighting. No similar reports could be recalled last night in the entire Tri-State Area.

Cpl. Shannon had been attached to the Headquarters Battery of the 57th Field Artillery Battalion of the 7th Division.

In his last letter to his mother, received November 21 and containing a Christmas gift of $150, Cpl. Shannon wrote that at that time he was with his outfit about three miles from the Manchurian border. He said he was writing in a foxhole with the temperature standing at 30 degrees below zero.

Cpl. Shannon enlisted in the army in August, 1948, and had been in Japan for two years before being moved to Korea. He attended Beall High School at Frostburg before enlisting.

Pvt. Shannon also was serving in the army when he was reported missing last August. His parents said yesterday that they have received no additional word concerning his fate.

Mr. and Mrs. Shannon have five other children: John, of Baltimore, who served three years with the Marines in World War II; Charles, at home, who was drafted for military service but deferred after his brother Joseph was reported missing; Mrs. Margaret Lavin, Anna Lee and Mary Louise Shannon, all at home.

Blast Damages Chemical Plant At Celanese

Workers Escape Injury; Production Resumed

An explosion of a large tank in Department 10 of the chemical acetate plant at the Celanese Corporation of America yesterday afternoon caused considerable damage to property, Harrison C. Givens, Jr., plant manager said.

No one was injured in the blast which wrecked part of the building in which the tank was housed and Givens revealed that production in the department would he held up only a short time.

No delay in the main CA plant would result from the explosion, Givens said, and it was hoped that engineering forces, which are working overtime to repair the damages, would have the shop in condition to work full time in two or three days. A temporary delay in Department 10 production would have no effect on production in the main CA lines, Givens stated.

No estimate has been made on the actual amount of damage done, Givens related, but it "probably will amount to several thousand dollars." The tank was completely demolished and will have to be replaced, he said, and the building was badly torn up by the blast. Excessive steam pressure in the tank was thought to be the cause of the explosion.

Safety Group Releases Report

On Route 40 in Allegany County for the same period, there were 12 accidents, five of which involved personal injury and seven property damage. Of the personal injury accidents, three occurred during the day with injuries to four persons and two occurred at night injuring two persons. Of the property damage accidents, three occurred during the day and four at night.

There was a total of six accidents on Route 36 in Allegany County during the first three months of last year, three involving personal injuries and three property damage. Air Force Enlistments Are Temporarily Closed

The U. S. Air Force is temporarily closed for enlistments according to information received from the Army's Martinburg Recruiting Office, M.Sgt. Clarence Biehn, of the local office, has announced.

Sgt. Biehn said when enlistments are resumed any man with two years of college who can produce a transcript of credits can enlist even if he has had no prior service. Any veteran of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps may also enlist in U. S. Army Air Force regardless of his schooling if he can pass the mental test.

This enlistment restriction has been placed in force because of the overcrowded conditions at Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, where most of the enlistees in the Air Force have received basic training, Sgt. Biehn said.

A new base is to be opened as soon as possible at Samson Air Base, New York. Sgt. Biehn said that with the new base in operation enlistments will again be resumed.

The local Army recruiting office be closed Saturday because Sgt. Biehn and his staff are going to attend a meeting of all recruiters in Martinsburg.

ALLIES BATTLE TO RETAKE WONJU

Sen. Taft, Discounting Threat Of Another Great War Soon, Urges Middle Course Policy

Proposes 10-Year Program With Emphasis On Arms Buildup Instead Of Huge Army

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) declared today that creation of a great American land army would weaken the United States as an "arsenal of democracy" in the struggle against Communism.

Instead, Taft proposed a 10-year middle course policy aimed at the fastest possible mobilization without crippling the economy.

Countering President Truman's call yesterday for the defense of Europe as the keystone of American security, Taft again urged a mighty buildup of U. S. air and sea weapons rather than emphasis on ground troops.

In a luncheon speech at the National Press Club, Taft cautioned against "panic" fears of World War III. He differed sharply with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York on Dewey's call for a 100-division army that might involve upwards of 5,000,000 troops.

Would Use Chiang's Troops

The Ohio lawmaker said he favors the complete release of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese Nationalist forces to fight the Chinese Reds, and he made these other points:

1. New taxes for defense are likely to cut everyone's income to about 90 per cent of what it is now.

2. Youths from 18½ years old may have to be drafted for a minimum of two years in the armed forces.

3. Price-wage controls will involve "real sacrificies of freedom on the part of many."

Once again, as he did in a major policy speech to the Senate last Friday, Taft discounted the threat of another great war soon.

Obviously alluding to Mr. Truman's statement yesterday that Russia is bent on a step-by-step conquest of the world, Taft said he does not believe the Russians are ready to launch any such all-out aggression.

Tax Bill Hearings Set

Taft's lengthy speech, adding a new chapter in the swelling debate over foreign policy, came amid these other developments:

1. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and congressional tax managers reached tentative agreement to begin consideration of a big new tax bill on Feb. 1.

2. Construction of a 60,000-ton aircraft carrier, at an estimated cost of $235,000,000 was unanimously approved by the House Armed Services Committee.

3. Senate administration leaders planned a move to sidetrack a resolution by Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) proposing a ban on the dispatch of U. S. troops to Europe without congressional approval.

McKeldin Will Take Oath Today

ANNAPOLIS Md., Jan. 9 (AP) — State Circle was festooned tonight for the inauguration of Maryland's fourth Republican governor.

Theodore R. McKeldin takes the oath of office at noon tomorrow in the Senate chamber. Thus the former mayor of Baltimore and Maryland's best known Republican will commence a four-year term.

The State House rotunda was adorned with yellow and black pennants. Outside, the east portico on which McKeldin will stand to deliver his inaugural address was bright with state and national colors.

A loud speaking system will enable inauguration visitors to hear McKeldin for blocks around.

Thousands Expected

National Guardsmen, bands and Republican rooters will march in the inaugural parade past a tiny reviewing stand erected on the south side of the State House. Military police will assist state, Baltimore and local officers in handling the throng.

The Naval Academy Band will play and the Arion Singing Society will chorus from the east entrance to the Capitol for three-quarters of an hour before Gov. Lane, Governor-elect McKeldin and their escort proceed from the executive mansion at 11:45 a. m.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury of the Court of Appeals will administer the oath to McKeldin at noon.

Two Receptions

Legislative officers and the principals will be in top hat, cutaway and striped pants.

There will be two receptions after inaugural ceremonies. Governor and Mrs. McKeldin, assisted by Secretary of State and Mrs. John R. Reeves; Vice Adm. Harry W. Hill, Naval Academy superintendent and Mrs. Hill; Lt. Gen. J. A. Van Fleet, Second Army commander, and Mrs. Van Fleet, and Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, state adjutant general, will receive guests in the old Senate chamber.

Later the McKeldins will hold open house in the mansion.

Thousands Of Germans Sterilized By Nazis Demand Compensation

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 9 (AP)—Thousands of Germans sterilized by the Nazis have organized to demand compensation and to fight any future attempt at any compulsory sterilization law.

The organization claims that 3,500,000 people were sterilized by Hitler in his efforts to "purify" the "master race."

There are more than 2,000 in the new "Central Association of Sterilized People in West Germany" and more are joining every week. Chairman Bruno Koeniger says thousands of others are deterred from joining by feelings of embarrassment.

Capehart Would Vote To Declare War On Red China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Sen. Capehart said tonight he would vote for a declaration of war against China to give American boys fighting in Korea every chance to go after the Chinese Communists who are killing them.

The Indiana Republican made that reply to a question asked him on a radio debate by Sen. Lehman (D-Lib-NY).

Lehman had asked Capehart if he would vote to declare war on China.

Capehart said he would vote for such a declaration. He said that if he had anything to do with it the United States never would have had troops in Korea in the first place.

Later he told reporters he wanted to emphasize that the U. S. should not stand by and permit the Chinese to kill American boys and then deny the boys the right to go get them.

New Censorship Rules Clamped On Korea News

Violators To Face Ouster Or Trial

TOKYO, Jan. 9 (AP)—Censorship restrictions on battle news from Korea were clamped down hard at Eighth Army headquarters today.

The new rules threaten ouster or even court-martial for a correspondent who strays out of line.

Among other things, corespondents are not permitted to use the word "retreat" in connection with the withdrawal of U. N. forces. The pullback, according to security officers in Tokyo, is a planned and orderly withdrawal—not a retreat.

No Official Explanation

(Army sources in San Francisco said "retreat" and "withdrawal" are often used synonymously in military parlance but some authorities make a sharp distinction. By their definition, a retreat, while orderly, is forced by enemy attack. A withdrawal is voluntary and is made for tactical reasons, such as to shorten lines or to find a better battlefield.)

There was no official explanation of the crackdown at this time. Correspondents in Korea learned that the new list of regulations was an attempt to compile all previous instructions to newsmen. However, the new rules went considerably further than anything previously in effect.

Absolute Censorship

Stories from Korea will not be alowed to mention identity of units, numbers of troops or their type, the strength, efficiency, morale or organization of U. N. forces, armament or equipment of any kind, or "plans of the army — real or possible."

Information which would "injure the morale of our forces or our allies" or which would "embarrass the United States, its allies or neutral countries" also was banned.

Painter Admits Torso Slaying

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—A torso slaying that looked for a time like "the perfect crime" was reported broken today by the confession of a stony-faced house painter.

Police said Pasquale Donofrio, 38, admitted strangling and carving up his common-law wife, Dorothy Martin, 37, one-time Hudson Valley apple blossom queen.

The dismembered body of the country girl who met misfortune in the city was found Dec. 4 in two dime lockers in a Brooklyn railroad station. The body—with hands and teeth missing—remained unidentified more than three weeks.

Police quoted Donofrio as saying he wrapped his arms around her neck following an argument during a boisterous drinking bout Nov. 25 in the Brooklyn flat they shared.

He was booked on a homicide charge and held without bail for hearing Friday.

An anonymous tip sent 12 police early today to a Brooklyn rooming house, near the crime scene. They nabbed Donofrio as he fled in pajamas across a rooftop.

Desperado Still Eludes Officers

Officers ran down reports that the 24-year-old dishwasher desperado was in half a dozen states but the FBI said the last certain point on his blood-spattered trail was still in the Lower California, Mexico, desert.

That point is where the automobile of Robert H. Dewey, one of eight persons Cook is suspected of killing, was found abandoned Sunday.

It was stained with blood and in it was the badman's shirt—a bright red one he had been wearing when he was transformed by events from a Blythe, Calif., dishwasher and petty ex-convict into the frantically hunted killer suspect.

"We know from that shirt he was there," said FBI Agent E. C. Richardson, who is coordinating the manhunt from here.

Broadcast To Launch 1951 March Of Dimes

WYTHEVILLE, Va., Jan. 9 (AP)—The 1951 March of Dimes campaign for $50,000,000 will be launched Sunday night over a national radio network from this scene of the nation's worst 1950 polio outbreak.

Basil O'Conor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., will speak from this Southwest Virginia town which had 186 cases and 17 deaths of the state's respective total of 1,197 and 62.

Top Officials Considering U. S. Sales Tax

Truman Says Big Levy Hikes Needed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — A nationwide sales tax designed to raise $10 or $15 billion dollars a year is under discussion among high officials, Sen. Anderson (D-NM) said today.

Anderson disclosed this in a speech before the Maryland Farm Bureau at Baltimore after President Truman asserted that the nation must be taxed "until it hurts" to finance the huge defense program.

Anderson said:

"I was in a gathering in Washington in the past 10 days at which high and responsible officials discussed the possibility that there would be such a gap between receipts and expenditures in our budget that we would have to resort to a nationwide sales tax designed to bring in ten or fifteen billions of dollars annually. I don't know whether that will come or not but I say it's a possibility."

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) suggested a sales or transactions tax probably would have to be considered if the nation is to be put on a pay-as-you-go basis as it presses its defense preparations.

Aiming at possibly $10,000,000,000 in new revenue—the third big increase since the Korean war started, Congress leaders arranged to start work Feb. 1 on the problem of how to raise the money.

Byrd told newsmen:

"I feel certain that, if the budget is balanced, Congress not only must cut all non-essential government spending and increase the existing sources of revenue, but also enter new fields of taxation — probably such as a retail sales or transactions tax."

Mr. Truman's grim statement that "it is necessary to tax until it hurts" was made in a conciliatory letter to Byrd, an ardent economy and pay-as-you-go man, with whom he has clashed frequently on fiscal policy. The Senator made public the letter.

Obviously offering an olive branch to Byrd in the spirit of his state of the union message call for cooperation, Mr. Truman addressed his letter "Dear Harry," and told Byrd:

"I am very highly pleased with your pledge of support in the present emergency. I don't think there has ever been any serious difference of opinion between us on the operations of the government except in some policy approaches on which we naturally would not agree."

Except for his sales tax suggestion, Byrd did not propose any specific plan for raising the money if the national budget hits $75,000,000,000 a year or more as now suggested.

Present discussions center on about $10,000,000,000 a year for the tax increase, which the lawmakers will take up next month.

U. S. Dependents Urged To Leave Hong Kong

HONG KONG, Jan. 9 (AP) — The U. S. Consulate General today advised all American dependents to quit this British crown colony due to "the deterioration of the situation in the Far East."

Consul General Waler P. McConaughey insisted the warning was "more or less precautionary." He saw no actual emergency in the offing.

Nervous Americans, however, have watched the Chinese build up their armed forces this month to more than 45,000 on the border of this uneasy colony. Many Americans already have left.

Tot Facing Blindness Sees Snowbank

Four-year-old Carolyn Purcell, Atlanta, Ga., exclaims with delight as she looks at a snowbank at Chicago's Midway airport yesterday. The tot, whose mother, Mrs. Frank Purcell (right), faces the decision of death or blindness for the child, is en route to Rochester, Minn., and the Mayo Clinic for an examination. Doctors say the girl has cancer in both eyes, one of which must be removed immediately. Murray Stillwaugh (left), of Chicago's Medinah Shrine Temple, was one of a group of Shriners who met the girl and her mother.

Congress Asked To Help States In Redistricting

Prompt, Fair Job Urged By Truman

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Truman asked Congress today to lay down some definite standards to guide the states in revising the boundaries of congressional districts. The outlines of some now resemble pieces of an fantastic jig-saw puzzle.

In a special message, Mr. Truman pointed out that under the tally of the 1950 census seven states stand to gain a total of 14 seats in the House of Representatives and nine states are due to lose 14.

Up To Individual States

Redistricting is up to the individual states. The President said it should be done promptly and fairly, not later than the spring of 1952, "so that the congressional elections of that year may give fair representation to all citizens of our country."

He suggested that Congress could help a lot by setting out desirable standards in legislation, and keeping a running check on the states to see that they comply.

He advocated these two main standards:

1. Each state entitled to more than one House member should divide itself into districts, thus holding down the number of congressmen-at-large.

Maryland Gains One Seat

2. Each district should be composed of contiguous and compact territory and contain as nearly as practicable the same number of persons.

The seven states which are due to gain representatives are California, 7 seats; Florida 2, Maryland 1, Michigan 1, Texas 1, Virginia 1, and Washington 1.

Those to lose seats are Pennsylvania 3, Missouri, New York and Oklahoma 2 each; and Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee, 1 each.

MP Opens Hand After Handshake, Finds $100 Bill

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — A silk-toppered stranger stepped up to a young military policeman today, extended his hand and said:

"How are you, soldier?"

Cpl. Horrise D. Crownover took the proffered hand and felt something pressed into his right palm.

The stranger smiled and disappeared into the mid-Manhattan crowd.

VFW Chief Raps Reserve Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Omar B. Ketchum, director of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said today most reservists are "like fleas on a hot skillet" because they are subject to call on such short notice.

Testifying before a House Armed Services Subcommittee investigating reserve policy, Ketchum said defense chiefs should be able to say well in advance just what reserve units will be needed and when.

He proposed 90 days as "fair notice."

Ketchum joined with Clarence G. Adamy, director of Amvets, in citing cases of reservists suffering hardship—discrimination in employment, for example—because of uncertainty whether they would be called to active duty.

"The average man just can't put his wife, babies, furniture and bills in storage on two weeks' notice," Adamy told the lawmakers. "All this could be avoided by a long-range program."

In other developments:

1. The Navy announced it will order 47,000 enlisted reservists to active duty during April, May and June. The revised quota is 32,000 more than the Navy had expected to call during the three-month period.

2. The Navy said it will accept only 21,200 volunteer recruits during the rest of January because the training centers at Newport, R. I., Great Lakes, Ill., and San Diego, Calif., have reached their manpower limits.

Anti-Ike Demonstration Staged By Paris Reds

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP) — Some 4,000 Communists staged a noisy anti-Eisenhower demonstration in the heart of Paris today, but failed in plans to tie up the city with a strike.

A concentration of 3,000 Paris policemen arrested about 200 of the demonstrators and kept the others on the move. There was plenty of pushing and shoving, but no serious disorder.

Communist-led workers apparently had little urge to tangle with police, who blocked off all approaches to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's temporary headquarters in the Hotel Astoria near the Arc de Triomphe.

Austin Outlines Program To Meet Crisis In Korea

Rules Out Invasion Of China Mainland

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 9 (AP)—Americas 1 h eUUf.cLc'UN.—(AP)—America's chief U. N. delegate, Warren R. Austin, tonight outlined a four-point program to meet the Korean crisis, but ruled out any direct war against the Communist-held China mainland.

Austin said the high strategy of American policy is to stand fast by the principles for which the U. S. entered the Korean war, while continuing to welcome any honorable and peaceful settlement.

"We must never let the aggressor, be he large or small, convert temporary military successes into defeat of those principles," Austin said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Association of American Colleges.

No Invasion Of China

"That is the high strategy. For the day to day tactics we must rely upon consultations of the United Nations and decisions of the commanders, secure, however, in the knowledge that no responsible authority proposes to march into the morass of the China mainland."

Austin said the present discussions at Lake Success were not on high strategy, but on the methods to meet "the new invasion launched by the Chinese Communist regime."

Austin said the United States is trying to line up support for a program featuring these points:

1. A finding that the Chinese Reds have flouted U. N. authority and committed aggression in Korea.

No Aid For Aggressor

2. A reaffirmation of U. N. purposes in Korea, calling for the withdrawal of the Chinese Communists and for all U. N. members to refrain from assisting the aggressor.

3. A call for each member to support action decided upon by the U. N. in proportion of its ability.

4. A move to activate immediately the newly-created Collective Security Committee to consider the means to meet existing aggression and prevent further aggression.

Brice And Mahaney Are Confirmed As Chairmen Of Maryland Agencies

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 9 (AP)—Arthur H. Brice, long-time Eastern Shore Democratic leader, today was named chairman of Maryland's Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

Brice, 64, replaces David H. Wallace, just 30 years his junior. He has been motor vehicles commissioner since 1949.

Wallace reportedly has agreed to become executive director of an oyster industry trade association.

The Senate confirmed Brice as chairman for the remaining four years of Wallace's six-year term by a vote of 23 to 5. Only Democrats opposed him. The 10 Republicans present endorsed him.

Action of the appointment, held up since last Thursday while leaders of both parties dickered over what posts would be assigned before Republican Theodore R. McKeldin takes over as governor, came swiftly in an open Senate session.

It took considerably longer for senators to confirm William H. Mahaney as chairman of the Department of Employment Security.

Meeting behind locked doors for an hour and a half, they endorsed Mahaney by a reported one-vote margin with three Democrats and 10 Republicans siding against him.

There had been factional contention over the Baltimore countian first named to the post in 1949. Lane proposed him for the duration of a term expiring in 1955.

The office became vacant when Russell S. Davis, former chairman, was made state employment commissioner.

Senate President Della (D-Balto 6th) announced all but one of the Governor's appointments had been confirmed. The exception was a minor Baltimore County official who recently resigned.

Parents Donate Dead Boy's Eyes To Save Girl's Sight

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9 (AP)—The eyes of a little boy were removed a few minutes after he died and have been donated by the child's parents to help save the sight of a teen-age girl unknown to them.

The father and mother, Revner and Norma Koolgaard, were at the hospital bedside last night when seven-year-old Stephen died.

He did not regain consciousness after he was hit by an automobile last Saturday as he rode his bicycle near the Koolgaard home in Upper Providence Township, a Philadelphia suburb.

A University Hospital doctor mentioned to the grieving parents the possibility of using Stephen's eyes to save another's sight.

The Koolgaards readily consented.

"I didn't regard it as a gesture," Koolgaard said today. "I believe Stephen would have wanted it that way."

Surgeons removed the child's eyes immediately so that they could use the healthy corneas — the "front windows" of the eyes—in a delicate transplanting operation needed by a girl in the hospital.

Counterblows Force Enemy Back 3 Miles

Ominous Chinese Buildup Continues

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 10 (AP)—Furious Allied counterblows yesterday drove the enemy back nearly three miles on the vital central front near the fallen transport center of Wonju.

A field dispatch said the counterattack appeared designed to recapture Wonju. The city fell to the Reds Monday. It controls highways leading into Southeastern Korea.

As the counterattack gained momentum, the U. N. forces ran into enemy mortar fire but casualties among the attackers were light.

Three North Korean divisions were bearing the weight of the counterblows about four miles south of Wonju.

The attackers strove to stem the tide of Chinese and Korean Communists rolling in ever increasing waves down the mountain roads in Central Korea.

Reds Move Artillery South

Associated Press Correspondent John Randolph, with the U. N. columns falling back from Seoul and now more than 60 miles south of the 38th parallel, said the Red buildup "appeared to be planned for the strongest possible attack when the drive begins."

Red artillery was moving south. Tuesday an F-80 Shooting Star jet swept down through the clouds and mist and blasted Chinese field pieces south of Seoul.

This was the first report that Chinese artillery had been dragged south of the ice-jammed Han River, which flows past Seoul.

Two U. N. battalions turned two miles south of Wonju and attacked a North Korean force.

Six miles southwest of Wonju another fierce action forced back the enemy. Associated Press Correspondent Don Huth at Eighth Army headquarters said the U. N. force had partly regained about one-half mile of territory lost to the Reds Monday.

Eighth Army headquarters said this struggle also was still in progress.

Polio Victim In Iron Lung Moved 70 Miles To Baltimore Hospital

The youth, stricken last October, is so afflicted he cannot move nor survive for more than six minutes outside his iron lung. A portable lung was not capable of doing the work, so the bulky stationary lung was moved.

He was brought to the hospital school, known through the East for its speciality in treaing paralysis victims, after an original plan to move him to the Polyclinic Hospital at Harrisburg, Pa., was upset. The bed allotted to him at Polyclinic had unwittingly been given to another boy.

Young Fassnacht was accompanied on the trip by Dr. Page M. Schildnecht of Lancaster, Tommy's parents, four volunteers to operate the iron lung mechanism manually in case of generator failure, and power linesmen to tap into electric lines along the road.

"K" Day For Cultists Ends Without Heavenly Portent

KEREMEOS, B. C., Jan. 9 (AP)—Flickering lights shone from an isolated stone farm house tonight as "K" day drew to a close without the heavenly portent expected by hymn-chanting members of a strange religious sect.

For 15 days the 35 members of the "Children of Light" have awaited a mystic change. Some said it would be the end of the world. Others thought it would be the second coming of Christ.

This was "K" day. K, the cultists said, stands for the kingdom of God. But if there was any manifestation within the cottage—there was none without.

And it appeared that the heavenly peace expected by the group might be replaced by some very worldly police action.

It seeks the removal of a 16-year-old youth from the house. The boy's mother says he has been hypnotized.

"What I saw and heard was enough to get action taken to get Bobby Mueller out of there," said McFadzen.

Flag For Europe Ideas Pouring In To Council Group

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

The council's secretariat at Strasbourg reports it already has received more than 100 proposals for a banner for the 15-nation organization which celebrated its first birthday last year. More are pouring in every week.

Secretariat members are classifying all these ideas for a special committee from the council's consultative assembly which is expected to choose an emblem sometime in 1951.

Ideas on file range from the now-familiar "E for Europe" flag of the European Movement, a private organization promoting European unity, to a red, white and blue banner copied exactly from the American flag with the colors reversed.

The 13 stripes are blue and white and there are 15 white stars on a red rectangle. The 13 stripes refer to the council's 13 original members—perhaps a historical coincidence—and the stars stand for the council's present membership.

Winston Churchill, in his role as chairman of the European Movement, has made the green and white "E" flag familiar but not too popular as a flag. It is simply a green E on a white background, and even members of the movement agree it is not particularly attractive.

Another flag being pushed is the banner of the European Parliamentary Union, whose secretary, Count Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi, has been active in European unity drives for many years.

The Count petitioned assemblymen to adopt the Parlimentary Union's red, gold and blue flag as the emblem for the Council of Europe. It is a blue field, with a gold circle toward one end, with a red cross atop the circle.

The Count's petition said the gold circle represented the sun of bright new hope and the red cross represented the badge of the Crusaders. Even his opponents in the flag issue concede a banner has to have a little red in it to make it snappy.

The problem of a flag for the council has received fresh impetus in recent weeeks with the "invasion" of Heligoland by groups of German students in protest against Britain's use of this former German naval base as a target for bombing runs.

The students who camped on the island said they were raising the "European flag" there, and urged that the isle be placed under the control of Europe. Since the council has no flag, they apparently meant the old "E and Europe" banner.

While this may be the nearest thing to a European flag which exists, not many people are happy about it. If any European flag is going to be raised anywhere, members of the Council of Europe want it to be attractive.

Navy Jet Fighters Set Speed Record

QUONSET POINT, R. I., Jan. 9 (AP)—Two jet fighters yesterday set a new speed record between Jacksonville, Fla., and the naval air station here.

The planes are F9F carrier based Grumman "Panther Cats," the latest type Navy fighter now being used in Korea, an air station spokesman said. They were piloted by Lt. Dixie Mays, 29, Clarksdale, Miss., and Lt. Percy L. Liles, 30, Goldsboro, N. C.

Cost Is Heavy For Snow Removal In Local District

Snow removal from county roads continues to be one of the largest items of expense of the County Roads Department, according to the two-weeks report of J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the department, for the period ending December 15.

A total of $3,610.31 was spent for snow removal in the span. During the same time the cost of labor was $4,289.92, materials, $1,095.22 and equipment, $1,277.31.

The entire roads' cost was $6,662.45 for the period. Very little road work was done, due to the snow removal and bad weather which prohibited normal road repairs.

A number of complaints were received this morning concerning county roads.

N. R. Van Meter, Margaret Wagner, Mary Devine and Betty Mooney, residents of Pershing Drive in the Fairgo section, appeared before the board to request repairs to their road. They said the thoroughfare is a quagmire and children going to and from school must slog through deep mud.

The board promised to make repairs as soon as the weather permits.

Floyd Buser, Ralph Boggs and Clark Hamilton appeared to ask the board to fix several bad places on the Oliver Beltz Road in the eastern section of the county.

The four-mile stretch was termed in bad condition, but if several places where the mud and ruts are wheel hub deep were fixed farmers and others could traverse the road with some safety, it was stated. Many springs and oil pans on cars have been broken, they said.

Boggs said he has a large pile of rocks on his property which he would give the county to use as a base for the bad places in the road. County officials indicated they would use the rock and then place shale or other material on top to provide a passable surface.

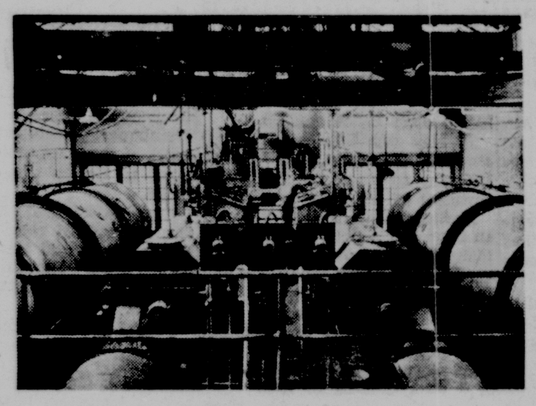
Celanese has the same sort of Budget Problems you do

A family has so much income every year. So does the company. Part of the family income goes to buy food. Part of the company's income buys raw materials. If you own your own home, part of your income goes for taxes and insurance. So does part of the company's. You pay people who furnish you with such things as electricity, water, refrigerators, automobiles and clothing. The company pays people who put effort, energy and thought into the manufacture and sale of its products.

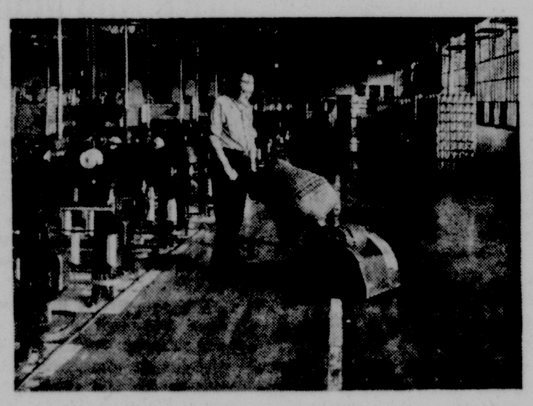
Celanese income, like that of other producers, comes from selling what we make. Out of our income must come the cost of raw materials, wages, modernization, maintenance, local and federal taxes, insurance, and all other business expenses. But all these do not set the price.

The price has to be a figure that customers are able and willing to pay. Otherwise customers buy elsewhere, and with fewer people buying a product, fewer people are needed to make it.

Cost of production is important to every employee. Unless a company watches its cost of living it's possible to price the product out of the market—and its employees out of jobs.



Only by living within its income, or by borrowing money that has to be paid back somehow out of future income, can a business get the money for the development of the better machines and better processes its employees need to compete successfully with other workers making similar, or substitute products.



People like to live in a well kept home, and they like to work in a well kept plant. Celanese spends thousands of dollars every year to provide comfortable working quarters and to keep the plant clean and in good condition. Anybody can do better work in a well-cared for plant, with well-cared for machines.

GENEVA — (AP) — International control of narcotics is becoming increasingly difficult because of development of new synthetic drugs and failure of various governments to provide production and consumption statistics, the Permanent Central Opium Board reports.

The board is a United Nations agency responsible for the international control of narcotics under a convention drawn up in 1925. The board's annual report stressed that the 1925 agreement does not cover most of the synthetic drugs which are now being produced in quantities greater than those of the conventional drugs such as opium, morphine and cocaine, which are under the board's control.

In addition, the report declared, many governments have failed to meet their obligations to provide detailed information on the narcotics covered by the convention.

No statistics of any kind were received from the Bahrein islands, China, Liberia, Nepal, Saudi Arabia and Oman, the report said, while there were "serious gaps" in the information supplied by Czechoslovakia, Peru, Poland and the Soviet Union.

The government of Bolivia, the report said, although providing a few statistics, "failed to send a reply to any of the questions put to it by the board."

The board placed embargoes on the export of narcotic drugs to the Belgian Congo, Bulgaria, Hungary, India and Yugoslavia during the past year. These countries had exceeded their import quotas under the agreement during 1949.

The report said the drug control situation in Germany caused some anxiety as a result of a lack of coordination "even between the western zones" and warned of a resulting danger of illicit drug traffic.

"Some sporadic information of interzonal trade is reported," the board said, "but it is not complete. Indeed, the board fears that the authorities in the zones are not always informed of the amounts of narcotics which arrive from other zones, or that the narcotics exported always reach their destination in other zones. This kind of situation may lead to illicit traffic."

The report expressed concern also at reports of offers for sale of considerable quantities of opium by the Chinese Communist government.

"The board has been informed," the report said, "that large quantities of Jehol opium, amounting in one case to 500 tons and in another case to 200 tons, are being offered by the Chinese government on the market.

"So far as the board is aware, this is the first occasion on which raw opium has been offered by China on the licit traffic.

"The existence of such large available stocks, offered for sale but not declared to the board, must be a matter of concern."

Science Scoffs But There's Evidence Dowsing Works

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Kenneth Roberts, the author, in a new book, "Henry Gross And His Dowsing Rod" (Doubleday) tells of a dowser who talks to his stick and it answers by bending — a bend means yes—no motion means no.

Gross does this not only where the water is, but miles away from the water. Further, he does it sometimes from maps.

He has done it not once, but many times, Roberts says. Once it was a map of Bermuda, which had only rainwater for drinking until 1950. Gross, in Kennybunk, Maine, 800 miles from Bermuda, dowsed the map and pinpointed springs that geologists had said could not exist on that island.

Last year three of these springs were drilled and brought in, producing the water previously said to be non-existent in Bermuda. Roberts documents all this, with names, companies, supporting businessmen in Bermuda, and scientific men who said it could not be done. The springs were brought in respectively Feb. 11, March 10 and March 23, 1950.

Roberts takes out after the geologists and other scientists with "closed minds" who say it is impossible—say it in the face of 42 of these remote control wells found, drilled and producing in 1950. Most of the wells are in Maine, where Henry Gross is a game warden. He does his dowsing free of charge, usually paying himself for the gasoline for the trip to the farmers' land.

One remote well is that of Raymond Harper, Princeton, N. J., right next to Einstein's house. Roberts says that Gross by request dowsed Harper's land while Harper was visiting at Robert's home in Kennybunk. At that time Roberts was doubtful of his friend's purported ability to dowse at a distance or from maps.

Not until after the Bermuda wells did Roberts ask Harper to look. The spring was found in the exact location, and at the exact number of feet—seven—which Gross said to dig. The same prediction located a spring on Einstein's place, but Einstein was not told.

Gross points his rod in the direction for remote dowsing. He asks it questions. He names the place and asks if there are "veins" (of underground water). A down-dip means yes. He asks if there are one—two—three and so on—stopping when lack of dip means no. He gets the distance of the veins from house or other location by the same method, also the depth of veins. He asks whether the vein contains good drinking water, and so on.

The answers are precise, finally in feet and half-feet, both for distances and depths, and for points where veins join or cross, and their sources in water welling up from deep underground.

The Way Things Look

The Wall Street Journal the other day undertook to boil down all the economic information they could get into a useful forecast for Americans generally.

The article was two columns long, and wide measure at that, so any attempt to summarize this summary is bound to be inadequate. But it makes certain points that are worth getting a good grip on.

For instance, it suggests that 1951 may be a great deal like 1942—a year that brought much heavier taxes, gasoline rationing, conscription on a huge scale, a stock market slump and a night club boom, and black markets.

Of course, everybody should know by this time that taxes will be higher. Defense spending is zooming, and no attempt is being made by the White House to reduce non-essential spending. But this article notes that taxes will be felt not only directly but in the form of price increases. It says bluntly there will be more inflation, so that the dollars not taxed away will shrink further, and that economic controls will not solve the problem.

That's the straight of the matter, and the American people ought to realize it. But this article is more enlightening than most on this same subject because it points out that there is a real basis for that hope. It observes that the defense program in 1942 took a third of the nation's output and will take only a sixth—unless it continues to grow—in 1951. And the nation's production capacity has grown.

Statistics reveal that the U. S. now generates more electric energy than it did nine years ago, produces more materials, has more manpower, grows more food and fiber, manufactures more goods.

Although the economy is tighter, there is room to move around and get in position for defense. If there is wise management at Washington, this country need not become a totalitarian state.

Russia Spurns Peace

There is nothing to support a forlorn hope that Russia would be favorable to world peace, even if it could be obtained on its own selfish terms.

An official military publication, the Army Information Digest, is authority for the statement that Russia is completely geared for war under a program which begins with the youngest children in school. These are taught the meaning of military terms, and given a foundation which will make it easier to assure actual military service at the earliest possible age.

The Digest says Russia's present armed strength begins with 4,500,000 men under arms. Of this number 3,000,000 are actually in the army, trained and equipped. All males who reach the age of 19 are subject to conscription, and actual military service runs to five years. Only those over 50, or physically unfit, are exempt from military service.

Russian women also are subject to military service, with more than 2,000,000 in combat organizations in the last war.

During all the periods of training Russian soldiers are fed Communist propaganda, and they know little else politically. The Digest says the Russian economy is devoted solely to preparation for war, the inference being that the goal is infliction of Communist rule on the entire world.

There isn't a single straw in the wind that indicates Russia desires peace, even on appeasement terms.

Cabinet Rumors

With Americans searching for leadership in these perilous times, one possibility is that leadership might be promoted by an infusion of new personages into the Cabinet. This would have the advantage of making improved advice available to the President.

Opposition to Secretary Dean Acheson of the State Department, it seems, reached the point where Acheson was to be permitted to resign. But those who oppose him pressed their attacks so hotly they ran into a road block created by the President's well known obstinacy. It is still probable that Acheson will go, but probably not in the next week or two.

Other members of the Cabinet rated as contributing little to the wisdom of the President's official family are Secretary Snyder of the Treasury Department, Secretary Brannan of the Agriculture Department, Secretary Donaldson of the Post Office Department and Secretary Chapman of the Interior Department.

Some or all of these men may be replaced—or none of them may be. But many Americans are convinced it would be of benefit to the nation if these posts could be filled by men of high capacity who never were pally with political left-wingers.

History would be more esteemed by everybody if it repeated only its happier phases.

Near East Ill Will

Other parts of the world may be dismayed at the possibility of war, but not the Arab states of the Near East. If Arab newspapers reflect the vews of their readers, they advocate a general Arab attack on the new state of Israel. That may serve to distract citizens' attention from the pressing economic problems of the Arab states, Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Syria and Jordan. They need badly the business and technical skill which Israle could furnish, while Israel for her part is in desperate want of the agricluture products which the Arabs could offer.

Some of the more responsible Arab statesmen would be willing to ajourn this feud with Israel. Their constituents, however have been so worked up with anti-Israel arguments that they are not willing to settle down to peace. In justice, it must be admitted that the Arabs have grievances also, particularly in connection with the many Arab residents of Palestine who were summarily evicted to make room for the new Jewish immigration from Europe.

As with the United States, both sides find that military expenditures cramp the governments' ability to improve the living conditions of their peoples. Observers of the situation hope that the present hostility will produce nothing more dangerous than bickering.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Deep Depression

MANY MEN and women who commit suicide do so because they are abnormally depressed. It is obvious that the severity of the condition was not recognized because after the news of the tragedy reaches the family its members frequently admit that the deceased had been moody and blue for some time prior to taking his life. Had the signficance of the depression been recognized the catastrophe might have been averted.

It is natural to become blue from time to time thru the usual vicissitudes that bring on unhappiness. These include broken love affairs, sickness in the family, politics, world affairs, and the loss of a cherished one. But the period of discouragement is shortlived and in time the majority become more optimistic. True melancholy presents a more difficult problem. The depression becomes so deeply entrenched that it has a profound influence on every aspect of existence. The victim worries about conditions that should not be given a second thought. This "much ado about nothing" offers one of the first clews that the emotional state is far from normal.

• — • — •

The individual is gloomy and downhearted most of the time, cries easily, and feels inferior and unworthy to be alive. It is this feeling of inadequacy and hopelessness that leads to attempted suicide. Insomnia and lack of appetite make matters worse. Weight loss follows and the mind is so cloudy from lack of sleep that rational thinking is impossible. As a result, the feeling of inadequacy increases.

These persons need expert care because the majority are not in a condition to overcome the depression by themselves. One of the worst bits of advice is to recommend a trip or a vacation, which usually adds to the confusion and makes them more apprehensive. Furthermore the melancholic cannot be cheered up or reasoned with; it is useless to tell him to forget his troubles.

Home care also is inadvisable even tho spontanous cure occurs occasionally. It is up to the responsible members of the family to take the bull by the horns and come to the rescue of the helpless victim. After all, with proper care, the outlook is excellent. The sufferer needs to be placed where he can be protected against visitors and obtain rest, good food, and careful nursing. Shock treatment and other forms of psychotherapy are useful. As soon as the change in mood comes on, improvement begins but one of the most common mistakes is to take the patient home too soon. Unless he is completely well, symptoms are likely to return and the months of treatment are wasted.

We do not know why some are subject to depressions. The condition is prone to occur among the most intelligent and the list of victims includes many of our most talented men and women. Some are perfectionists and become upset when little things go wrong. There is a belief among physicians that a metabolic disturbance lies behind these mood changes. At any rate, early recognition and treatment are important in saving some of our best and most productive workers.

TOMORROW: Survival of victims of coronary thrombosis.

SNEEZING

Mrs. G. writes: Could a woman who is three months pregnant harm the baby by sneezing when she has a cold?

REPLY

No. The baby is well protected from strain of this nature. However, one sneeze after another, day in and day out, might led to miscarriage. This would be the exception rather than the rule.

BLOOD TYPE MATE

N. W. writes. Does a woman with type O blood have to marry a man with the same type in order to have children?

REPLY

Fortunately, no, but even if this were so, you would have a wider choice than A, B, and AB blood types because O is the most common group. The blood type has nothing to do with pregnancy except in relation to the RH factor. These groups are incompatible in a small percentage of the population.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Only a handful know it, but the raging arguments between President Truman and Sen. Robert A. Taft could have been avoided.

A few weeks after his big election victory in Ohio in November, Taft sent word to the White House he would be glad to sit down with Mr. Truman and talk over the problems of defense with the view to reaching a closer cooperation between the Administration and the GOP leadership.

Senator Taft's position, as expressed by such nonpolitical members of the Adiminstration team as Undersecretary of Defense Robert Lovett, was that he had not made up his mind on foreign policy and wanted to hear all sides. In fact, friends of Taft said that he was so anxious to attain the stature of invalid Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, that he was willing to drop isolationism if he could be shown it was against our best interests.

This was reported to President Truman by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also by Secretary of Defense George Marshall. They urgently felt the Senator should be invited to the White House.

The White House staff, however, argued against it. Sensing some political trick, most of the Presidential advisers felt that Truman should not open his doors to Taft unless the Senator agreed, in advance, to support a bipartisan foreign policy.

President Truman, who has always had a sneaking admiration for Taft, listened to the arguments. At one moment he was inclined to throw protocol to the wind, call Taft to his office, take down his hair and say, "Bob, we're in a jam in the world. We need your help!" But he was talked out of it.

Finally, after some three weeks of bickering within the White House circle, a compromise was reached. Taft would be invited in, but only as one of a group of Congressional leaders summoned to the White House for a formal conference.

Net result was that the rebuffed Taft angrily told the Republican conference he was opposed even to "consulting" with the Administration. And, in his foreign policy speech last week, he accused the President of violating the Constitution by sending troops to Korea.

King of The Justice Department

Nevada's barrel-chested, silvermaned Sen. Pat McCarran is the worst tyrant in the Senate, and he doesn't care who knows it.

Even in the presence of a dumbfounded visitor, McCarran telephoned Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford and gave him a humilating tongue-lashing.

"Hello, Ford. What about that young fellow I referred to you for a job?" demanded the Nevadan.

Ford mumbled an explanation about the tight Justice Department budget.

"That's no excuse," snorted McCarran who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has almost life-and-death power over the Justice Department. "If you haven't got any money left to put him on, you certainly know where to come for a deficiency appropriation. Who controls your budget?"

Both McCarran and Ford knew the answer to that question. For McCarran is also chairamn of the Appropriations Subcommittee that holds the Justice Department's purse strings.

Meekly, Ford promised an opening for McCarran's friend in another two months.

"Two months from now is too late," snapped McCarran, his silver hair bristling. Then he bluntly ordered: "Ford, put him on the first of the month."

Timidly, Ford agreed.

"That's better, Peyton," chortled McCarran. "Now let's make that a deal, say, 'cross my heart.'"

Ike's Advice

Sitting in the Washington apartment of his good friend, humorist George E. Allen, Ike listened to predictions that the British Empire was falling apart, that the French would not fight, that the U. S. A. was hopelessly divided and without leadership, and that Russia would seize Europe before he could organize its defenses.

Finally Eisenhower rose and punched out these words: "Anyone who has ever lived with our boys in action knows that we are still the most dynamic nation in the world. But we've lost faith in ourselves. What we need is to prove to ourselves and the world what we can do. That way we will strengthen our allies and make aggression by the enemy impossible. I know we can do it."

This caused George Allen to reminisce: "Do you remember how pessimistic I was when you first went to England to start a second front? I told you Hitler was going to bottle up the Mediterranean, knock Russia out of the war and invade Ireland.

"Well, you gave us this same advice then," concluded Allen, "and you were absolutely right. I'll string along with you now, too."

"Where Do We Get the Money?"

Tall, whip-tongued GOP Congressman Bob ("Where are you going to get the money?") Rich retired from Congress the other day after 20 years of almost uninterrupted sermonizing on government economy. Even fair deal foes joined in the applause as the colorful Pennsylvanian bowed out with this valedictory poem on his favorite theme:

"A New Year's resolution that would do the country the greatest good
"Would be to economize in government spending, as you should.
"Colleagues, as the New Year begins for 1951
"The best solution I could offer, by gum,
"Is that Congress would be wise to economize.
"Now I wish you joy, pleasure, health, happiness and sich,

Tight Squeeze

War Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson is caught in a squeeze between his new duties as mobilization boss and his old ties with General Electric. He may be forced to crack down on the electric companies in New England, because aluminum and steel plants have been driven out of New England by the high power rates.

Also, the Aluminum Company of Canada is urging Wilson to decide in favor of expanding Canadian aluminum production, at the expense of American expansion—largely because public power projects must be built to supply extra power if more aluminum plants are built in the United States. It is no secret that the electrical industry is against public power projects.

A Billion Dollars

A FRIEND writes:

"The word 'billion' flows glibly from the pens of journalists and the tongues of radio commentators and the public accepts it without considering what a staggering sum it represents. Webster defines 'a billion' thus: a thousand million. In short, instead of saying Congress wants 70 billions in 1951, we would say, Congress wants 70 thousands millions of dollars. What would you think of this?"

The idea is a good one, but editors and others will complain that it uses up too much room. That is a matter of perspective. It used to be that if a man had $1,000,000, he figured he had about $60,000 a year and was a very rich man. I receive from my various labors more than that each year, but I am not a rich man.

In fact, when it comes to savings, I am a poor man because I can save practically nothing after I have paid federal and state taxes and the high cost of living.

Furthermore, I receive inflated dollars and pay inflated dollars and therefore those who pay me and those whom I pay are kidding each other because we are using dollars when actually we are using half-dollars or less, although the Treasury still calls them dollars. Labor kids itself by asking for more of the same, but always actually getting more tokens of less money.

Harry Truman talks about billions as though they were nickles and grew on trees. This romantic attitude would make no difference were it not that his policies are stripping this country of its natural resources and killing the initiative of our most able men, who measure the value of their earnings not by what they can spend but by what they can save.

His predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, knew what a million dollars meant, by birth, inheritance, environment and habit of mind. It seemed a paltry sum to him. True, we have become glib about it and scatter billions in our speech as he did in government expenditures. It is difficult to show the results of his efforts to get rid of these billions.

In fact, I have been trying to find out what happened to the $50,000,000,000 (pardon me, I mean the $50 thousand million) which we have in more recent years spent on the national defense and for which there is nothing to show so far as any of us, dead or alive, can discover.

We shall soon enough be in the trillion and zillion dollar class and that will be too difficult to discuss or write about.

Why not be realistic? Why not devalue our currency to what it really is? That would abolish the dollar and make our standard of currency about 42 cents. We might call the new money a Hopkins in honor of that notable spendtrift. Instead of the $ sign, we could us an H. The British might do the same with the pound, naming it after John Maynard Keynes.

It would be realistic, which I understand is a virtue because Stalin is supposed to be realistic. Anything Stalin does is supposed to be perfect, including the general use of the lie.

Now, to be even more realistic, we might as well stop buying anything in the grocery store but demand the free use of the enormous stores of food held by the government, and much of it rotting. In that way, we should not need money at all, but would get a card from a revivified OPA.

Then my friend's idea could be carried even further. We should not only drop the word, million, but arithmetic altogether. In fact, we lost all sense of arithmetic long ago, because after we add a column of earnings, we must deduct those earnings which we are only permitted to handle but not to use or to keep. Then it comes out minus, which is supposed to be plus.

If you understand how it works,

Truman Speech Termed Aid To Cause Of Unity

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—President Truman found himself, in his message to Congress on the "State of the Union," compelled by circumstances beyond his control to confine himself to generalities and abstract statements on the world sitation.

At the very moment that he was speaking, there was in progress within the secret realm of diplomacy some very important exchanges of views between the United States Government and the other governments of the free word to obtain universal support for a resolution to be adopted in the UN General Assembly condemning Red China as an aggressor and proposing united action by UN members.

Likewise, on the very day the President was scheduled to address the Congress, he was unable to reveal the future steps which will be taken in a military way in Korea because these steps are still not crystallized. The tide of battle there, which is adverse at the moment, could result in a stalemate that would encourage the chances of a cease-fire agreement in a few weeks or it could result in such a concentration of American forces within a narrow perimeter as to make the prime question one of endurance in the belaguered area, supported by sea and air power.

Well Conceived

So with both the political and the military fronts virtually closed off from public discussion during these critical days, Mr. Truman had to be content with a proclamation of general purposes which to many listeners did not sound as significant perhaps as it really was.

Broadly speaking, the Truman message was well conceived and well developed. It promulgated clearly the American concept of anti-communism and of defense of Europe. For the first time America declares that Red China is a "puppet government" and places directly upon the Soviet government in Moscow the responsibility for "formenting" revolution in China these last few years.

This is an important disclosure from an official source as high as the Presidency of the United States. It is the forerunner of another pronouncement which may be expected soon—Namely, that physical control of Chinese territory is maintained by the Communist only because of external aid from Russia and does not warrant admission of the Red Chinese regime into the United Nations.

Indeed, once the Communist faction in China is declared an aggressor and once the United Nations forces are prevented by military action from achieving their objectives in Korea, the opportunity of Communist China to take her place in the family of nations may be said to have been completely lost so far as both diplomatic recognition and admission to the UN are concerned.

Perhaps the most interesting straw in the wind is the speech of Sir Gladwyn Jebb, spokesman from Great Britain in the UN, who hints that a break with Communist China may be forthcoming and that, when this step is taken, all the members of the UN should "leap together." This is but another way of saying, that, as between continued support of the Communist China regime and a break-up of the UN as a result of the Korean debacle, the British are ready to go along with the position of the United States.

Contribution To Debate

The denunciation of Communist China as an aggressor is long past due but it takes time for more than 50 nations to exchange views and to come to conclusions.

Mr. Truman's speech is sharp in denunciation of Soviet Russia. His phases may have been heard before but they have not been assembled in quite the same positive way. The Truman speech is a distinct contribution to the debate on world policy. The restraint which the President used with reference to the domestic political situation will help the cause of unity. For he puts on the spot those who would yield to partisan spirit. What is important in this regard, however, is that the Democrats in Congress who are attacking individual Republicans as partisans should not be misled into thinking that the dissatisfaction with foreign policy is itself political or a matter of political ambition for certain personalities. For the truth is the unhappiness in America over the Korean adventure is not confined to any political party.

Savings Bond Purchaser Deserves Consideration

By MARK SULLIVAN

THE United States Treasury is preparing another drive to sell savings bonds to the people, meaning ask the people to loan more money to the government. The Treasury needs to. It is now generally recognized that the cost of the present war and preparedness for more cannot be paid wholly out of taxes. While "pay as we fight" is a worthy aspiration and is likely to be fulfilled in considerable part, it will not be possible to pay the whole cost out of the taxes raised by any practicable rate, however high. The Treasury will need to borrow large amounts.

In preparing a drive to ask the people to buy more savings bonds, the Treasury encounters a difficulty. The people are showing less disposition to buy these bonds. Month after month last year the people bought fewer bonds than they cashed in. To put it another way, the Treasury was obliged, month by month, to pay out more money to redeem old bonds than it took in by selling new ones. This went on even during the months when the Treasury was conducting its especially vigorous and highly organized bond-selling drive last summer. In July the Treasury was obliged to pay out some $50,000,000 more to redeem old bonds than it took in by selling new ones. Going into the red to pay off old bonds while making a drive to sell new ones is, as a fiscal operation of the government, worse than merely futile.

Dollar Value Down

Conceivably the reason some people have been buying fewer savings bonds might be lack of money to pay for them. A more probable and generally accepted reason is that the people have been disappointed in their experience with the bonds. True, a person who in 1940 bought a ten-year bond got back from the government in 1950 the exact number of dollars promised on the date promised at the rate of interest promised. But in terms of goods, the bond buyer's experience was not so satisfactory.

When a bond buyer in 1940 put a dollar into a bond, he in terms of goods put in, for example, five dozen of eggs. When the government returned his dollar in 1950 it returned, in purchasing power, barely two dozen eggs. That experience has been common. In 1940 a dollar would buy three pounds of butter; in 1950, less than two pounds. Of bacon the fall of the dollar in purchasing power was from four pounds to less than two. And so on as to many items of food, clothing, building material, most of the things consumers buy.

It is little wonder if bond buyers felt disappointment. And it would be understandable if the disappointment took on some resentment when the bond buyer came to realize that the fall in the purchasing power of his saved dollars had been caused in large part by policies and practices of the same government that had sold him the bonds. He saw the prices of food made higher than they would otherwise be by government price support of farm crops, which included, in the case of potatoes, purchase of great quantities at artificial prices fixed by the government followed in 1947 by destruction of them, and in other years by sale at normal prices for uses other than food. He saw the government buy up great quantities of butter and of eggs and hold them off the market. He saw the government, by one device or another, cause the prices of nearly all foods to be higher than they would normally have been.

May Propose Incentive

Herein lies the real problem of the government and the true answer. Faced by falling off of purchases of savings bonds the Treasury is said to be considering a device, reported by Albert Clark in the "Wall Street Journal," a slight increase in rate of interest on existing bonds provided the holder does not cash them in but continues to hold them after the end of the ten-year term. But any increase of interest would be slight compared with the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar if this goes on at a pace like that in the past. The real answer is to stop the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar—to enable the bond buyer to feel assured that his saved dollars, when he gets them back in old age or upon retirement, will buy him as much food or other goods as they did when he saved them.

In the bond buying drive expected to be launched by the Treasury, it will of course make the usual promises it makes and keeps about the amount to be paid back, the date of payment, rate of interest and the like. It could check the present falling off in purchases of savings bonds by an additional promise—to the effect that the government will follow no policy or practice likely to cause the purchasing power of the dollar to go lower.

The purchase of savings bonds by the people is a valuable contribution to the operation of government, the savings bond buyer is a buttress of government finance. Of all the groups that compose our society, the saviegs bond buyer has an especially strong claim to consideration by the government, a claim based on simple justice to the bond buyer and on the interest of the government in having a sound fiscal system.

The Way Things Look

The Wall Street Journal the other day undertook to boil down all the economic information they could get into a useful forecast for Americans generally.

The article was two columns long, and wide measure at that, so any attempt to summarize this summary is bound to be inadequate. But it makes certain points that are worth getting a good grip on.

For instance, it suggests that 1951 may be a great deal like 1942—a year that brought much heavier taxes, gasoline rationing, conscription on a huge scale, a stock market slump and a night club boom, and black markets.

Of course, everybody should know by this time that taxes will be higher. Defense spending is zooming, and no attempt is being made by the White House to reduce non-essential spending. But this article notes that taxes will be felt not only directly but in the form of price increases. It says bluntly there will be more inflation, so that the dollars not taxed away will shrink further, and that economic controls will not solve the problem.

That's the straight of the matter, and the American people ought to realize it. But this article is more enlightening than most on this same subject because it points out that there is a real basis for that hope. It observes that the defense program in 1942 took a third of the nation's output and will take only a sixth—unless it continues to grow—in 1951. And the nation's production capacity has grown.

Statistics reveal that the U. S. now generates more electric energy than it did nine years ago, produces more materials, has more manpower, grows more food and fiber, manufactures more goods.

Although the economy is tighter, there is room to move around and get in position for defense. If there is wise management at Washington, this country need not become a totalitarian state.

Russia Spurns Peace

There is nothing to support a forlorn hope that Russia would be favorable to world peace, even if it could be obtained on its own selfish terms.

An official military publication, the Army Information Digest, is authority for the statement that Russia is completely geared for war under a program which begins with the youngest children in school. These are taught the meaning of military terms, and given a foundation which will make it easier to assure actual military service at the earliest possible age.

The Digest says Russia's present armed strength begins with 4,500,000 men under arms. Of this number 3,000,000 are actually in the army, trained and equipped. All males who reach the age of 19 are subject to conscription, and actual military service runs to five years. Only those over 50, or physically unfit, are exempt from military service.

Russian women also are subject to military service, with more than 2,000,000 in combat organizations in the last war.

During all the periods of training Russian soldiers are fed Communist propaganda, and they know little else politically. The Digest says the Russian economy is devoted solely to preparation for war, the inference being that the goal is infliction of Communist rule on the entire world.

There isn't a single straw in the wind that indicates Russia desires peace, even on appeasement terms.

A woman tells her troubles to a doctor. But when a man gets into trouble he needs a policeman or a lawyer.

As soon as the change in mood comes on, improvement begins but one of the most common mistakes is to take the patient home too soon. Unless he is completely well, symptoms are likely to return and the months of treatment are wasted.

We do not know why some are subject to depressions. The condition is prone to occur among the most intelligent and the list of victims includes many of our most talented men and women. Some are perfectionists and become upset when little things go wrong. There is a belief among physicians that a metabolic disturbance lies behind these mood changes. At any rate, early recognition and treatment are important in saving some of our best and most productive workers.

TOMORROW: Survival of victims of coronary thrombosis.

SNEEZING

Mrs. G. writes: Could a woman who is three months pregnant harm the baby by sneezing when she has a cold?

REPLY

No. The baby is well protected from strain of this nature. However, one sneeze after another, day in and day out, might led to miscarriage. This would be the exception rather than the rule.

BLOOD TYPE MATE

N. W. writes. Does a woman with type O blood have to marry a man with the same type in order to have children?

REPLY

Fortunately, no, but even if this were so, you would have a wider choice than A, B, and AB blood types because O is the most common group. The blood type has nothing to do with pregnancy except in relation to the RH factor. These groups are incompatible in a small percentage of the population.

Taft's Blistering Speech Followed White House Rebuff; Sen. McCarran Browbeats Justice Department; General Eisenhower Gives Good Advice

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Only a handful know it, but the raging arguments between President Truman and Sen. Robert A. Taft could have been avoided.

A few weeks after his big election victory in Ohio in November, Taft sent word to the White House he would be glad to sit down with Mr. Truman and talk over the problems of defense with the view to reaching a closer cooperation between the Administration and the GOP leadership.

Senator Taft's position, as expressed by such nonpolitical members of the Adiminstration team as Undersecretary of Defense Robert Lovett, was that he had not made up his mind on foreign policy and wanted to hear all sides. In fact, friends of Taft said that he was so anxious to attain the stature of invalid Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, that he was willing to drop isolationism if he could be shown it was against our best interests.

This was reported to President Truman by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also by Secretary of Defense George Marshall. They urgently felt the Senator should be invited to the White House.

The White House staff, however, argued against it. Sensing some political trick, most of the Presidential advisers felt that Truman should not open his doors to Taft unless the Senator agreed, in advance, to support a bipartisan foreign policy.

President Truman, who has always had a sneaking admiration for Taft, listened to the arguments. At one moment he was inclined to throw protocol to the wind, call Taft to his office, take down his hair and say, "Bob, we're in a jam in the world. We need your help!" But he was talked out of it.

Finally, after some three weeks of bickering within the White House circle, a compromise was reached. Taft would be invited in, but only as one of a group of Congressional leaders summoned to the White House for a formal conference.

Net result was that the rebuffed Taft angrily told the Republican conference he was opposed even to "consulting" with the Administration. And, in his foreign policy speech last week, he accused the President of violating the Constitution by sending troops to Korea.

King of The Justice Department

Nevada's barrel-chested, silvermaned Sen. Pat McCarran is the worst tyrant in the Senate, and he doesn't care who knows it.

Even in the presence of a dumbfounded visitor, McCarran telephoned Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford and gave him a humilating tongue-lashing.

"Hello, Ford. What about that young fellow I referred to you for a job?" demanded the Nevadan.

Ford mumbled an explanation about the tight Justice Department budget.

"That's no excuse," snorted McCarran who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has almost life-and-death power over the Justice Department. "If you haven't got any money left to put him on, you certainly know where to come for a deficiency appropriation. Who controls your budget?"

Both McCarran and Ford knew the answer to that question. For McCarran is also chairamn of the Appropriations Subcommittee that holds the Justice Department's purse strings.

Meekly, Ford promised an opening for McCarran's friend in another two months.

"Two months from now is too late," snapped McCarran, his silver hair bristling. Then he bluntly ordered: "Ford, put him on the first of the month."

Timidly, Ford agreed.

"That's better, Peyton," chortled McCarran. "Now let's make that a deal, say, 'cross my heart.'"

Ike's Advice

Sitting in the Washington apartment of his good friend, humorist George E. Allen, Ike listened to predictions that the British Empire was falling apart, that the French would not fight, that the U. S. A. was hopelessly divided and without leadership, and that Russia would seize Europe before he could organize its defenses.

Finally Eisenhower rose and punched out these words: "Anyone who has ever lived with our boys in action knows that we are still the most dynamic nation in the world. But we've lost faith in ourselves. What we need is to prove to ourselves and the world what we can do. That way we will strengthen our allies and make aggression by the enemy impossible. I know we can do it."

This caused George Allen to reminisce: "Do you remember how pessimistic I was when you first went to England to start a second front? I told you Hitler was going to bottle up the Mediterranean, knock Russia out of the war and invade Ireland.

"Well, you gave us this same advice then," concluded Allen, "and you were absolutely right. I'll string along with you now, too."

"Where Do We Get the Money?"

Tall, whip-tongued GOP Congressman Bob ("Where are you going to get the money?") Rich retired from Congress the other day after 20 years of almost uninterrupted sermonizing on government economy. Even fair deal foes joined in the applause as the colorful Pennsylvanian bowed out with this valedictory poem on his favorite theme:

"A New Year's resolution that would do the country the greatest good
"Would be to economize in government spending, as you should.
"Colleagues, as the New Year begins for 1951
"The best solution I could offer, by gum,
"Is that Congress would be wise to economize.
"Now I wish you joy, pleasure, health, happiness and sich,

Tight Squeeze

War Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson is caught in a squeeze between his new duties as mobilization boss and his old ties with General Electric. He may be forced to crack down on the electric companies in New England, because aluminum and steel plants have been driven out of New England by the high power rates.

Also, the Aluminum Company of Canada is urging Wilson to decide in favor of expanding Canadian aluminum production, at the expense of American expansion—largely because public power projects must be built to supply extra power if more aluminum plants are built in the United States. It is no secret that the electrical industry is against public power projects.

A Billion Dollars

A FRIEND writes:

"The word 'billion' flows glibly from the pens of journalists and the tongues of radio commentators and the public accepts it without considering what a staggering sum it represents. Webster defines 'a billion' thus: a thousand million. In short, instead of saying Congress wants 70 billions in 1951, we would say, Congress wants 70 thousands millions of dollars. What would you think of this?"

The idea is a good one, but editors and others will complain that it uses up too much room. That is a matter of perspective. It used to be that if a man had $1,000,000, he figured he had about $60,000 a year and was a very rich man. I receive from my various labors more than that each year, but I am not a rich man.

In fact, when it comes to savings, I am a poor man because I can save practically nothing after I have paid federal and state taxes and the high cost of living.

Furthermore, I receive inflated dollars and pay inflated dollars and therefore those who pay me and those whom I pay are kidding each other because we are using dollars when actually we are using half-dollars or less, although the Treasury still calls them dollars. Labor kids itself by asking for more of the same, but always actually getting more tokens of less money.

Harry Truman talks about billions as though they were nickles and grew on trees. This romantic attitude would make no difference were it not that his policies are stripping this country of its natural resources and killing the initiative of our most able men, who measure the value of their earnings not by what they can spend but by what they can save.

His predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, knew what a million dollars meant, by birth, inheritance, environment and habit of mind. It seemed a paltry sum to him. True, we have become glib about it and scatter billions in our speech as he did in government expenditures. It is difficult to show the results of his efforts to get rid of these billions.

In fact, I have been trying to find out what happened to the $50,000,000,000 (pardon me, I mean the $50 thousand million) which we have in more recent years spent on the national defense and for which there is nothing to show so far as any of us, dead or alive, can discover.

We shall soon enough be in the trillion and zillion dollar class and that will be too difficult to discuss or write about.

Why not be realistic? Why not devalue our currency to what it really is? That would abolish the dollar and make our standard of currency about 42 cents. We might call the new money a Hopkins in honor of that notable spendtrift. Instead of the $ sign, we could us an H. The British might do the same with the pound, naming it after John Maynard Keynes.

It would be realistic, which I understand is a virtue because Stalin is supposed to be realistic. Anything Stalin does is supposed to be perfect, including the general use of the lie.

Now, to be even more realistic, we might as well stop buying anything in the grocery store but demand the free use of the enormous stores of food held by the government, and much of it rotting. In that way, we should not need money at all, but would get a card from a revivified OPA.

Then my friend's idea could be carried even further. We should not only drop the word, million, but arithmetic altogether. In fact, we lost all sense of arithmetic long ago, because after we add a column of earnings, we must deduct those earnings which we are only permitted to handle but not to use or to keep. Then it comes out minus, which is supposed to be plus.

If you understand how it works,

Truman Speech Termed Aid To Cause Of Unity

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—President Truman found himself, in his message to Congress on the "State of the Union," compelled by circumstances beyond his control to confine himself to generalities and abstract statements on the world sitation.

At the very moment that he was speaking, there was in progress within the secret realm of diplomacy some very important exchanges of views between the United States Government and the other governments of the free word to obtain universal support for a resolution to be adopted in the UN General Assembly condemning Red China as an aggressor and proposing united action by UN members.

Likewise, on the very day the President was scheduled to address the Congress, he was unable to reveal the future steps which will be taken in a military way in Korea because these steps are still not crystallized. The tide of battle there, which is adverse at the moment, could result in a stalemate that would encourage the chances of a cease-fire agreement in a few weeks or it could result in such a concentration of American forces within a narrow perimeter as to make the prime question one of endurance in the belaguered area, supported by sea and air power.

Well Conceived

So with both the political and the military fronts virtually closed off from public discussion during these critical days, Mr. Truman had to be content with a proclamation of general purposes which to many listeners did not sound as significant perhaps as it really was.

Broadly speaking, the Truman message was well conceived and well developed. It promulgated clearly the American concept of anti-communism and of defense of Europe. For the first time America declares that Red China is a "puppet government" and places directly upon the Soviet government in Moscow the responsibility for "formenting" revolution in China these last few years.

This is an important disclosure from an official source as high as the Presidency of the United States. It is the forerunner of another pronouncement which may be expected soon—Namely, that physical control of Chinese territory is maintained by the Communist only because of external aid from Russia and does not warrant admission of the Red Chinese regime into the United Nations.

Indeed, once the Communist faction in China is declared an aggressor and once the United Nations forces are prevented by military action from achieving their objectives in Korea, the opportunity of Communist China to take her place in the family of nations may be said to have been completely lost so far as both diplomatic recognition and admission to the UN are concerned.

Perhaps the most interesting straw in the wind is the speech of Sir Gladwyn Jebb, spokesman from Great Britain in the UN, who hints that a break with Communist China may be forthcoming and that, when this step is taken, all the members of the UN should "leap together." This is but another way of saying, that, as between continued support of the Communist China regime and a break-up of the UN as a result of the Korean debacle, the British are ready to go along with the position of the United States.

Contribution To Debate

The denunciation of Communist China as an aggressor is long past due but it takes time for more than 50 nations to exchange views and to come to conclusions.

Mr. Truman's speech is sharp in denunciation of Soviet Russia. His phases may have been heard before but they have not been assembled in quite the same positive way. The Truman speech is a distinct contribution to the debate on world policy. The restraint which the President used with reference to the domestic political situation will help the cause of unity. For he puts on the spot those who would yield to partisan spirit. What is important in this regard, however, is that the Democrats in Congress who are attacking individual Republicans as partisans should not be misled into thinking that the dissatisfaction with foreign policy is itself political or a matter of political ambition for certain personalities. For the truth is the unhappiness in America over the Korean adventure is not confined to any political party.

Savings Bond Purchaser Deserves Consideration

By MARK SULLIVAN

THE United States Treasury is preparing another drive to sell savings bonds to the people, meaning ask the people to loan more money to the government. The Treasury needs to. It is now generally recognized that the cost of the present war and preparedness for more cannot be paid wholly out of taxes. While "pay as we fight" is a worthy aspiration and is likely to be fulfilled in considerable part, it will not be possible to pay the whole cost out of the taxes raised by any practicable rate, however high. The Treasury will need to borrow large amounts.

In preparing a drive to ask the people to buy more savings bonds, the Treasury encounters a difficulty. The people are showing less disposition to buy these bonds. Month after month last year the people bought fewer bonds than they cashed in. To put it another way, the Treasury was obliged, month by month, to pay out more money to redeem old bonds than it took in by selling new ones. This went on even during the months when the Treasury was conducting its especially vigorous and highly organized bond-selling drive last summer. In July the Treasury was obliged to pay out some $50,000,000 more to redeem old bonds than it took in by selling new ones. Going into the red to pay off old bonds while making a drive to sell new ones is, as a fiscal operation of the government, worse than merely futile.

Dollar Value Down

Conceivably the reason some people have been buying fewer savings bonds might be lack of money to pay for them. A more probable and generally accepted reason is that the people have been disappointed in their experience with the bonds. True, a person who in 1940 bought a ten-year bond got back from the government in 1950 the exact number of dollars promised on the date promised at the rate of interest promised. But in terms of goods, the bond buyer's experience was not so satisfactory.

When a bond buyer in 1940 put a dollar into a bond, he in terms of goods put in, for example, five dozen of eggs. When the government returned his dollar in 1950 it returned, in purchasing power, barely two dozen eggs. That experience has been common. In 1940 a dollar would buy three pounds of butter; in 1950, less than two pounds. Of bacon the fall of the dollar in purchasing power was from four pounds to less than two. And so on as to many items of food, clothing, building material, most of the things consumers buy.

It is little wonder if bond buyers felt disappointment. And it would be understandable if the disappointment took on some resentment when the bond buyer came to realize that the fall in the purchasing power of his saved dollars had been caused in large part by policies and practices of the same government that had sold him the bonds. He saw the prices of food made higher than they would otherwise be by government price support of farm crops, which included, in the case of potatoes, purchase of great quantities at artificial prices fixed by the government followed in 1947 by destruction of them, and in other years by sale at normal prices for uses other than food. He saw the government buy up great quantities of butter and of eggs and hold them off the market. He saw the government, by one device or another, cause the prices of nearly all foods to be higher than they would normally have been.

May Propose Incentive

Herein lies the real problem of the government and the true answer. Faced by falling off of purchases of savings bonds the Treasury is said to be considering a device, reported by Albert Clark in the "Wall Street Journal," a slight increase in rate of interest on existing bonds provided the holder does not cash them in but continues to hold them after the end of the ten-year term. But any increase of interest would be slight compared with the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar if this goes on at a pace like that in the past. The real answer is to stop the fall in the purchasing power of the dollar—to enable the bond buyer to feel assured that his saved dollars, when he gets them back in old age or upon retirement, will buy him as much food or other goods as they did when he saved them.

In the bond buying drive expected to be launched by the Treasury, it will of course make the usual promises it makes and keeps about the amount to be paid back, the date of payment, rate of interest and the like. It could check the present falling off in purchases of savings bonds by an additional promise—to the effect that the government will follow no policy or practice likely to cause the purchasing power of the dollar to go lower.

The purchase of savings bonds by the people is a valuable contribution to the operation of government, the savings bond buyer is a buttress of government finance. Of all the groups that compose our society, the saviegs bond buyer has an especially strong claim to consideration by the government, a claim based on simple justice to the bond buyer and on the interest of the government in having a sound fiscal system.

Afghan-Pakistan Bitterness Over Border State Growing

NEW DELHI—(AP) — Afghanistan and Pakistan are under increasing pressure to settle an argument over a would-be nation which exists now only in some people's minds.

The "nation" is Pakhtoonistan. If it came into being, it would reduce Western Pakistan to about half its present size. Afghanistan is all for it. Paksitan is understandably indignant. India is an interested spectator.

Pakhtoonistan, as proponents see it, would be an independent homeland for tough, trigger-happy Pathan tribesmen. It would stretch from Chitral state, in northwest frontier province, through Baluchistan to the Arabian Sea. It would have an area of 60,000 square miles inhabited by some 7,000,000 tribesmen and a number of other people. All of it would be south of what Pakistan considers its border with Afghanistan.

Afghanistan, supporting the Pathans, and Pakistan, bent on keeping its present frontier intact, have been arguing about Pakhtoonistan since the partition of this subcontinent in 1947.

The British suggested a conference on the question in 1949. The United Nations made a similar recommendation. The Shah of Iran offered to mediate. Now the United States, interested in keeping Asia as peaceful as possible, has urged "non-officially" that a quick solution be sought.

Pakistan says it's all in favor of a conference. So does Afghanistan. The trouble is, they want to talk about different things. Pakistan insists it won't talk about changing its borders. Afghanistan replies that's just what it wants to discuss.

The border in question is the Durand Line, drawn by the British in 1893. Afghanistan claims as its northern border and points out it has been recognized by Afghanis.

"With this history, Pakistan can never agree to discuss any claim of Afghanistan on our territory," said Ismail Chundrigar, governor of the northwest frontier province, in Karachi recently.

"The Durand Line," Najib-Ullah Khan, Afghan ambassador to India, told a press conference here, "was based on a treaty signed with Great Britain. With the withdrawal of British power from the Indian subcontinent, the Durand Line no longer has any legal existence."

Pro-Pakhtoonistan forces have other arguments. They say the area was practically independent when the British ruled India and that Modammed Ali Jinnah, founder of Pakistan, promised Pakistan would not interfere with the freedom of the northwest frontier province. They claim Pakistoonistan has the factors essential for an independent state: Common race, language, and culture.

The Pakistanis reply that the tribesmen were quite willing to become part of Pakistan, which, like Afghanistan, is a Moslem state. They point to the hospitals, schools and roads that are being built in the tribal areas and to irrigation projects getting underway. The Pakistanis consider the Pakhtoonistan movement the work of a few troublemakers with no real backing from the tribesmen. Many of these "troublemakers" are in Pakistani jails.

Reds Reportedly Boast Of Ability To Sabotage Defense Mobilization

NEW YORK — (AP) — Newsweek magazine says the Communist Party, at its recent national convention, boasted of its ability and readiness to sabotage defense mobilization.

The magazine says carefully screened delegates were told the party has the "machinery and forces to initiate and lead" such sabotage.

Newsweek does not give the source of its information, which is to appear in its Jan. 8 issue.

The convention last week was closed to press and public. The only official news from it came in handouts from party headquarters at the end of each day's session.

Party leaders, Newsweek says, called for "carefully executed slowdowns . . . in opposition to the planned speedup of workers, particularly those in war industries."

Adds Newsweek:

"To carry out the sabotage of the defense program, the party boasted that it had 22,000 dues-paying members (45 per cent of the entire membership of 48,000) in basic industries."

The magazine quotes the party itself as saying its members in basic industry were "schooled in our party's theory and tactics" and prepared for "a revival of militant trade unionism" through the 11 Communist-dominated unions recently ousted from the CIO.

Despite Communist pleas of poverty, Newsweek quotes party leaders as boasting of "a reserve fund of several million dollars to carry on our work no matter what course events take."

The magazine says a convention resolution called for intensification of the "crusade for peace," recognition of Communist China, admittance of Red China to the United Nations and outlawing of the atom bomb.

The party, Newsweek adds, also took credit for the "get our boys out of Korea" movement.

Radio, Bath Tub Used In Suicide

NEWPORT, N. H., Jan. 9 (AP)—A suicide by electrocution, in which a radio set and a bath tub filled with water were employed, was reported by a medical referee.

Dr. John Monroe said Mrs. Grover Cullingham, 53, wrote a suicide note Saturday, then plugged in a radio and stepped into the tub.

The water, he explained, acted as an "excellent conductor and the current went through her body and caused her death."

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

In the case of the girls, they're most likely to wear sweaters and skirts, saddle shoes and as many articles of plaid as they can afford. Blue jeans, levis and sloppy dressing are passe.

In the case of boys, they're sticking to white buckskin shoes, preferably dirty, gray flannels or blue jeans and corduroy jackets.

There are, however, a few college fads being launched around the country, as witness:

Lehigh has adopted, almost as a uniform, blue jeans, sweat shirts and corduroy jackets of maroon or bright green.

Radcliffe girls are pretty dressy above the hemline, but wear thick white socks and sneakers or loafers below.

At Stephens College in Missouri—and at the University of Kentucky—almost every student packs a ukelele. University of Southern California girls affect small scarfs knotted tightly around the throat.

Hood College, Maryland, girls are wearing long flannel nightshirts. The co-eds at the University of Kentucky like short hair with no curls worn with long pendant earrings. The Kentucky men are wearing black colonel-type string ties with their (dirty) white buckskins.

Princeton lads as well as those at the University of California are found mostly in khaki pants or blue jeans.

But for student fads and fancies, Tuskegee Institute in Alabama takes any prizes. Here is a sampling:

Women students go in for colorful ties worn with blouses with French cuffs and man-style collars, stockings with designs on heels and ankles, carry bright-colored umbrellas. The men have discovered berets, plaid linen caps, levis worn with flashy key chains, pastel colored dress shirts—and they carry large- old-fashioned black umbrellas.

Do you walk as beautifully as a Powers Girl? Today's quiz will help you find any flaws in the steps you take!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

DO YOU WALK in "beauty like the night" and like the Powers Girls? If you've been practicing the walking instructions given in this column from time to time, you should be able to do so. And if you take the following quiz, you'll know just how well you are doing.

Place "T" for true or "F" for false after each statement.

True Or False?

1. Your posture is not an important factor in walking. 2. Your body weight must roll from the center of the heel through the middle of the foot to the ball with every step. 3. It is physically impossible to tilt the pelvis if the knees are flexed (bent).

4. To walk like a model, you must walk an imaginary straight line. 5. Relaxed muscular action contributes to a shoddy walk. 6. You maintain the same posture when ascending the stairs as when walking on a level surface. 7. You should go up and down stairs on tiptoe.

Now, check the beauty of your walk!

1. False: Posture is the most important element in a beautiful walk. Remember: Pull your head out of your neck, your neck out of your shoulders, your waist out of your hips and tilt your pelvis so that your hips are tucked under! 2. True. 3. False. It is physically impossible to tilt your pelvis if your knees are tensed (right).

The Model Way

4. False: (I'll bet I caught you on that one!) Models do not walk on one imaginary straight line—at least, not the good models. Walk on two close, parallel lines. 5. False: Keep your shoulders, arms and knees relaxed if you want smooth flowing motion. 6. True: Hold the body erect and the chin parallel to the floor.

7. False: Not unless you are trying to reduce the calves of your legs! In any other case, put your foot flat on the tread with your weight well forward on the ball of your foot. Let the levers in your knees elevate you evenly from one step to another.

How did you do? If you are having any problems in attaining a beautiful walk, drop me a card in care of this newspaper and I'll make them the subject of a future column.

you should get the Nobel Prize for fallacies and they might even make you Secretary of the Treasury, which is what they did to Henry Morgenthau.

By the way, what became of Henry the Morgue? I have not heard his name mentioned for a long time. It is his chief assistant, Harry Dexter White, whom we read about. White's fame is eternal, having been preserved in one of Whittaker Chambers's pumpkins.

Straight-Line Silhouette Is In Cards For Spring

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

NEW YORK. —(AP)— The string bean silhouette, softened by tendrils of drapery, scarfs or fanciful collars, is in the cards for spring.

This fact was made clear to some 150 visiting fashion editors attending the opening day of New York's hectic week of spring style previews.

The editors, representing newspapers throughout the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, learned, moreover, that it will cost more to be well-dressed this year, and that wise women will buy conservatively wth an eye to making their clothes last for the duration of the national emergency.

Setting the theme of well-bred understatement was the collection of Herbert Sondheim, opening the round of showings with a group of timeless styles in handsome fabrics. They are notable for simplicity of cut—the kind of clothes, spectators agreed, that will not go out of fashion in the near future.

Sondheim applies the scarf-drapery treatment effectively on simple sheath dresses, to break the severe straight line. Detachable over-skirts and contrasting fabrics and colors accomplish the same effect.

Capri, also among the early starters, adds interest to the straight-line silhouette by the addition of starched white cape collars to slim, dark tailored dresses. Stoles, scarfs and removable matching capes also are employed.

From the early showings emerged the general outlines of the mode for spring, slim and tailored for daytime, bouffant and bare-topped after dark, with skirt lengths slightly shorter than last fall.

WASHINGTON.—EUPHEMIA Virden, daughter of former Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Virden, is now secretly married to that Daily Worker reporter she has been romancing . . . When the story broke in this column in 1948 that young Miss Virden, the daughter of a high-up Commerce Department official, was working for the Soviet News Agency Tass, her father resigned from his government job . . . Heartbroken over his daughter's unsavory connections, his last hope must have withered when he heard that she had married the Daily Worker reporter . . . The fellow has a grown-up son, had been married about 18 years, and got a divorce to marry Euphemia Virden.

Speaking of hWite House Aides, the youngest White House Aide of all times, six-year-old Richard Feeney, has been another Holiday casualty . . . Had a bad cold and couldn't tend to his duties at the Executive Mansion . . . The squeezable little aide, son of Commander and Mrs. Joseph Feeney of Chevy Chase, Md., has his own official title . . . Just about as official as you can get, too! . . . Harry Truman, President of the United States himself, conferred the title on Master Richard.

"Rickey," that's his nickname, was playing on the White House grounds one afternoon, waiting for his father who is a real, honest-to-goodness, grown-up aide . . . The President strolled by on his way to Blair House . . . Rickey had already made his acquaintance, so with the unperturbed assurance of most children he struck up a conversation . . . Asked the President why the squirrels on the White House lawn were so thin, while the ones in Lafayette Park, directly across the street, were so fat.

Apparently the White House guards do not allow strangers, passers-by or ordinary visitors to feed the squirrels.

Some months ago, the little boy who's in the first grade at the Blessed Sacrament Church, was attending services in his home town with his mother . . . He slipped away quietly to offer his total wealth (35) cents to the parish priest with the request, "Will you say a mass for the President?"

"Of the United States!"

"Do you know the President?"

"Of course, don't you?" said Ricky.

The priest had to admit he didn't, but agreed to say the mass. . . And Rickey Feeney still prays for the President every night.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth living up to her ward in the Austine Poll as frankest woman in Washington . . . Alice never pulls her punches and she let Justice Felix Frankfurter have it square on the snozz!

The Justice, who last year appeared as a character witness for Alger Hiss, was especially brilliant during a dinner an evening or so ago . . . When he began slicing up Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Alice jumped in to do battle . . . Most of the ringsiders conceded the bout to Alice when she rose and said "Good night, Mr. Justice. No matter what you say I will not turn my back on General MacArthur!"

At the newspaper women's party for new women in Congress a couple of beagle-eyed gals at one table were sniffling over a hot lead:

What has happened to the 19 or 20 Communist Party cards of witnesses who were subpoened in the Hollywood hearings of a few years ago? . . . Has the House Committee on Un-American Activities still got them? . . . Or have they been lost? . . . Strayed? . . . Stolen?

Medal Of Honor Given Relatives Of Five Heroes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Into the hands of the relatives of five infantry soldiers missing or dead on Korean battlefields President Truman placed today the Medal of Honor, telling them this is "the greatest honor that can come to any man."

And, in kindly tone, he told these wives or widows or parents "I know you'd rather have your boy back."

These are the men who didn't come back:

Sgt. First Class Charles W. Turner of Boston, killed as he stood on the bullet-swept top of a tank, firing at the enemy and calling directions for the tank's 75 millimeter gun.

First Lt. Frederick F. Henry of Clinton, Okla., who stayed alone in a foxhole to fight off the Communists so his platoon could withdraw to safety. He wasn't seen again.

Maj. Gen. William F. Dean of Berkeley, Calif., who commanded the 24th Division until he stayed behind while his division withdrew. He fought enemy tanks, directed the withdrawal, helped carry wounded, then went out to find more wounded GIs. He has been missing since that July day at Taejon.

Pfc. Melvin L. Brown, the 21-year-old lad from Mahaffey, Pa., who held off the Communists when they attacked his outfit, enabling his unit to get into position and finally drive off the Reds. That was near the "walled city" of Kasan. Brown fired all his ammunition. Then he threw all his grenades. Although wounded seriously, he hauled his entrenching shovel from his pack and beat off the Red soldiers as they sought to climb onto the wall where he stood. He is missing.

Master Sgt. Travis E. Watkins, Gladewater, Tex., was with a unit surrounded by the enemy for four days. He took leadership, made sallies from the protective foxholes to snatch weapons and ammunition from the enemy dead, killed at least 11 Communist soldiers himself and then, wounded and dying, ordered the men to leave him and start back for the main lines.

PRESIDENTIAL GREETING—President Truman shakes hands with Sgt. Christopher Henry, wounded brother of a hero missing in Korea, at a ceremony in Washington yesterday. Standing beside Sgt. Henry's stretcher is Miss Betty Southam, sister of his brother's wife. Seated in background are relatives who received Medals of Honor for soldiers killed or missing in Korea. Left to right are Mrs. William F. Dean, wife of the missing major general; Mrs. Frederick F. Henry, wife of missing first lieutenant; Mrs. Travis E. Watkins, widow of Master sergeant killed in action; Mrs. Hazel O. Turner, mother of Sgt. First Class Charles W. Turner, killed in action, and Edward D. Brown, father of Pfc. Melvin L. Brown, missing in action.

U. N. artillery and Allied warplanes supported the counterattack.

Censorship forbade mention of the units involved in the fight north of Chechon but it is possible to say that the first French blood shed in Korea was lost in the fight for Wonju.

A French battalion along with a Dutch unit is attached to an American division in Korea.

The French troops got into the fight north of Wonju. Later they were surrounded and had to fight their way out of the trap. One officer was killed and several enlisted men were wounded.

Low hanging clouds, which spilled snow and rain over most of the peninsula during the day, hampered air attacks. Some instrument-guided aircraft found military targets and worked them over.

B-29s dumped more than 100 tons of bombs on the northern Red capital of Pyongyang for the second consecutive day. The Superforts used their radar-eyes to locate objectives.

Etna Eruption Renewed

The volcanologist's office reported new activity from a cone 7,346 feet above sea level. Large clouds of volanic ash and small stones were blown high into the sky.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said today 1950 was the nation's second worst polio year with 33,344 persons afflicted. The worst year was 1949 with 42,375 cases.

Allies And German Generals Open Talks

BONN, Germany, Jan. 9 (AP)—Allied and German generals opened secret talks here today over adding West German troops to the Atlantic pact command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, whose expeditionary armies finally crushed Hitler's Wehrmacht against the Soviet anvil less than six years ago.

A dozen military and civilian experts joined at the luxurious Petersberg hotel overlooking the Rhine in a three-hour conference whose object, a communique said, was "to explore the part which Germany might assume for the maintenance of peace and in the common defense of Europe." That means defense against Russia.

An Allied delegate said the meeting, to be followed by another next Tuesday, was "useful and friendly."

Italy Gets Go Sign

ROME, Jan. 9 (AP)—The United States has given Italy the go sign on a $416,000,000 program of employment and factory expansion to turn Italy's industries into an arsenal for the Atlantic pact powers, reliable sources said tonight.

GOP Senators Unable To Agree

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Senate Republican policy makers were unable to agree today on a proposed new system for assigning members to committees.

Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) said the GOP policy would meet again tomorrow (4 p. m. EST) to consider a plan by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) intended to assure every Republican senator of a place on at least one major committee.

The group met for an hour and a half today behind closed doors without reaching a decision.

Sen. Millikin (R-Colo.), chairman of the conference of all 47 GOP senators serving at this session, said he doubted that the McCarthy proposal would accomplish its purpose even if approved.

The final decision will rest with the full conference which is to meet Thursday but the Policy Committee was asked to advise the GOP conference before it acts.

East Shivers; Mercury Climbs In Midwest

[By The Associated Press]

The cold-plagued Midwest got a taste of clear, springlike weather Tuesday while the East shivered in the tail end of a cold snap.

The mercury pushed well above the freezing mark in the central part of the country. Even higher temperatures were forecast for Wednesday.

At noon Tuesday, St. Louis had a reading of 50 degrees, Tulsa, Okla., 51; Kansas City, 46, and Jacksonville, Fla., 49. Chicago had a 40 degree temperature at 2 p. m.

Albany, N. Y., had an overnight low reading of eight degrees below zero and Burlington, Vt., -4. The cold extended deep into the southeast with Jacksonville, Fla., reporting a low of 26, New Orleans 24 and Miami 36. San Antonio, Tex., had a low of 28.

Royal Trip Planned

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP)—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will visit Gibraltar, Malta, Aden and Ceylon on their way to Australia and New Zealand early next year, Buckingham Palace said tonight.

Gen. Eisenhower Flies To Brussels

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 9 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower came to this old European battleground today with a demand for strong troops and a promise that, with them, western civilization can be preserved without fighting.

Brussels was the General's second major stop on a tour that began Sunday in Paris and will ultimately take him to all the countries banded together in the North Atlantic alliance against aggressive Communism.

About 4,000 French Communists demonstrated against Gen. Eisenhower in Paris after he had left his Hotel Astoria headquarters there, but failed in their advertised plans to tie up the city with a strike. Italian Communists stepped up their anti-Eisenhower campaign by threatening strikes when he visits Rome. Belgium's Communist press denounced his mission without calling for demonstrations.

In Brussels, as in Paris, Gen. Eisenhower was welcomed by government officials and by American military and diplomatic personnel.

His flight from Paris was of itself a demonstration of the special problem that Europe presents. In less time than it takes to fly from New York to Washington, he flew across the bitterest battlefields of two world wars.

The press has warmly welcomed him, and welcomed as well President Truman's statement that defense of Europe was a necessary part of the defense of America.

Row Between Sen. McCarthy And Pearson Flares Anew

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) challenged the Army today to tell whether Columnist Drew Pearson is being allowed access to secret military messages at the Pentagon—and if so, why.

The Army said it is investigating.

This latest flareup in the continuing row between the Senator and columnist grew out of a Pearson column Dec. 30, which purported to show that the Chinese Communist army fighting in Korea is a good deal smaller than had been reported. Pearson attempted to prove this by printing what he said were cables from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters.

In a letter today to Secretary of the Army Pace, McCarthy declared: "If someone is actually stealing secret decoded messages from the Pentagon and handing them to Pearson the lives of many of our young men and the security of this nation are in grave danger."

McCarthy first criticized the Dec. 30 column in a Senate speech last Friday in which he said that if the cables as published are authentic, then someone in the Pentagon decoding room "is guilty of high treason."

Pearson retorted that before using the messages, "I consulted the Pentagon which assured me there would be no security risk provided the dates of the cables were changed and a few words omitted. This was done."

Decree Hits Hungary's Industrial Workers

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 9 (AP)—Industrial workers will not get wages for rejected manufactured goods in the future, the government ordered today.

If the worker spoils material "because of being careless or inattentive" compensation must be deducted from his wages, the decree ordered.

The regulation was issued to assure "raising or productivity, reducing of cost of production and further consolidating of working discipline," the decree said.

Bread Now 20 Cents

BALTIMORE, Jan. 9 (AP)—The price of a standard loaf of bread here has gone up a penny, to 20 cents.

Fairchild Strike Move Is Awaited

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 9 (AP)—Neither side had a thing to say today as the strike of 4,700 production workers at Fairchild aviation division rounded out its second day.

Management and union sources, declining to be quoted directly, indicated they are buckling down to wait each other out and that it might be a long time.

The next move is expected to come from the Air Force or the Federal Conciliation Service in Washington.

The production workers, members of the CIO-United Auto Workers and about 90 per cent of the force at Fairchild's four plants here, went on strike yesterday morning after their contract expired.

The company had offered a flat increase of 12 cents an hour, bringing the minimum wage for a classified production work to $1.27.

Kimble To Back Bill To Change School Board

Senator Named To Nominations Group

Senator Robert B. Kimble is preparing a bill to introduce in the General Assembly providing a new system for naming members of the Allegany County Board of Education.

Senator Kimble gained no ground with the measure when he introduced it during the 1949 and 1950 sessions. The bill calls for a five-member board to include three from the county majority party and two women.

The measure, which did not survive the session, was introduced in 1949 when Governor Lane replaced the only Republican on the board with a Democrat. Allegany county is proponderantly Republican.

A resolution, asking investigation of the problem of all county school boards, was sent to the Legislative Council, but this was referred to a committee which held one brief meeting and made no decisions.

Senator Kimble yesterday was named a member of the Committee on Executive Nominations.

SB41—by McLaughlin—To provide that opening and closing hours of places which sell alcholic beverages in Washington County may be according to Daylight Savings Time when the county is on daylight time. At present, they must abide by Standard time throughout the year. (McLaughlin, Hoff, Sybert)

Resolutions adopted — HR1 — by McNulty—Requesting the Maryland Director of Civilian Defense to report to the House what has been done by the civil defense agency and what plans it has to protect the public peace, health, safety and property of the people of the state.

John A. Harden Enlist In Air Force

John A. Harden, 20, of 301 Grand Avenue, this city, enlisted in the U. S. Army Air Corps yesterday. He will be sent to Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, for basic training. Harden attended the University of Maryland for two and one-half years.

Welba Casteel indicated he would plead guilty to two charges of passing bad checks after Judge Harris indicated he was not arraignable on the indictments. David M. Steele, county parole and probation officer, was ordered by the court to investigate further into the case.

Arch Taylor, 61, of 106 North Mechanic Street, pleaded guilty to larceny, the third of four counts on the indictment against him. He is charged with breaking into the home of Fort Cumberland Lodge No. 176, IBPOEW, taking $35 from a cash box. The state dropped the other three counts. Jack Robb is attorney for the defendant.

Judge Harris indicated he would pass sentence Saturday on the three who pleaded guilty.

Bakery Dispute Is Unsettled

A dispute affecting a local bakery and its Uniontown, Pa., outlet has entered its fourth day with little to report on a possible understanding.

Teamsters Union, Local 453, here has been picketing Ort Brothers Bakery since Saturday. The local is seeking to obtain a contract for the driver-salesmen employed there.

Last night, at a meeting of the firm's driver-salesmen in the bakery, a local attorney officiated as a neutral election official in conducting a vote on the driver-salesmen organization.

The attorney reported to company officials that the results were unanimous, 22 to 0, in opposing organization there by the Teamsters Union.

C. E. Stutzman, business agent, in commenting on the balloting said his union will not recognize the vote.

An Ort official said the driver-salesmen had asked a representative of the company and union be present at the balloting last night.

An official of the bakery appeared, the attorney reported, but left when the union representative was not present.

Stutzman said: "We could not meet in the bakery as we cannot cross a picket line. I am willing to meet with the drivers and company in the Teamsters office here anytime."

To Be Or Not To Be, That Is The Question Among Senators

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 9 (AP) — Modest senators debated proper inaugural dress today and, for once, the Democratic majority offered to yield to the Republican minority.

Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) opened the sartorial clinic. He asked Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) for advice on tomorrow's inauguration of Republican Theodore R. McKeldin as governor.

Accepted fashion calls for leaders of both houses to be fitted out in cutaway, striped trousers and silk hats.

The discussion went like this:

Kimble: "I hear we are supposed to wear grey spats and wish to inquire whether the Senator from Calvert intends to do so and whether we shall be required to carry a cane."

Goldstein: "I suppose we should convene at 11 o'clock and get all that adjusted, namely, high hat, stiff collar and what-have-you. I think I'll just keep these same old clothes I have on (a neat blue suit in which he was married two years ago). I doubt if they've got a pair of spats in Baltimore to fit my pedal extremities.

Kimble: "We usually do what you of the majority compel us to do, so we'll dress accordingly."

Goldstein: "It seems to me we are compelled to wear what the minority wears in this case. The very nice General (William C. Purnell, chairman of the Republican governor's inauguration committee) was here last night to tell us all about it. It's best to follow what a general says, especially for the buck private."

He still balked at grey spats.

House Minority Leader Boone (D-Baltimore County) said later he'd dress as Goldstein dresses.

Board Authorizes More Welfare Aid For County

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday authorized Mrs. Elinor M. Westerfeld, director of the Allegany County Welfare Board, to place into effect on February 1, the more liberal welfare payments as set up by the State Department of Public Assistance.

Commissioner James Orr made a motion to authorize the new standards and Commissioner William H. Lemmert seconded the motion. Commissioner James Holmes was not present yesterday as he is ill

The cost of the new program for the county is expected to be $12,000. The county will receive an additional $48,000 from the state and federal governments, so that actually there will be $60,000 more available for the six months starting February 1 for payments to the aged, blind, dependent children and others eligible under the welfare program.

Mrs. Westerfeld pointed out that many persons who are employables have inquired if they would be eligible. She said these persons would not come under the program.

Mrs. Westerfeld said the new system would give increases for subsistence needs. At present one person receives $29.50 per month but under the new program the grant would be raised to $32. A person living with another would get a grant of $28 instead of the present $26.75. A person living with two other persons now receives $22.50 but would get $24 under the new plan. A person living with three or more persons now gets $21 and would obtain $22 under the plan.

Mrs. Westerfeld explained that a welfare recipient living with others who have income does not receive as much as a person living by themselves.

Two persons living alone now receive $52.50 and would get $56. Two persons living with one other person would get $48 instead of the current $45. Two persons living with two other non-welfare persons now obtain $42 but would get $44 under the plan.

Other changes would be made in the various categories.

A new category has been added. Aid to persons totally and permanently disabled will be made after a doctor fills out a form citing the case. The forms will be submitted to the State Department of Health for study and certification.

The January 29 contingent will leave Queen City Station at 5:55 a. m., and return to Cumberland the same day, Fahey reported. No meals will be furnished.

Records show 96 countians, excluding the area covered by the Mountain City board, have been drafted into the armed forces since the outbreak of the Korean war last June.

Fahey also observed that doctors, dentists and veterinarians under 50 years of age, and not now registered, will be required to sign for the draft January 15 at Selective Service headquarters in the Union Street County Building.

According to Fahey, between 40 and 50 medical men will be required to register from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday.

Eiler is now president and general manager of Eiler Chevrolet Company and has been engaged in the motor business since 1921. He is a member of the American Legion and Forty and Eight Society and is a past president of the Kiwanis Club, vice president and member of board of directors of Chamber of Commerce, member of executive board of Cumberland Industrial Development Corporation, headed the 1950 Community Chest fund raising drive, and is a director of the YMCA.

Liebau is a native of Somerset County, Pa., and has been connected with Queen City Dairy since 1921. He taught school for five years and at one time was with Kenneweg Company. He also operated his own dairy farm at one time. He is a member of the Rotary Club.

Those renamed were Isaac Hirsch, who is acting president; Walter C. Capper, now vice president and attorney; A. R. Buchanan, Douglas R. Bowie, Clarence Litzenburg, Somerville Nicholson and Henry Shriver.

Virgil Fox, Organist, To Be In Cumberland January 17

Virgil Fox, organist, since 1946 at Riverside Church, New York, will appear January 17 at Centre Street Methodist Church under auspices of the Cumberland Choral Society. A crowded auditorium was so enthralled by the great organist's performance here last year that requests have been pouring in for a return engagement.

The great Skinner organ of one hundred and one stops in the classic Greek chapel, holding 3000, of Girard College, Philadelphia, was the scene of Virgil Fox's first recording session for Victor Red Seal records. In the hush of this vast, columned temple, Virgil Fox captured the serene and soaring melodies of Johann Sebastion Bach's "Come Sweet Death" and "Arioso," that have become legend in his concerts from Coast to Coast.

Works of other periods followed, and immediately after World War II he recorded an entire album comprising many of the works on his present nationwide tour. This album was done on an organ of two hundred stops at the amazing medieval castle of John Hays Hammond, Jr., which stands on the north shore of Boston, at a place where the land points out to the sea to the rock called "Norman's Woe" immortalized in the "Wreck of the Hesperus." Here in a setting of treasures of an ancient world set in halls of stone and gothic arches, Virgil Fox captured masterpieces of Mozart, Mendelssohn, Bach, Dupre, and an American piece "Dreams" by Hugh McAmis.

Many of these will be included on the Cumberland program which is open to the public free. A collection will be taken.

Fort Hill Cagers Win Sixth Straight Over LaSalle, 37-32

Explorers Held To One Goal By Sentinels' 1st Platoon

Fort Hill High School moved up front in the city championship basketball race last night by defeating LaSalle High School's Explorers, previous conquerors of Allegany High School, before a near capacity crowd at SS. Peter and Paul gym. The score was 37-32.

A garrison finish on the part of Coach Art Slocum's outfit in the final minutes of play made it close score but it was Fort Hill all the way and the Hilltoppers were never in danger at anytime during the 32-minute tilt.

Two Platoon Pays Off

Major John J. Cavanaugh, coach of the Sentinels, used his two platoon system and it paid off as the Scarlet and White held the upper hand from opening to closing whistle.

Fort Hill's No. 1 team saw action in the first and third periods and it completely outclassed the Explorers and outpointed the North Centre Street School team, 22 points to 7. LaSalle outscored Fort Hill's No. 2 combination 25 to 15 but nine of those markers came in the last three minutes of play after Fort Hill had amassed a 13-point lead at 36-23. In fact, the Sentinels held a 13-point advantage at three different stages of the game—in the third quarter at 28-15 and in the final period at 32-19 and 36-23.

Connolly Starts Rally

With about three minutes left to play Doug Connolly started LaSalle's last ditch rally with a field goal. He added a foul. Then Moran and Marty Mullaney banged in shots to cut Fort Hill's advantage to six points at 36-30. Poling hooped a free throw for Fort Hill and Mullaney's double-decker was the last score of the game.

In the opening quarter LaSalle was limited to a single field goal and trailed at the whistle, 12-3. The Explorers did much better against the second platoon of Fort Hill in the second heat and were on the short end of an 18-11 score at intermission.

Blanked From Field

LaSalle failed to score a single field goal in the third period, was outpointed 10 to 4, and went into the final stanza trailing 28-15. One field goal in two periods was all the Blue and Gold could muster against Fort Hill's first team. The only time in the game that LaSalle showed anything at all was in the final period when the Explorers rolled up 17 points to the opposition's 9.

LaSalle made only 9 baskets in 54 shots while Fort Hill connected for 14 in 62 attempts. At the foul line LaSalle meshed 14 of 24 while the victors dunked 9 of 16. Thirty-four personal fouls were called—19 on Fort Hill and 15 on the losers.

Mullaney Tops Scorers

Beall High's Mountaineers edged Frostburg State Teachers College Jayvees at Beall by a 33-32 score and Bruce High of Westernport took the measure of Fort Ashby's Eagles at Fort Ashby, 51-35.

Ken Burt paced Central with 24 points on 12 goals as the Lonaconing quint downed the Elks after leading all the way. The quarter scores were 14-11, 23-18 and 39-31. Becker was high man for the losers with 18 tallies. Central's Jayvees topped the Elk Garden Jayvees 25-12 in the preliminary game.

Arnold Tichnell, Bob Kirk and Tim Clark tallied 46 points among them as Barton's Braves trounced Hyndman. Tichnell collected 18 points and Kirk and Clark each had 14 counters. B. May was high man for the losers. Barton's Jayvees tripped the Hyndman Jayvees 22-16 in the opening contest.

Bruce rallied in the second period after trailing 12-5 at the close of the initial quarter and easily whipped Fort Ashby as Marple, Reeves and Berry tallied 37 points for the winners. It was the fourth defeat in eight starts for the Eagles who have lost all their games at home. The Fort Ashby Junior High team defeated Bruce's Jayvees 34-32 in an extra period after the regulation game ended in a 29-29 deadlock.

Beall copped a close one as Thompson tallied a field goal and foul to break a 29-29 tie in the final period. A singleton by Workman added the clinching point. Winters' goal and a foul by Matese brought the Jayvees to within one point of the winners at the whistle. Enardo Arnone tallied 15 points for the winners while Barham had 12 for Frostburg. Starkey Joins Army
Flyers Hold 12-6 Edge
Want Four Officials

By C. V. BURNS

Skeets Starkey

The former Ridgeley High School athlete who was graduated from the amateur ranks in 1949 with a 30-13 record and has gone undefeated in 15 starts as a professional while under the managerial wing of Peter J. "Bunny" Buntag of Pittsburgh, enlisted in Pittsburgh and passed his physical examination last Friday. He was slated for induction yesterday.

"Skeets" is a 170-pounder now and should develop into a heavyweight while under the care of Uncle Sam.

Born at Fort Ashby, W. Va., Starkey is 21 years old and will mark his next birthday in July. His parents live at Wiley Ford.

The promising light-heavy fought his last pro match in McKeesport on December 15, stopping Billy Bradley of New Castle, Pa., in two rounds. He won 10 of his 15 pro bouts via the knockout route.

The Wiley Ford lad was among a group of youngsters that Bob "Sparky" Chisholm handled when the latter revived amateur boxing in Cumberland at the close of the Second World War.

Jack Klosterman, the Deetz Brothers ("Tiny" and Jimmie), Earl Smith, Glenn Campbell, Melvin Washington, Don Miller, Garford "Punchy" Albright and Starkey all threw leather for Chisholm and they are now under contract to Uncle Sam.

Albright was in the navy in the 2nd World War. Now he's in the army.

Robert "Doc" Dougherty who was helpful in training the local simon pures is also sporting an army uniform.

Bill Campbell, another former local leather pusher, met death in a jeep accident while in the service.

There's one thing we know for sure about this group of young men.

The Cumberland Spas' next opponent in All-American Pro League play will be Altoona and those who have followed the local league games of the past few years know that the Flyers always have been a thorn in the side of Cumberland teams.

Altoona will play host to Bill Keegan's club Saturday night. Then the teams come here for a Sunday night contest.

In the past three years Altoona and Cumberland have met 18 times and the Pennsylvanians have romped off with 12 victories.

Only once did the locals hold the Flyers even and that was in 1947-48 when each team won two games. In 1948-49 the Blair Countians won five of eight games and last year the Flyers beat the Dukes' championship aggregation five times in six starts.

Altoona has won four and lost six games here and has never dropped a decision to Cumberland on the Altoona court, winning eight consecutive contests there.

Veterans on the Altoona roster are Mike Bytzura, Don Asmonga, the minor league baseball pitcher, Walt Miller, Fred Paine and last but not least, Bobby Artman, player-coach, who is also tutor of the University of Pittsburgh freshman cagers.

The Spas will be playing at home for the first time in three weeks on Sunday. Their last engagement here was on December 24 with Johnstown.

We think it would be a nice thing for the fans to turn out and renew acquaintances with the league's long-time-no-see outfit.

• — • — •

Saturday night at Altoona, the Spas will play in the third game of a tripleheader.

They'll meet the Flyers at 9:30. At 6:30 Potomac State meets Altoona Undergraduate Center and at 8:00 the Johnstown Clippers oppose Beaver Falls' Tommies.

At a meeting of the West Virginia Football Officials' Association the other day in Clarksburg a motion to ask the state high school athletic association to recommend four officials for all Class "A" school games was carried. The state college athletic conferences will be asked to take the same action.

W. Gordon Eismon of Charles Town, who is well known in this section, was named a vice president of the association and John R. Shelton of Keyser and Daniel B. Staley of Westernport were elevated from associate to active members.

Patrick A. Tork, of Fairmont, was elected association president.

Dr. "Skip" Hughes' St. Francis College cagers of Loretto, Pa., who trimmed the Spas here in November, closed a successful road trip in New York State on Saturday night. The Frankies whipped St. Francis (Brooklyn) 74-71 and Iona 72-66 to make their record for the season six wins and one loss.

Fred L. (Joe) Doringer, head of the Fairmont Black Diamonds in the days Cumberland was in the Middle Atlantic League, will scout for the Pittsburgh Pirates again this year.

Bradley Braves, Columbia Face Rugged Tests

Top Quint Comes East, Lions Meet Princeton

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Bradley, with a brand new lease on college basketball's No. 1 ranking, and Columbia, newest member of the first ten, face rugged tests this week that may jepardize their standing.

St. John's is a speedy, sharp-shooting outfit that has won ten of its 12 games. Eleventh ranked nationally, the Redmen gave Kentucky a scare before losing, 43-37. Their other defeat was a one-point loss to Kansas.

Tigers Battle Lions

Columbia's surprising Lions, who have won 17 straight games over a two-year period, face unbeaten Princeton, 20th in the latest standings, in an Ivy League fray in Columbia's gym. Princeton has an 18-game streak going, carried over from last year.

Columbia broke into the Associated Press top ten at the No. 8 position today, thus causing the only disturbance in the standings. The Lions replaced Villanova, which tumbled to 16th after bowing to Fordham last Saturday, 52-44. Columbia walloped Cornell Saturday, 85-45.

All other nine teams in the first ten held their berths, with Bradley strengthening its bid for the regular season championship it won a year ago.

Speaky Melchiorre and Company poled 126 first place votes from the 252 sports writers and broadcasters who cast ballots in the weekly poll. They amassed a total of 2320 points on the basis of ten for a first place vote, nine for second, etc.

Aggies Hold Second

Oklahoma A. and M. held second with 20 first place votes and 1811 points. Hank Iba's "possession" specialists play Tulsa Thursday and Drake Saturday.

Then follow, in the standings, Kentucky, Long Island University, St. Louis, Indiana and North Carolina State, in that order. After Columbia come Kansas State at No. 9 and Wyoming at No. 10.

The fourth and fifth teams—undefeated Long Island and twice-beaten St. Louis—clashed tonight in the Garden.

Kentucky, beaten only by St. Louis in the Sugar Bowl semifinals, will play alabama Thursday and Notre Dame Saturday. LIU has a Thursday game with Ithaca and St. Louis has a date on the same evening with Detroit.

Here are the leading teams, with points given on the basis of 10 for first place, nine for second, etc. (first place votes and team records in parentheses, records do not include tonight's games):

Ogre Returns Box-Car Odds

Winner At Tropical Pays $62.60 In 7th

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP) — Irene Martin's Ogre, winner on opening day at 38 to 1, again paid off at box-car odds as he took the measure of nine other three-year-olds in the featured Chalet Mar Purse at Tropical Park today.

A chilled crowd of 9,272 saw this outsider subdue the leaders through the short stretch and blaze to a length and a half victory over Valley View Farm's Badger. Ridden by Tommy Lyons, Ogre paid $62.60, $17.70, and $10.20.

Third was D. J. Schneider's Elixier, while Roman Miss took fourth. Brookmeade Stable's Blue Helmet, the favorite; F. W. Hooper's Officious, winner of his debut here, and Greentree's Blinker Light, launching his winter campaign, all tired in the race, after trying to run down Badger, the pacemaker.

Betting on the event was $112,781, largest single race pool of the meeting. The time for the six furlongs was a fair 1.12 2-5.

Ted Atkinson, Greentree's first string rider, launched his 1951 saddle debut today, but missed with three mounts, including Blinker Light. He was warmly cheered by the fans.

Joe Culmone, after riding 14 consecutive losing mounts, came through with a winner on Grass Fire, $3.30 in the fifth. It was his first marker since scoring on Empty Sea in the ninth race last Thursday.

Bobby Permane, the comeback kid, accepted a mount today for the first time in two years, when he handled Feather Stitch, a longshot, in the third event. However Feather Stitch was outrun all the way, as Good Story, $10.50, proved best in the field of a dozen routers.

Permane skyrocketed to prominence at this park about five years ago when he rode five winners on three consecutive days. Bobby suffered serious injuries in a spill at Gulfstream Park two years ago. He launched his comeback last summer.

Layne To Meet Brion At Garden Feb. 9

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — Rex Layne, upset conqueror of Jersey Joe Walcott, and Cesar Brion of Argentina will meet in the ten round main event at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 9, it was announced today by Al Weill, matchmaker of the International Boxing Club.

Layne, of Lewiston, Utah, moved high into the heavyweight picture Nov. 24 when he gained a ten round decision over the veteran Walcott who was a 1 to 5 choice.

In his last start, Brion was outpointed by Joe Louis, the former heavyweight champion, in a Chicago ten rounder, Nov. 29.

Fishing Shanty

DESIGNED AND BUILT by Jack Schweigert, Roscommon, Mich., sportsman, a new, portable ice fishing shanty has nearly all the comforts of home. A neighbor, Howard Brighton, demonstrates the shanty, made of light plywood. It can be folded up into an 18x20x30-inch box with sled runners attached. Under the seat is a place for a gasoline lantern for heat. A fish box is built into the base. (International)

Brion, Gatica Are Unfrocked By Peron Order

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (INS)—Argentina recalled two ambassadors from the United States today in obvious displeasure over the way its boxers have been losing American bouts. The whole thing made sense, in a nutty sort of way, inasmuch as the ambassadors were the boxers.

A flat order from the Juan Peron government in Buenos Aires decreed that heavyweight Cesar Brion and lightweight Jose Gatica be dismissed from the foreign service.

This was the first public inkling that Brion and Gatica were in the foreign service to begin with, but a check of the Argentine consulate in New York disclosed that this indeed was the case.

Brion, Gatica and Gatica's manager, Nicholas Preziosa, who also was unfrocked by the Peron order, all were in the U. S. as "administrative employes" of the Argentine embassy.

The whole trouble was that the puglistic emissaries from the Pampas did not enjoy diplomatic immunity. Not enough, at any rate, to keep ambassador Brion from losing a decision to an embarrassingly-awful Joe Louis in Chicago a little over a month ago. Nor enough to keep the lithe Gatica from getting knocked colder than a smelt by Ike Williams in precisely one and a half minutes' time last Friday night in New York.

Navy And Hoyas Open Grid Series In 1952

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) —Navy has made another move toward reducing the strength of its future football schedules by agreeing to meet Georgetown in 1952.

The Hoyas, once an eastern power but relatively a weak sister in recent years, theoretically replace Rice or Northwestern, both of which will be dropped.

The first meeting in the new series between the Middies and Georgetown is set for Oct. 11, 1952 at Annapolis.

It is possible to install a television combination with a telephone so that the speakers can see each other.

Uncle Miltie Is Rated No. 1

Assigned 126 Pounds For Experimental

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — Uncle Miltie, a Pennsylvania-bred bay colt which ran in claiming races as a two-year-old last season then developed into one of the top juvenile stake horses, was given the No. 1 rating today for the Experimental Free Handicap of 1951.

The list of Experimental weights is prepared each January by Campbell who attempts to predict on the basis of the horses' juvenile form what they will do as three-year-olds in the classics such as the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Two Experimental free handicaps will be run at Jamaica in April, affording the first New York test of the weight assignments. The experimental No. 1 is over the six furlong route, and No. 2 is a mile and one sixteenth.

Ball May Remain As Skins' Coach

McMillin Is Latest Under Consideration

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP) — George Preston Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, said today A. N. (Bo) McMillan is being considered as a coach of the pro football Redskins.

But Marshall, a hard man to bring down in a conversational broken field, hastily added that:

1. Several coaches are under consideration along with McMillan, and

2. His coach still is Herman Ball, who headed the team last year, and there's a strong possibility that Ball will coach next year, too.

McMillin recently resigned as coach of the Detroit Lions. He has been in Manhattan, Kas., meeting with the Kansas State College Athletic Council.

Kansas State is looking for both an athletic director and a coach. McMillin coached there from 1928 to 1933.

Marshall said the man who will decide finally who is to succeed Ball is Ball himself.

When a reporter guffawed at this, Marshall said:

"Now there's nothing funny about this. Herman is a sort of an athletic director. If he can find a man who can improve the situation (The Redskins finished last), he'll hire him. If he can't, he may coach another year himself."

College Teams Clash Tonight

Ohioans Face Bobcats, Potomac At Shepherd

Coach Kenneth Babcock's Frostburg quint will play host to Steubenville (Ohio) College on the Mountain City court at 8 o'clock.

Frostburg Teachers have failed to win a game in six starts. Potomac State's record is 6-4.

A pair of teams that have failed to win a game this season will come together tonight when Paw Paw High plays the West Virginia Deaf School at Romney. The Mountaineers have lost six games while the Silents have dropped four.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (INS)—Joan Fontaine and Joseph Cotten can put on their traveling boots again. This team which made "September Affair" in Italy and Hollywood will be reunited in "Sound Of Years" to be made in France and Hollywood!

Joan Fontaine

Nice free trip on Hal Wallis comes up in the spring when Joan and Joe will be packed off to Paris for exteriors.

Story, from a novel by Merriam Modell, as a romantic drama about the havoc wrought between a married couple when the wife's 16-year-old daughter by a former marriage comes to live with them.

I've already had a sneak look at "September Affair" and the love scenes between Joan and Cotten are really something!

More poll stuff: I must say the Foreign Press Association of Hollywood is tossing a swank jaunt when they announce the winners of their "world's favorite movie star" poll on January 27. They are footing two days of celebrating free at the Tennis Club in Palm Springs.

Gloria Swanson is the winner of Murray Sices' poll of stylists for the outstanding little woman of the year—meaning five-feet-five and under. Runnersup were Perle Mesta, Helen Hayes and Edith Piaf.

Still another contest, conducted by Country Gentleman magazine, of our farmer exhibitors, puts Jimmy Stewart on top for the males (and they haven't yet seen "Harvey") and June Allyson for the girls.

Anna Magnani hasn't given up hope of being permitted to bring her little son, a polio victim, to America so that he can be treated by Sister Elizabeth Kenny.

If all doors are shut against the youngster, Magnani will come here, herself, I am told, to learn about the Kenny methods and, if possible, induce a specialist in this form of treatment to return to Italy with her.

Too bad she may make her first trip here on a wave of indignation against "The Miracle"—a deplorable film she made with Rossellini.

Buff Cobb, Jr., and her husband, Mike Wallace, have a radio show at the Chez Paree. They quiz incoming and outgoing celebs. Peggy was on their show.

The Duke of Windsor laughs at the very idea of doing a TV show with Wally. He says they will not do a "Mr. and Mrs." show, nor will he sell the rights to his life story to television. Well, he should know.

Betty Gene Towne, daughter of the Gene Townes, marries James Ekins in Beverly Hills Sunday. Reason for the hurried ceremony is that the groom has been called to the service.

While I've been in the East I heard that Katharine Cornell is going to make a picture later this year, but don't say I said so. Everytime I do, she telephones denying it to the high heavens.

Louis Bromfield's daughter, Ellen, married Carson Geld in the Little Church Around the Corner Saturday. Louis flew to New York for the wedding and while he's in the big town will do a Broadway musical.

From home I hear that Linda Darnell's appearance at the opening of "Halls Of Montezuma" on the arm of her estranged husband, Pev Marley, created a lot of excitement. When questioned Linda said they were merely talking about a settlement.

From Hollywood comes word that Doris Duke and Roger Valmy are as close as ham and eggs—and here I thought Roger was happily married. Or is this just one of those friendship things?

Eddie Lowe, who has never got Lady Thelma Furness out of his system, is now seeing her practically every day. Thelma has no more worries since her son, Tony Furness, came into a ten million dollar inheritance.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

WASHINGTON (INS)

ON THE EVE of the President's state of the disunity speech the capital of the free world lay shrouded in a blanket of actual and figurative fog.

My mother, a lifelong Democrat in a city whose million inhabitants are still not considered mature enough to be trusted with the vote, called up to bawl me out for something Westbrook Pegler had written about Mrs. Roosevelt. She seemed impatient with my evasive answer, a symptom of the distracted times.

Everybody appeared to know exactly what the President was going to say, which must have brought a snort of rage from the President himself—who was still rewriting the speech into shape at the Blair House. Gwen Cafritz had a few people in.

Sen. Clinton Anderson, whose reflexes may not be among the sharpest in the land, was talking about the President's letter-writing—which is now old hat in chit-chat circles. The Senator said in effect that taking pen in hand was the busy man's only way of letting off his steamy rage, and that it was better than the liquidation which dictators might resort to in similar pets.

We called Paul Hume, the music critic of the Washington Post, to ask him which he preferred, letter or rack, and a man on the desk said he had gone on to a concert. "Won't be back until all hours," the man on the desk said. Was it a controversial concert like, say, Margaret singing? No, the man said, nothing hot like that. Just the Israel Philharmonic's American debut, under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky.

The well-fed bon vivants of the town licked the wounds they had suffered the night before at what will be Washington's only full-blown public dinner during the period of the emergency—that of the Touchdown Club. And they prepared to plunge on later in the day to the capital's main Sunday event, the cocktail parties, populated by the same faces, same people, same small talk and large fears.

This pregnant day's small talk mainly concerned Sen. Taft's appearance on "Meet The Press," during the dismal afternoon. One excited man from NBC felt that it had been seen and heard by 25,000,000, but when we asked him what Taft had said he scratched his head and answered, "same thing as the other day—big air force, big navy, little army."

The Senator had declined, not always with thanks, repeated invitations to lay his hide upon this most exposed grill. He would appear, he told Larry Spivak, if he could choose his reportial prosecutors, and he did. First head to roll was that of May Craig, a head that features an old-fashioned topknot coiffure. The Maine newspaperwoman (a fine reporter) has a voice and a steel-trap mind that both bear a sharp likeness to the sound and attitude of every exasperated wife in history who has confronted a mate crawling back to the nest after a long evening at the Elks club.

• — • — •

A big conversational piece was the Senator's new smile. Just as Herbert Hoover's speeches have lightened up, so has the Senator's face. He is smiling in public for some of the first times in his sober-sided and industrious life, but he hasn't quite got the knack of it. It worried an admirer:

"He turned it on wrong," he said. "Bad timing on the new smile. He'd be saying something real serious, like we're all going down the drain if we don't watch out, and then he'd remember that he should smile more, and he'd smile. Couldn't get the smile in 'sink.'"

Sen. Kefauver had a quiet day, making up a list of questions to ask Frank Costello when the Senate Crime Commission gets its audience with him in the near future. Everybody in Washington seems to take for granted that Kefauver will be the next vice presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket, but Mr. Barkley doesn't appear to have heard the reports. Sen. Ferguson was still sore about the doubletalk Nehru had given him in New Delhi.

The capital seemed relieved that Gen. Eisenhower had arrived in Paris, and that beautiful Roz Courtright had arrived at the Statler for her singing engagement. Called Roz Courtright and learned she had two new Christian Diors. "You'll never understand what a new dress means to a girl when she's singing," she said. "You're not afraid if the dress is new."

Her arranger, Syd Bass, won't be with her this time. Mrs. Bass wrote a piece for "The Daily Worker." It marked the era of rearmament, the time of alertness in the nakedly exposed capital.

Called Maj. Don Gentile, the handsome, tremendously decorated ace of aces of World War II. He had been more or less grounded as a jet test pilot at Wright Field after the death of Maj. Dick Bong, by conservation authorities in the Air Force, and sent to school at the University of Maryland.

"Getting my B.S. this month," he said happily, above the indignant sound of a crying youngster in the growing Gentile family. "Going back to work in jets, at Selfridge Field. What's the difference between fighting in them and in the Spits, '47's and '51's I flew? Not much difference. Just wider turns."

It seemed to epitomize the day.

Try And Stop Me

Ethel Butterworth's neighbor was finding it more and more difficult to retain her sylph-like shape. Miss Butterworth suggested horseback riding. The neighbor's first response was, "As far as I'm concerned, horses are strictly for glue." Later she allowed herself to be convinced to the point where she bought a $250 saddle, and an imported English costume.

Assisted to the back of an old nag, the daring equestrienne mumbled, "Giddy-ap." The nag reluctly broke into a slow trot. The equestrinne screamed with terror, and fell off. Miss Butterworth, stiffling her laughter, cried, "Get back on the horse before he thinks you're afraid of him." But the neighbor had had enough. "I'm through," she declared. "What do I care what a horse thinks, anyhow?"

Clancy fell off a six-story-high scaffolding and lay unconscious on the ground as a hastily summoned ambulance clanged to the spot. A crispy efficient interne made a cursory examination and pronounced authoritatively, "This man is dead." Just then Clancy regained consciousness and indignantly protested, "Ye're a liar. Oi am not dead." A friend kicked him in the pants and murmured, "Be quiet, ye fool; sure and the doctor knows best."

One of the suburban branches of a big Chicago department store advertised a special sale of nylons and the aisles were jammed with jostling women ten minutes after the doors opened the next morning. At 9:11 the phone rang in the general manager's office, and a lady said, "I want ten pairs of those nylons, and you can send them C.O.D." "What's your name and address, madam?" asked the manager. "Never mind the name," the lady told him. "Just bring the package to the front of your store. You'll find me in the public phone booth there."

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

We Televise A Witch

TODAY is the day the British Broadcasting Corporation proposes to televise—or attempt to televise—a ghost, specifically the spectre of Catherine Howard, fifth wife of Henry VIII. She's the girl, you'll recall, who lost her head in 1542 for alleged misdeeds in the boudoir which were never sufficiently proved to my satisfaction.

John Crosby

I wish the BBC luck in this enterprise and I'm very sorry that I can't be there to watch the operations in Hampton Court Palace. I devoutly hope someone asks Miss Howard just what did go on back in 1542, whether the accusation was just or unjust. After all, a girl who has been dead for upward of 400 years has nothing to gain or lose one way or another and can be expected to tell the truth.

• — • — •

Over here, we have televised a lot of people who have resembled ghosts in more ways than one except that they lacked the finality and dignity of death. We have, however, televised a witch, specifically Miss Lilli Palmer who started her own program on CBS (6:45 p.m., EST Thursdays) last week. Ponds, the face cream, brings—as they say—this program to you and to me, which I believe, makes Miss Palmer the first sponsored witch in the history of sorcery.

Miss Palmer, as I suppose everyone knows, plays the role of witch in the play, "Bell, Book and Candle" with such enormous authority that the critics almost uniformly mourned the fact that, at the end of the play, she loses her witchhood and assumes womanhood.

The critics, if I understand them correctly, felt that this assumption of womanhood was a long step down in the social scale. It's a rather odd point of view for the critics to take and, I imagine, a rather difficult one to explain at home.

Still, after watching her initial performance, I'm inclined to agree with them. Miss Palmer is such a tempting morsel that if she isn't a witch she ought to be one. Hers is an exquisitely modelled face abounding in sharp corners at the tip of the nose, the edge of the lips, the edge of the eyes; a catlike, alert, vixenish face which instantly commands attention. In fact, everything Miss Palmer does commands attention. She endows with great, though mystifying, importance, her walk, her movements, her gestures.

As a matter of fact, a kinescope of her projected show which belted around town for a while before Miss Palmer settled on CBS opened with a shot of her back. She was painting. "I paint a little," she announced, her opening line. It takes great confidence in one's personal electricity to open a new TV show with a view of one's rear. Unhappily, this was abandoned for a more conventional approach, a shot of Miss Palmer singing "Auf Wiedersehn." "Hello, let me introduce myself. I'm Lilli Palmer. Here's my fireplace. My window. My room."

Over the fireplace was a picture of George Bernard Shaw and Miss Palmer fell to discussing her last meeting with G.B.S. when she obtained permission to play Cleopatra in his "Caesar and Cleopatra." From there she went on to quote Euripides whom she described as a local G. B. S. in Greece 2,000 years ago.

Right away, you get the idea that Miss Palmer is a woman whose center of intellectual gravity is of higher density than, say, Dorothy Kilgallen's. Both mentally and physically, I should say, Miss Palmer is going to be rough competition for the Faye Emersons in the television dodge.

• — • — •

Presently, Miss Palmer introduced her guest—Miss Pamela Brown who is accused but is innocent of witchcraft in the play, "The Lady's Not For Burning." I lost the thread of their conversation because I was much too interested watching the interplay of two expert actresses trying to focus the center of attention on themselves. That's about all there is to the program. Tomorrow night the guest will be the movie director Robert Siodmak, who was born in Memphis but became famous as a movie director in Germany. And next week, Miss Palmer may conceivably produce Catherine Howard, depending on how well things work out with the BBC today.

Oh! one other thing. Miss Palmer was born in Germany from which she fled to Paris when Hitler became a nuisance. Presently, Hitler and his legions overran Paris and she took to her heels again, this time to London. Immediately, the bombs started dropping there. Now she's in New York. Considering her prior record, it's my suspicion that it is very bad luck for any city to have possession of Miss Palmer. In her favor, I'll admit that she is the most beautiful bird of ill omen anywhere around.

Courtesy Meter Proves Successful

The courtesy parking meter installed two weeks ago inside Police Headquarters has proven successful, according to Lt. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the Traffic Bureau.

More than 67 motorists who received tickets for parking overtime beside street meters visited the police station within an hour of issuance, deposited a nickel each in the "good will" device and had the tags excused.

The project was originated by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long to curb "alibis and gripes".

Lilya pointed out the meter had a poor showing for several days after its installation December 27. However, the device has realized more than $3.35 since then.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Is good work often appreciated?

Answer: Oftener, at least, than the person who is looking for appreciation realizes. But again, that sort of person does not always do as good work as he thinks he does, because his bitterness at the "ingratitude" of those he works for tends to make him unconsciously sabotage his own efforts. How good your work is does not depend on how much effort you put into it, and you cannot judge its quality by your own standards alone. Do your best for the sheer joy of it, and there's better than an even chance you will win recognition.

Are phobias caused by childish frights?

Answer: Never fundamentally, though memories of a shock or fright may determine the form they take. For in a true phobia what the person consciously fears is always a substitute or symbol for what he really is afraid of. In Freud's early, classic case, the boy he called "Little Hans" had a neurotic fear of being bitten by a horse which proved under analysis to have replaced an earlier terror of his father. One advantage of the substitution is that it is easier to avoid snakes or mice than something that is part of your life.

Will "tests" show you your true self?

Answer: That depends on the degree to which your conscious mind is involved in them. To ask someone to tell how he feels or what he likes best may reveal nothing but his capacity for self-deception, since the average person's conscious personality consists largely of attitudes assumed to conceal his true feelings from himself and other people. (The "go-getter," for example, may be hiding his own wish to be dependent.) The best tests are the "projective" ones like "ink blots" in which you don't know what you reveal.

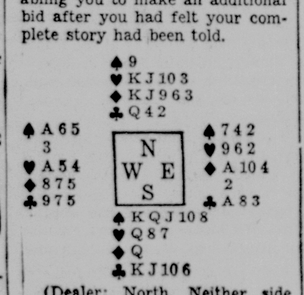
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

PROMOTION OF HONORS

ANY observant student of developments knows that an honor or honors in a particular suit will gain in real trick-taking value if other honors of the same suit are opposite, in the partner's hand. That is sometimes startlingly true of such cards as queens and jacks. Consequently every bid made by your partner of a suit in which you have one or more such honors may add to the value of your own holding in the suit, sometime enabling you to make an additional bid after you had felt your complete story had been told.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♥

South was sadly off key when he passed that. There was a whole flock of reasons why he should have bid 3-No Trumps. First, his fear about making full use of his partner's first-bid diamonds should have been eliminated when he heard the hearts, which could make good entries into a No Trump dummy. Second, his queens in both red suits added immensely to the value of North's holdings as you can see. Third, North's reverse bidding, with the higher hearts shown after the lower-ranking diamonds, betokened quite a hand for a man who had passed originally. To tell the truth, that bid advertised a better hand than North really had, though South didn't know this.

It happens that three-odd can be made easily in either the hearts or No Trumps, with the defenders scoring nothing but their four aces. But that is not the point. You bid games on the basis of what promises to happen, whether it actually does or not, since bridge is not a mere adding machine but a game full of delightful uncertainties.

South thought North should have bid 2-Hearts on his first turn over the 1-Spade, and that after the 2-Spades North should have called 3-Diamonds. That, said South, would have caused him to show preference with 3-Hearts. In that case, North probably would have raised to the unmakable 4-Hearts, though he might have tried 3-No Trumps. Who knows?

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

After West's 1-Club, North's 1-No Trump, South's 2-Spades, West's double and North's pass, what should East do?

Woman Phones Husband In Germany

A young mother, anxious to convey a person-to-person Happy New Year's greeting to her soldier-husband in Germany, paid $20 Monday for a trans-Atlantic telephone call.

The salutation went to Pvt. Arthur J. Hook, 27, stationed at Frankfort, from his wife, Mrs. Mary Monnet Hook, Route 1, Oldtown. They talked for five minutes.

Mrs. Hook explained she placed the call last Monday but had to wait for a "clear line."

It was 6:55 p. m. in Germany when the telephone rang at the home of Mrs. Hook's aunt, Mrs. Myrtle Lange, 311 Broadway, where she had been waiting. The Hooks three-month-old daughter, Mary Lou, was with her, but she did not "talk" to her father.

As for Mrs. Hook, she said conversing with her husband "was well worth the cost". A World War II veteran and member of the Army Reserve, Pvt. Hook was recalled to duty last October 9. He trained at Camp Campbell, Ky., and Fort Dix, N. J., before going overseas in December.

Applications For City Housing Are Made Here

Authority Completes Annual Report

Numerous applications for project occupancy have already been received by the Housing Authority of the City of Cumberland, even though construction has not started.

The report states:

"In order to be eligible, prospective tenants must be families of low income, living under unsanitary and unsafe housing conditions. This calls for a careful examination of all facts reported by the applicants and a comparison with the eligibility requirements in the case of each family.

"Because of changes in income, as well as changes in the size of families, such examinations must be made at frequent intervals.

"It is realized that with the growth or shrinkage of a family, income will most likely change. The Public Housing Administration has no intention of providing standard housing facilities for those who can afford to occupy commercially-rented homes. So if a family's income increases beyond the standards of low-rent tenants, that family is ineligible to remain in a project.

"It is felt by the authority, in light of the wage structures in principal manufacturing firms and establishments in Cumberland, that a top admission rent of $38 will accommodate families of lowest paid regularly employed male workers, who earn in the neighborhood of $1.15 per hour.

"Inasmuch as an average gross rent of $27.91 will be required to meet standards of feasible operation, it is apparent that the authority will be able to serve a substantial number of families who will pay rents less than $27.91 as well as those who can pay more than this amount. In this way, the broadest representative group of low-income families will be served and the intent of the housing act will be best served."

The report reviews the work of the past year and notes there are upwards of 2,751 substandard homes in Cumberland. It is proposed to provide 300 new units. Preliminary plans for 125 units in South Cumberland are awaiting federal approval. Plans for an additional 25 units have been held up pending a selection of a site. These units are for colored families.

"The difficulty in selecting a site for the colored project has been due in large part to the restrictions imposed by the Public Housing Administration with regard to suitable access streets and utilities, relative closeness to schools, shopping centers and public transportation," the report states.

"In addition to that, unfortunately, vigorous protests have been lodged by residents in the immediate vicinity of various sites being tentatively considered for the location of the colored project. Some other sites had to be withdrawn from active consideration because of the high cost for the acquisition of land. In view of all of this, it was necessary to appeal to the Public Housing Administration for an extension of time in completing the plans for 150 dwelling units by December 31, 1950. The PHA subsequently extended the time for completing a development program for the colored project to March 30, 1951."

A financial report shows that $7,341.86 has been expended for overhead including $5,125 for non-technical salaries and wages. Interest amounts to $310.42; planning costs $2,458.63; site acquisition $1,762.75, and non-dwelling equipment $13,181.06.

Civil Defense To Be Discussed

Mayors or representatives of incorporated towns will meet Friday to discuss community aspects of the civilian defense program.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said he has been invited to a meeting at 7:30 p. m. at the American Legion Home, Main Street, Frostburg.

William G. Barger, LaVale, director of the county's civilian defense program, in a letter to the mayors said appointment of a civil defense officer for each town will also be discussed. These appointments would be made at a later date by the individual mayors.

Mayor Post said that City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson is the city's civilian defense chairman and plans for a local program have been under consideration.

Barger recently said that Cumberland and the area is not considered a prime target for atomic bombing but that conversations with state officials have stressed setting up the section as an evacuation center for refugees from larger, nearby cities in event of an attack.

Equity Case Filed

An equity case titled Jean E. Grimes vs. James J. Grimes has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Market Surges Forward To Best Level In 20 Years

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—In the midst of a Washington debate over higher taxes, the stock market surged ahead to a new high for 1950-51 and the best level in more than 20 years.

The market bounced over just about every obstacle put in its path and lost only a portion of its most extended gain in the final hour when profit-taking appeared in considerable volume.

Prices were up from a few cents to more than $1 a share and in some instances beyond $2 a share.

The most active issues were found among the steels, motors, rails, aircraft, and air lines, and most of the leaders in these groups were higher.

In Washington President Truman sounded the tax keynote with his statement that the nation must face higher taxes "until it hurts."

Chiefs from the Treasury and Congress tentatively agreed to begin consideration of a new tax bill Feb. 1 with plans to raise as much as $10,000,000,000 a year in new money.

Sen. Taft, however, said at least $15,000,000,000 in new taxes must be raised.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 60 cents to $90.70, a new high for the past year and the best since Oct. 4, 1930. The industrial component of the average was up 80 cents, rails 50 cents and utilities 20 cents.

The market was broad with 1,203 individual issues traded. Of these, 686 advanced and only 280 declined. Again there was a generous group touching new highs—192 issues—with only three issues falling to new lows.

The volume of trading was especially heavy with a total of 3,780,000 shares, just a million more than yesterday.

New York Central had a sharp advance of 1⅛ at 23⅜ and was the most actively traded issue in the list. One block of 40,000 shares changed hands at an advance of 1¼.

Baltimore Livestock

BALTIMORE, Jan. 9 (AP)—(USDA)

CALVES — 125 — slow, mostly steady; good and choice vealers somewhat more plentiful than yesterday, generally 36.00-40.00, early top 40.00; common and medium, all weights in 25.00-35.00 price range.

HOGS — 600 — only moderately active, steady to 25 cents lower, declines on 160-220 lb. barrows and gilts; bulk good and choice 160-220 lb. barrows and gilts 22.25-50, top 22.50; 220-240 lbs. 22.00-25; 240-260 lbs. 21.75-22.00; 260-300 lbs. 20.75-21.25; over 300 lbs. 20.50 down according to weight and condition; 120-140 lbs. 20.00-50; 140-160 lbs. 21.00-5; sows under 400 lbs. largely 18.50-75; but odd choice around 325 lbs. and lighter to 19.00 or better; good 400-450 lbs. 17.50-75; over 450 lbs. 16.75 down.

City Orders Properties To Be Torn Down

Engineer's Office Notifies Owners

The City of Cumberland yesterday issued orders for the razing of several properties at the scene of the fatal Christmas night fire on Wineow Street and for a North Mechanic Street structure.

In a letter to the Maryland Homes Company regarding buildings located at 152, 154 and 156 Wineow Street, Rizer said the houses had been condemned and notified the owners to remove the damaged structures as soon as possible.

He added he would be glad to meet with the owner of the properties and the fire chief to discuss the action.

His communication pointed out that Acting Fire Chief William L. Lindner, on December 29, advised him that No. 152 should be removed and that the other two properties should be condemned, saying they had been damaged by fire in such a way that they cannot be repaired.

In the second action, Rizer notified Joseph H. Reinhart that he had made an inspection of a property at 600 North Mechanic Street and found it unsafe for occupancy.

The city engineer added he has been informed the building was condemned for occupancy by both the Cumberland Fire Department and the County Health Department.

The owner was ordered to raze the building and notified not to rent it for occupancy.

Razing of the other property damaged by the Wineow Street fire is already under way. The owner, Walter Twyman, received a permit to demolish the building last Tuesday.

Tri State Roads Clear Of Ice

Most of the roads in the Tri State Area are clear of ice and snow as the result of higher temperatures yesterday.

In Constitution Park the lowest temperature in the morning was 13 degrees and the highest in mid afternoon was 38 degrees. The unofficial downtown temperatures were a low of 22 degrees and a high of 39 degrees.

In the city there is about one inch of old snow still on the ground, according to Robert Golden, local weather observer.

Temperatures last night at 10 o'clock at Deal, Pa., were 16 degrees with clear skies, and five inches of snow still on the ground. At Thomas, W. Va., it was 28 degrees with six inches of snow covering the ground.

West Virginia State Police at Romney said roads there were clear but icy in spots and they asked motorists to use caution in driving.

Although the meeting, scheduled to be held at the Elks Club starting at 7:30 p. m., will be social in nature, it will have as its theme, "Tone of Service," Harman said. For instance, courtesy in switchboard operation will be one of the points to be considered.

A. C. Bogert, telephone traffic supervisor from Baltimore, and Miss E. C. Roeder, traffic service advisor from Baltimore, will lead the discussion.

Juvenile Court Plan In W. Va. Proposed

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 9 (AP)—Freshman Senator Clarence E Martin, Jr., (D-Berkeley) said today he would introduce a bill in the legislature convening tomorrow to create a separate domestic Relations and Juvenile Court for Berkeley, Jefferson and Morgan Counties.

This would relieve a large burden of work now handled by Circuit Judge D. H. Rodgers, the Martinsburg attorney said.

The bill would call for a separate judge on a full-time basis paid by the state rather than the three counties, which make up the present 23rd District Court.

County Commissioners Seek Aid For Local Surplus Foods Program

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners are soliciting the aid of Senators Herbert R. O'Conor and John Marshall Butler and Rep. J. Glenn Beall to secure the reinstatement of the Surplus Foods Program and its continuance in distressed areas, it was revealed yesterday in letters mailed to the members of Congress.

William H. Lemmert, president of the board of commissioners, said after a meeting yesterday, the county has set up a program to help needy families as reported by the local welfare agencies and unless steps are taken to remedy the situation the commissioners "are faced with the possibility of discontinuance of the program."

Letter Reveals Status

The letters reported the commissioners had received certifications from relief agencies for surplus foods for 1,462 families in the county, amounting in the aggregate to 3,942 persons and the board has been informed by the Department of Budget and Procurement of the State of Maryland that butter and cheese have been removed from the list of available foods with the possibility that dried milk and dried eggs may also be removed.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, said yesterday after a meeting with the commissioners and a delegation of citizens favoring retention of the program "the only reason for cutting off surplus foods here is because the bulk of cheese and butter has been removed from the list. The board of commissioners is very disappointed in the action being taken but cannot do anything about the situation without additional help."

Commodities On Hand

Lemmert revealed the county has on hand enough butter and cheese for distribution during the month of January on a basis of one-half pound of both cheese and butter for each person. This is a cut down on the normal average of 1½ pounds of butter per person, he said. Lemmert also stated the cost of shipment and distribution of potatoes is prohibitive and therefore the county does not include potatoes on the list of surplus foods.

Officials of Mountain District, American Legion, and Major Elmer Wall, of the Salvation Army, met with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday morning in an effort to determine if the surplus food program for the needy of the county may be continued.

The county board informed the group the commissioners wish very much to continue the program, but the whole plan hinges on the ability to obtain surplus foods from the Commodity Credit Corporation, the federal agency in charge of allotting the products.

City Is Cooperative

Major Wall said both the City of Cumberland and the county commissioners have been very cooperative and in his 30 years service with the Salvation Army he has not seen any greater interest displayed in the plight of the poor. The system of distribution as set up by J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the County Roads Department, was termed excellent.

Thomas B. Finan, Howard M. Spiker and Patrick J. Carroll of the American Legion, pointed out that unemployment is still high in this area and perhaps if the proper government officials were informed on the acute need, some foods could be obtained for the winter months remaining.

Potomac Edison Plans Building Improvements

Union St. Property Will Be Enlarged

Potomac Edison District Manager H. W. Price announced yesterday that work is now underway on a PE building improvement program here.

This program will include a single story addition to the Union Street Office Building and a Central Billing Department Office addition to be located in the Union Street PE Substation building.

The project will provide space for additional billing machines. Also several working areas for addressograph and bill-printing machines will be expanded.

A new office will be constructed for Norman Fearnow, utility company central billing supervisor.

To be of brick construction, the new billing additions are scheduled for completion the early part of this year.

Price stated that the increasing number of customers resulted in the need for expanded working facilities.

The John I. Vandegrift Company yesterday secured a permit from the City Engineer's office for the construction.

Cost of the project was estimated at $10,000.

15 Local Pupils Are To Attend United Nations

Ten County Schools Are To Participate

Allegany County High School Forum made plans to send a group of 15 high school students to the United Nations in New York at a meeting held yesterday at the Board of Education, Miss Mary J. Sowerby, chairman of the education committee of the AAUW, said last night.

Ten county high schools are represented in the forum, Miss Sowerby stated, and the meeting yesterday covered plans for a radio skit, a panel discussion of the subject "Can We Make the United Nations the Answer to World Peace?" and a trip by a group of students to the United Nations sometime in April.

The forum is sponsored by the AAUW in cooperation with the Board of Education and last year sent four students from the county to New York to attend a forum sponsored by the New York Herald-Tribune and attended by 16 foreign students. The local group plans to send the students to the United Nations this year, Miss Sowerby said.

The group plans to leave for New York early in April, Miss Sowerby stated, and will be accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Kruzon, president of the AAUW, and a business representative of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad which is helping to make arrangements for the trip.

Arrangements were also made at yesterday's meeting for a radio skit to be presented by two of the students who attended the forum last year. Those participating will be Joe Tom Butler, a graduate of Allegany High School now attending Frostburg State Teachers College, and Alta Shay, former Bruce High student now at Potomac State Teachers College. The subject of the radio skit will be the "United Nations."

Also discussed at the conference were ways and means for the students to make the trip to New York in April, she said.

Attending yesterday's meeting were representatives from Allegany, Barton, Beall, Bruce, Carver, Central, Fort Hill, LaSalle, and Ursuline along with Miss Sowerby, Miss Winifred Green, co-chairman of the AAUW educational committee, and Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools.

Robert Little Ebert will be moderator of the public forum planned for February 21 in the city hall council chamber, Miss Sowerby said, and the next discussion meeting is planned February 8, at the Board of Education.

Word that a second son is missing in action in the fighting in Korea has been received by Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Shannon, 170 McCulloh Street, Frostburg.

Cpl. Robert E. Shannon, 20, has been missing in action in Korea since December 6, according to word received Monday by his parents from the Department of Defense.

On August 10 and Mrs. Shannon were notified that his brother, Pvt. Joseph Michael Shannon, 18, had been missing in action since July 27.

This is the first report in this county in which two members of one family have been reported missing in the Korean fighting. No similar reports could be recalled last night in the entire Tri-State Area.

Cpl. Shannon had been attached to the Headquarters Battery of the 57th Field Artillery Battalion of the 7th Division.

In his last letter to his mother, received November 21 and containing a Christmas gift of $150, Cpl. Shannon wrote that at that time he was with his outfit about three miles from the Manchurian border. He said he was writing in a foxhole with the temperature standing at 30 degrees below zero.

Cpl. Shannon enlisted in the army in August, 1948, and had been in Japan for two years before being moved to Korea. He attended Beall High School at Frostburg before enlisting.

Pvt. Shannon also was serving in the army when he was reported missing last August. His parents said yesterday that they have received no additional word concerning his fate.

Mr. and Mrs. Shannon have five other children: John, of Baltimore, who served three years with the Marines in World War II; Charles, at home, who was drafted for military service but deferred after his brother Joseph was reported missing; Mrs. Margaret Lavin, Anna Lee and Mary Louise Shannon, all at home.

Blast Damages Chemical Plant At Celanese

Workers Escape Injury; Production Resumed

An explosion of a large tank in Department 10 of the chemical acetate plant at the Celanese Corporation of America yesterday afternoon caused considerable damage to property, Harrison C. Givens, Jr., plant manager said.

No one was injured in the blast which wrecked part of the building in which the tank was housed and Givens revealed that production in the department would he held up only a short time.

No delay in the main CA plant would result from the explosion, Givens said, and it was hoped that engineering forces, which are working overtime to repair the damages, would have the shop in condition to work full time in two or three days. A temporary delay in Department 10 production would have no effect on production in the main CA lines, Givens stated.

No estimate has been made on the actual amount of damage done, Givens related, but it "probably will amount to several thousand dollars." The tank was completely demolished and will have to be replaced, he said, and the building was badly torn up by the blast. Excessive steam pressure in the tank was thought to be the cause of the explosion.

Air Force Enlistments Are Temporarily Closed

The U. S. Air Force is temporarily closed for enlistments according to information received from the Army's Martinburg Recruiting Office, M.Sgt. Clarence Biehn, of the local office, has announced.

Sgt. Biehn said when enlistments are resumed any man with two years of college who can produce a transcript of credits can enlist even if he has had no prior service. Any veteran of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps may also enlist in U. S. Army Air Force regardless of his schooling if he can pass the mental test.

This enlistment restriction has been placed in force because of the overcrowded conditions at Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, where most of the enlistees in the Air Force have received basic training, Sgt. Biehn said.

A new base is to be opened as soon as possible at Samson Air Base, New York. Sgt. Biehn said that with the new base in operation enlistments will again be resumed.

The local Army recruiting office be closed Saturday because Sgt. Biehn and his staff are going to attend a meeting of all recruiters in Martinsburg.

He is Pfc. Charles A. L. Butler, 22, of Cresaptown, who served with the Medical Company, Eighth Regiment, First Cavalry Division.

Pfc. Butler served in Korea only 11 days. On August 2, while enroute to the front near Kunchon, he was injured by mortar shell fragments which struck his head, shoulder, and left foot.

Today, his left side is paralyzed as the result of a nerve wound, but he reports that he is improving, doctors telling him time is his greatest cure. He expects to leave here Friday, returning to Walter Reed Hospital for more treatment.

Pfc. Butler has been in the service 30 months, serving with the occupation forces in Japan for 20 months. His only comment on the experience in Korea was that there were plenty of C rations for everyone there.
